TYPHOON DEAD IN SWATOW BELIEVED TO TOTAL 100,000

Revealed for First Time That Tidal Wave in Wake of China Storm Flooded City to Depth of 10 Feet, Causing Great Destruction of Property.

LINERS REPORTED SWEPT INLAND

100-Mile-an-Hour Rain-Driven Wind Carried Devastation Miles Inshore, Putting Catastrophe Among World's Greatest.

The Post-Dispatch herewith publishes the first detailed account received in this country of the typhoon which on Aug. 2 swept the port of Swatow, 250 miles east of Hongkong, China, taking nearly 100,000 lives.

It is revealed for the first time that a tidal wave following in the wake of the typhoon flooded the city to a depth of 10 feet, sweeping five ocean liners ashore.

In loss of life, the destruction of Swatow, it now appears, will rank among the great disasters of history.

HONGKONG, Aug. 12.—On the night of Aug. 2, Swatow and many towns in the district about the mouth of the River Han and along the coast of the typhoon-breeding Strait of Formosa were devastated by the most terrific typhoon ever experienced on the China coast. The loss of life is now estimated at nearly 100,000, but it will take weeks to ascertain the extent of the calamity.

Warnings early in the day indicated the approach of the storm and all shipping, including the sampans and junks in which half the population live, sought shelter in the harbor, but the fury of the storm swept all before it.

By night the typhoon was raging at its height. The wind was blowing more than 100 miles an hour with a deluge of rain. Ships were driven ashore. Warehouses and dwellings were wrecked. Trees were uprooted.

A huge tidal wave carried by the wind swept over the neighboring country. Whole villages were destroyed. Towns were swept away. The water penetrated miles inland, carrying boats up into the country.

Communication Closed.

In Swatow itself, the scenes resemble those of Ypres, with survivors wandering around the ruins of their former homes. All avenues of communication are blocked. The plight of thousands is serious in the extreme. The storm destroyed all goods, stocks and water supplies.

Assistance has been rushed from Hongkong. The Chinese authorities are striving to cope with the situation, which presents almost insurmountable difficulties.

Thousands of dead are collected in the temple compounds because of lack of coffins.

Reports from the district reveal the most appalling conditions. Houses and crops have been destroyed for miles inland and the countryside laid waste.

Liners Far Inland.

Shipping suffered heavily. Five ocean liners were driven ashore. Three were hopelessly stranded far inland. All the small craft, which more than 50,000 natives called home, were wiped out.

All piers and pontoons were wrecked, which makes cargo working impossible. This means that vessels arriving with relief supplies cannot land them until repairs have been made.

Swatow was flooded to a depth of 10 feet. When the water receded it carried hundreds of bodies toward the harbor. Conditions are now improving somewhat. The famine has been relieved. Many relief boats have set out from Hongkong.

A fortnight ago Swatow was a flourishing port in the Province of Kwangtung, Southeast China. It spread out like a gay little fan, painted in verdant hills, and laughing rivers, dotted with junks, their shores set with picturesque pagodas, the streets filled with leisurely rikishas, the wharves bustling with a

BOY SEARCHING FOR 3 SMALL BROTHERS WHO RAN AWAY

Stepmother Gave Them $8 to Buy Some Things and They Failed to Return.

Clarence Christenson, 16 years old, visited the Post-Dispatch office yesterday.

"I wish the Post-Dispatch would help me to find my three little brothers," Clarence said. "They ran away Wednesday. Melvin is 13 years old, Alvin 11 and Otto 9.

"We live at 336 Louise avenue, Luxemburg," Clarence continued. "Everybody along the river front knows my three brothers—they run around so much. Dad is a carpenter and works in Hi-Pointe, and my step-mother can't do anything with those boys. She has three children of her own, but she doesn't neglect the rest of us. Those boys just won't mind her or stay at home.

"Only a few weeks ago they ran away and got in a freight car, and rode to St. Charles. They were sent back from there, after we had the city police looking for them. They said then that they were going to get farther next time, that they had learned how to bum in trains and not get caught.

"My stepmother tried to get them to stay around, but they were away from home from morning till night. Wednesday she gave them some money to get an iron and some other things she needed, about $8 in all, and they went away with the money and didn't come back.

"Melvin was wearing a blue shirt and blue overalls and a skull cap and was barefooted. The others had brown overalls trimmed in red. They all have blue eyes and light hair."

Christopher C. Christenson is the father of the missing boys. Besides the seven children who have been at his home, he has two daughters who live with relatives.

FINAL VOTE ON TARIFF MEASURE DUE SATURDAY

Unanimous Consent Agreement Entered Into Late Yesterday; Predicted Measure Will Be Deadlocked.

AMENDMENT VOTE TO BEGIN TUESDAY

No Senator to Speak More Than Once and Not Longer Than 10 Minutes on Each Proposal.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—A final vote will be taken on the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill in the Senate at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Aug. 19, one week from today. A unanimous consent agreement to that effect was accepted late this afternoon. Throughout the day leaders on both sides held a series of conferences seeking to dispose of tariff revision and send the pending measure to conference. Eventually, success was achieved and the conclusions reached became a formal matter of record.

Next Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 4 o'clock the Senate will vote on all remaining committee amendments. It is estimated there are about 500 of these and all must be disposed of before the day's work ends. Not later than 10 o'clock Thursday evening votes will be taken on all individual amendments and motions. It is figured there are approximately 150 of these.

After the measure is reported to the Senate proper no Senator may speak more than once and not longer than 10 minutes upon any reserved amendment; or one offered, or any pending motion.

It was made part of the agreement that Senator Harreld (Republican, Oklahoma), might speak for one hour Wednesday morning, the Senate meeting at 10 o'clock for that purpose. Heflin (Democrat Alabama), objected to this discrimination and unanimous consent was given outside the agreement. Harreld will discuss his amendment relating to the duties on petroleum.

Deadlock Is Predicted.

Since April 20 there have been 104 working days devoted to consideration of the tariff measure. During that period there has been but one adjournment of the Senate which was occasioned by the death of Senator Crow.

The tariff bill will be hastened to conference. There is wide diversity of opinion as to the time necessary for adjusting the differences. The number of amendments added by the Senate will approximate 3000.

Nearly all the Democratic and a number of Republican leaders predict the tariff bill will be deadlocked in conference until the next session of Congress, which begins Dec. 24.

It is claimed this is desired by the Republican politicians, who are apprehensive of the evil effect of the new law would have in the elections. This is denied by the Republican leaders, but the opinion remains that the measure will not become a law until next winter.

Asbestos was the chief item of discussion today. The finance committee imposed a rate of 30 per cent ad valorem on yarn and woven fabrics and all other manufactures of asbestos 25 per cent ad valorem.

Reed (Democrat, Mo.), said there is an asbestos trust which is controlled by one concern and distribibutes enormous dividends. This was denied by Frelinghuysen (Republican, N. J.), who said there were a number of independent concerns engaged in the industry.

Committee Amendment Adopted.

It was declared by Jones that the finance committee amendment increases the duty on asbestos more than 150 per cent. The duty, he said, is 166 per cent of the wage cost. The committee amendment was adopted.

An increase by the finance committee from 40 to 70 per cent ad valorem in the rates on toys brought forth a sharp protest from Underwood (Democrat, Ala.). It was explained by Smooth (Republican, Utah), that the toy industry in this country has been built up since the world war. He contended it is necessary to adequately protect it.

The committee was sustained in its tax on golf balls, despite the popularity of the game among Senators.

Free Band Concerts Today.

There will be two band concerts in Forest Park this afternoon. One near the Union boulevard entrance, will be from 3:30 to 6 o'clock. The other, at the Zoo, will be from 4 to 6:30 o'clock.

DANCER WANTS MILLION FROM WHITNEY'S SON

Evan Burrowes Fontaine's Attorneys, Arguing Motion in New York, Allege Breach of Promise.

"CAN PROVE HE IS MY CHILD'S FATHER"

Woman States She Met Man at Vanderbilt Dance; Action Called "Blackmailing Plot."

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Attorney for Evan Burrowes Fontaine, a dancer, asked Judge Henry V. Borst in special term today to compel attorneys for Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of Harry Payne Whitney, to accept the service of a complaint in a breach of promise action which, the lawyer told the Court, the dancer has brought against young Whitney.

Motion of the defendant's attorney, requiring delay until documentary evidence could be secured was granted, Judge Borst stating he would receive affidavits and other documents at any time before Sept. 9. He said he would reserve decision on motion of Miss Fontaine's counsel.

Charles Firestone of New York, representing Miss Fontaine, told reporters that his client asks $1,000,000 on the ground that Whitney, after an alleged courtship lasting from May 25, 1919, to Oct. 28, 1920, promised on the latter date to marry her on Oct. 31, but failed to do so. Miss Fontaine, he said, still is willing to marry Whitney.

A "Blackmailing Plot."

Firestone, in presenting his complaint to the Court, produced a written manuscript and handed it to Judge Borst, remarking:

"This is our complaint."

The action was characterized by James A. Leary of Saratoga Springs, appearing for the defendant as a "blackmailing plot."

In an opposition motion, he requested the court to delay decision until opportunity could be given Whitney's attorneys to secure affidavits from persons in Texas, where he said Miss Fontaine formerly resided.

To Show Method of Living.

Explaining his request, Leary said the affidavits were purported to show the reputation and method of living of Miss Fontaine while she was in Texas, adding that he also desired to offer documentary proof that the dancer had been married while there and that the marriage had been annulled.

Firestone said the action was begun a year ago, but had not been made public because of the prominence of the defendant. Negotiations for a settlement proving unavailing, he declared, it was decided on Thursday last to press prosecution of the case. Then he said he defendant refused to accept service of papers. He had expected to file the complaint in the county clerk's office at Ballston Spa today, but finding the offices closed, decided to carry out his intention later, probably Monday morning.

During the time of the alleged courtship, said the attorney, Whitney repeated promises to marry Miss Fontaine, who, he said, later gave birth to a son. Miss Fontaine still is willing to marry Whitney, he said. He told the Court the case was started a year ago, but no attempt was made to serve the papers until recently when the defendant refused service.

Noted as a Dancer.

Evan Fontaine has an international reputation as a dancer. It was recalled by professional entertainers that she created a sensation two years ago when she introduced weird Indo-Chinese dances both here and in Europe. Miss Fontaine made her home in the Greenwich Village district. She is said to have stated she first met Whitney at a dance given by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt at the Ritz Carlton in March, 1919. Whitney is a grandson of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. He was graduated last June from Yale, where he was captain of the junior varsity crew.

RAIL HEADS AND UNION CHIEFS DISCUSS LEAVING SENIORITY MATTER TO ARBITRATION

COAL CONFERENCE'S FATE HINGES ON ARBITRATION ISSUE

All Other Questions of an Agreement Reached, Including Provision for Renewing Old Wage Scale.

LEWIS AND GALLAGHER IN OPPOSITE STANDS

Former Declares Against Compulsory Arbitration of Future Contracts Which Was Favored by Latter.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 12.—Whether an agreement providing for a part settlement of the soft coal strike will be reached at the conference here of operators and miners hinged tonight apparently on the opposite stands taken as to arbitration of future contracts by President John L. Lewis of the miners and Michael Gallagher, who had been designated as an arbitrator for the operators.

Lewis had declared his unalterable opposition to compulsory arbitration, which was favored by Gallagher. All other questions of an agreement were understood to have been decided by them, including a provision for re-establishing the wages and working conditions that prevailed when the strike began last April 1.

While the meeting of the Joint Sub-Scale Committee of operators and miners had adjourned until Monday, it was learned that conferences in the meantime had been arranged for the two leaders, who had been empowered to agree on a report that would be submitted to the sub-committee Monday. Only the question of arbitration was said to be disagreed on by them.

Besides meeting with the sub-Scale Committee, Lewis conferred tonight with Thomas H. Watkins, owner of several big mines in Central Pennsylvasia, and some West Virginia operators, who are not participating in the committee work. These operators were understood to have informed Lewis that they were willing to negotiate an agreement with the union.

Not a Four-State Conference.

Today's meeting was further marked by an agreement among the miners and operators that the conference being held here is in no way a four-state conference. This cleared the way for further negotiations before the meeting was adjourned.

Adjournment was taken until Monday, with both sides expressing hope of a settlement.

"We are working out a contract for the interests represented here," said Gallagher, spokesman for the operators, while Lewis added:

"The mere fact that we are continuing in session and applying ourselves to the purposes of the meeting represents the hope of both sides that a basis of understanding will be reached."

The hope held out by the two spokesmen came after a day of uncertainty, marked by a separate caucus of the operators that was followed by frequent meetings between Gallagher and Lewis. The operators in their caucus were understood to have been divided over proposing a demand for arbitration of future settlements, and also some operators were said to have expressed a fear of Federal prosecution if they reached any agreement, which might be construed as attempting to apply to operators not present in the conference here.

"A Declaration of Intent."

Apparently with the view of meeting the objection to any question of prosecution, the sub-committee decided on what was referred to by some of its members as "A declaration of intent."

A statement by Gallagher and Lewis said:

"In order to allay the misapprehension which exists in some quarters as to the purpose of the meeting of operators and miners now in session in the city of Cleveland, O., this statement is issued:

'We are assembled for the purpose

Twelve Santa Fe Trains Still Stalled in the Desert

Transcontinental Service on Union Pacific Resumed—Eastbound Trains on Western Pacific Halted.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 12.—Resumption of transcontinental train service on one railroad, the Union Pacific, and suspension of east-bound trains on another, the Western Pacific, were the outstanding features today in the far west in the railroad situation.

Union Pacific trains, which were tied up in Nevada, on the Salt Lake-Los Angeles road, began moving shortly afternoon when "Big Four" trainmen, who had gone on strike, went back to their posts. Two of the trains were at Las Vegas, and it was reported Gov. Emmett D. Boyle, of Nevada, had departed for that point to take charge of the situation.

The two daily Western Pacific trains were annulled on account of strike conditions at Oakland and Stockton, two California points where trainmen had refused to work as long as armed guards were retained. One Western Pacific train was abandoned by its crew after arriving at Stockton today from Salt Lake.

Other Developments.

Other developments in the strike situation were:

The Southern Pacific Co., which had four trains stalled at its Ogden gateway by a strike of firemen, reported that the men had returned to work when the conductors objected to the strike. The firemen asked that the company remove the armed guard and repair its rolling stock, which, it was claimed, was dangerous to operate. The company said it expected no more trouble at Ogden.

Last night the Overland Limited, a fast Southern Pacific through train, was taken out of Ogden with railroad officers acting as firemen.

On the Santa Fe system trains remained halted at Barstow, Needles and other desert points. Late reports placed the number of stalled trains at twelve.

The company is making efforts to relieve the passengers, some of whom are suffering from the excessive heat, which was 120 degrees at some points.

Fruit losses resulting from the strike are reported heavy, particularly in the San Joaquin Valley, where it was estimated that growers today lost 500 cars of green fruit valued at $500,000.

More Bomb Throwing.

California fruit at present "on the rails" en route to Eastern markets consists of approximately 2000 cars, valued at around $1000 each. Growers are hoping that these shipments will reach their destinations before being halted by embargoes. Approximately 40,000 carloads remain in California to be packed and shipped east, if railroad condtiions permit.

Bomb throwing was resumed in the railroad yards at Roosevelt and San Bernardino earlytoday, five being hurled into the Southern Pacific yards at Roosevelt and four into the Santa Fe yards at San Bernardino. No one was injured seriously, although two officers at Roosevelt received slight wounds from gunshot when they attempted to find the bomb throwers.

AUTO DRIVEN INTO FAMILY, KILLING ONE

Four Others Injured, One Seriously, When Machine Attempts to Pass Street Car.

A speeding automobile that was driven into a family of five persons waiting in a group for a street car in front of 6107 Gravois avenue at 9:35 o'clock last night killed Velma Schubert, 10 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schubert, 5359 Arsenal street, and injured the other four, one seriously. The accident occurred when the automobile, going in the same direction as the street car, attempted to pass it.

Two men are being held; Lloyd Collenberger, 23, a shoe worker, 3904 North Market street, owner and driver of the car, and a companion, Harry Morris, 31, of 3955 St. Ferdinand avenue.

The Injured.

The injured are:

Fred Schubert, 37, 5359 Arsenal street, a city fireman attached to Engine Company No. 35, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg, fracture of the right leg, lacerations of the face and head, and a possible fracture of skull. His condition is serious.

Mrs. Alma Schubert, 36, internal injuries, cuts and bruises on both feet, contusions and abrasions of the body.

Peter Schubert, 7, fractured left thigh, cuts and bruises.

Gladys Schubert, 11, cuts, bruises, possible fracture of the skull.

Auto Plunged Into Tree.

The automobile, after plunging through the group waiting for the eastbound Cherokee car to stop, skidded around a corner into Rosa avenue and ran into a tree. Neighbors reported the occupants fled and later returned. Collenberger and Morris were found in the machine and arrested.

Members of the family of Mrs. Henry Lange, relatives of the Schuberts, 6107 Gravois avenue, who were standing on the porch of the Lange home, said the automobile, traveling at high speed, cut in ahead of the street car as it was nearing the stop, swerved after passing the car and turned toward the south curb, apparently skidded and struck the group.

Collenberger said he tried to avoid running into group. He said he and Morris remained with the machine until arrested.

ALLEGED ABSCONDING BANK TELLER ARRESTED

Man Who Fled to Mexico With a Girl and $75,000, Swims Back Alone.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 12.—A man arrested this morning as he emerged from the Rio Grande, coming from the Mexican side, was said by authorities to have admitted he was Edwin Frederick Morse, wanted in Denver on a charge of absconding with $75,000 from the International Trust Co. last August. He first gave his name as Herbert M. Smith. He was accompanied by a woman who is definitely located in Mexico.

The man agreed to waive extradition proceedings, the authorities said, and return to Denver to answer the charge. He was turned over to Department of Justice officials.

Morse was taken to San Antonio on the noon train. He refused to talk while here.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 12.—Edwin F. Morse, reported arrested at Laredo, Tex., today, was alleged to have absconded with $75,000 in currency on Aug. 13, 1921, from the International Trust Co. here. Morse had been employed as a teller at the bank and was alleged to have taken the money from his cage.

WOMAN WHO FATALLY INJURED DIVORCED HUSBAND IS FREED

She Testifies That She Fired in Self-Defense When He Used Force.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Helen Avera, 27, who shot and fatally wounded her divorced husband, Millard Stevens, 32, Sunday afternoon, July 9, when he is alleged to have attempted to force his way into her home to get possession of their 6-year-old daughter, was freed late today after a preliminary hearing before Recorder George E. Johnson.

The woman testified that Stevens, who died early yesterday, had threatened her and that as her husband, Larry Avera, welterweight boxer, was not there she shot in self-defense. Other witnesses testified that Stevens' record was bad.

CONFERENCE HELD AFTER PARLEYS WITH PRESIDENT

Both Sides Reported to Have Shown "Friendly Attitude" Toward Proposal to Submit Issue to Impartial Tribunal—Executives to See Harding Again Today.

NO STATEMENTS ON WHITE HOUSE PARLEYS

Harding's Action in Asking That Decisions Not Be Made Public Believed to Have Left Way Open to Change in Positions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The proposal that the seniority issue, conceded to be the sole obstacle to the settlement of the railroad shop crafts strike, be submittetd to arbitration by an impartial tribunal, was discussed tonight at a conference of railroad brotherhood chiefs and rail executives as a basis for ending the walkout.

Althougth it was said no definite agreement was reached at the conference, which lasted for nearly three hours, both sides were said to have exhibited a "friendly" attitude toward the submission.

The railroad executives have an appointment to meet with President Harding at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when, it was said, Harding will be told of the new situation resulting from the night negotiations, in order that he might proceed from that point with his policy of mediation.

Lack of information as to the attitude which would be taken by the leaders of the striking shopmen to the proposal was said to have prevented the other union leaders from taking a definite stand. It was expected that a report on the proceedings would be made as soon as possible to B. M. Jewell, leader of the shop crafts, and his associates with a view to obtaining their views.

The conference was convened at a local hotel with great secrecy, following a series of meetings today at the White House, in which President Harding talked with members of a committee from the Association of Railway Executives and with a delegation composed of leaders of the railroad brotherhoods not on strike.

As a result of the day's conferences the replies of both groups to Mr. Harding's last suggestion for settlement were withheld temporarily, as were also statements explaining the attitude of both sides.

In the labor group at the secret conference tonight were D. E. Shepherd of the Conductors; W. N. Doak of the Trainmen; D. B. Robertson of the Firemen, and F. A. Burgess of the Locomotive Engineers. It was reportedd that Secretary of Labor Davis and George Christian, secretary to the President, had participated to some extent in the discussions.

Participants in the conferences who left the meeting from time to time, refused to discuss the proceedings in the slightest degree, asserting that they had been bound to secrecy by a high authority. The meeting was planned to take place without the inconveniences attended by publicity, they said, indicating regret that it had become known to any outside those invited to attend.

GRIFFITH, IRISH LEADER AND SINN FEIN FOUNDER, DIES

President of Dail Eireann Succumbs at Dublin Hospital After Illness of Ten Days.

WENT TO HOSPITAL FOR OPERATION

Apparently Recovering and Regaining Strength When Relapse Came Yesterday; Tonsils Removed.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Aug. 12.—Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, died in Dublin today of influenza, it has been learned in Belfast.

His death occurred at 9:45 o'clock this morning in St. Vincent's Hospital, Dublin, which he entered 10 days ago for an operation for tonsilitis. He was recovering from the operation and apparently regaining his normal strength during the last few days.

In fact, Mr. Griffith had responded to his treatment so well that he was able to leave the hospital daily for his official duties, returning to the institution at night.

This morning he ate a hearty breakfast and was going upstairs when he suddenly collapsed. He was carried into his room and a doctor was immediately summoned. He said Mr. Griffith was suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage. A priest was then sent for, and he had just finished administering the last rites of the church when Mr. Griffith expired.

Lloyd George Sends Condolences to Michael Collins.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Prime Minister, Lloyd George, has telegraphed Michael Collins, head of the Irish provisional government, expressing his deep distress on learning of the death of Arthur Griffith. Lloyd George's telegram said:

"My admiration for his single-minded patriotism, his ability, sincerity and courage had grown steadily since I met him first less than a year ago. His character made a deep impression upon the British Ministers who shared with him in those unremitting labors in which he was called upon to play such a testing and difficult part. His loss will fall heavily on Ireland, but I trust his work will go on to complete success."

The Prime Minister also telegraphed his condolences to Mrs. Griffith, saying: "I am certain Ireland will always reverence his memory as one of her most loyal, gifted and courageous sons."

Dublin Theaters Closed Until Tuesday Night.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—As a consequence to the death of Arthur Griffith, all the theaters and motion picture houses will be closed until Tuesday night. The opening of the Dublin horse show will be postponed until Tuesday afternoon. Griffith leaves a wife and two children.

The death of Arthur Griffith marks the passing of one of the foremost figures in modern Ireland. He was one of the most conspicuous leaders in the creation of the new Irish Free State and was a founder of the Sinn Fein.

He has been out of the limelight during the recent military activities, which have been largely directed on behalf of the Free State forces by Michael Collins.

Mr. Griffith was formerly an editor of Dublin, and later established the newspaper United Irishmen, followed by the Sinn Fein and then the Nationality.

He first attracted attention by his uncompromising attitude for abstention by Irish members from attendance of the sessions of the British Parliament.

Failed to Get Safe Conduct.

In October, 1919, Griffith was elected presiding officer for the Sinn Fein conference in Dublin. He was later nominated as Sinn Fein delegate from East Cavan. During the peace conference at Paris in 1919 he was chosen as an Irish delegate to present the Irish case, but failure to get a safe conduct from the British prevented his attendance.

In July, 1919, Griffith was elected acting president of the Irish National Assembly in the absence of Eamonn de Valera, then in the United States.

Griffith was arrested in Dublin in November, 1920, and spent seven months in Mountjoy Prison. During his imprisonment he issued a message to the Irish people as to the conduct of the Sinn Fein organization.

Early in June, 1921, there were reports of a London conference at which Irish leaders would be invited to consult with members of the British Cabinet. Griffith was mentioned among the possible delegates. His release from prison followed.

Griffith accompanied De Valera to London in July when the conferences were opened. Later, when the conference shifted to different points, Griffith was appointed chairman of the Sinn Fein mission. He was in London through October, November and December, carrying on the negotiations which culminated in Dec. 5 with the signing of the treaty between Great Britain and Ireland.

Born in Dublin.

Griffith was born in Dublin in 1872. Though bearing a Welsh surname, he was Irish to the core. His father was a printer, a Roman Catholic, also named Arthur. The younger Griffith was educated at the Christian Brothers School in Dublin. He was widely known as the founder of the Sinn Fein movement.

In an article briefly analyzing the characters of the Irish Free States leaders, written last December by Francis Hackett, one of the editors of the New Republic, New York, Griffith was sketched thus:

"In great contrast to Michael Collins is his associate in signing the treaty, Arthur Griffith. Griffith and Collins have this in common—they are hard realists as well as firm nationalists. But where Collins is the magnetic leader of men, Griffith is the profound intellectual. By profound I mean profound. Only 50 years of age, I believe that Arthur Griffith has developed a policy for Ireland which may easily make him one of the big statesmen of Europe if he continues on his career.

"Griffith is superficially a quiet hole-in-the-corner journalist of the familiar continental type, like Clemenceau. The late John Redmond dismissed him as a "gutter journalist" in 1916. And superficially again, his story is something like this:

"He has been a journalist half propagandist most of his life. The son of a Roman Catholic Dublin compositor (in spite of a supposedly Welsh name) Mr. Griffith started his career as a proofreader on a Dublin newspaper. Abandoning that occupation, he tried his fortune for a time in the diamond fields of South Africa and actually worked in a diamond mine. On his return to Ireland from living in South Africa and Egypt, Griffith soon started his first famous weekly, the United Irishman.

"The United Irishman was a name endeared to Parnellites, but the Nationalism which Arthur Griffith began to preach after the downfall of Parnell was not of the parliamentary variety. It was essentially a proud and scornful Nationalism, intended first of all to whip Irishmen out of slave psychology, and, secondly, to give them a broad economic and political program.

"Griffith preached in the wilderness for many years. There was nothing sensational about him, except the frequency with which his little papers came to be suppressed. He and his wife and small family lived obscurely on little means. His editing of a propagandist paper out of plain devotion to an idea earned him more reproaches than ha'pence. But the rising generation in Dublin became familiar, through him, with the names of Wolfe Tone and John Mitchel, of Louis Kossuth and Deak. He told Dublin of the Hungarian insurrection and he sought to adapt the Hungarian policy to Ireland. By 1905 men were enough impressed by the resourcefulness and depth of his views to join in the First National Council convention, with Edward Martyn of Galway as president. Here Sinn Fein was launched as a national doctrine."

LINER, ON WHICH FIVE DIED IN BLAST, NEARS NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The White Star liner Adriatic, in whose coal hold five members of the crew were killed and four injured by an explosion yesterday, neared New York waters tonight.

Wireless messages said she would be at Ambrose Channel tomorrow afternoon and reach Quarantine two hours later. Messages inquiring about the welfare of hundreds of the passengers on the giant liner flooded the White Star offices today, necessitating extra help to insure inquirers that there was no danger.

DIVORCED WIFE OF H. F. M'CORMICK MAY WED AUSTRIAN

Report Follows Immediately the Announcement of Former Husband's Marriage to Ganna Walska.

MAN MENTIONED IS NOW IN CHICAGO

Says He Came Over From Europe With Mrs. McCormick Only to Draw Plans for Zoo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Now the gossips have it that Mrs. Edith Rockefeller-McCormick is to wed. Edward Krenn, the young Austrian architect who accompanied her to this country, is named as party of the second part.

Krenn has been assiduous in his attentions to Mrs. McCormick since he came here last year. He lives at a hotel directly across the street from her town house. Stopped by a reporter today and asked, "Are you going to marry Mrs. McCormick?" Krenn smiled.

"Well," he said hesitatingly, "it certainly is very queer the way our names have been coupled together since I arrived in Chicago. I am only here to draw plans for a new Zoo, you know."

"But are you going to marry Mrs. McCormick?" Krenn smiled more broadly, and there was the suggestion of a blush.

"Well, we have several things in common," he answered. "We are both deeply interested in psychoanalysis and art."

The question was repeated once more.

"Have you asked Mrs. McCormick?" Kreen countered.

When informed she had refused to make any statement, Krenn said: "Oh, well, then I can't say anything either."

The Zoo Krenn was engaged to draw plans for is a project of Mrs. McCormick's. She promised $3,000,000 to be expended on construction of a natural park in the forest preserves. The park is to be stocked with animals which will be allowed to roam about in surroundings approximating as nearly as possible their natural habitats.

The first of January next is the time under the divorce law when Mrs. McCormick can marry. She refused today to make any statement for publication.

McCORMICK-WALSKA MARRIAGE ILLEGAL IN HOME STATE

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Harold F. McCormick and Mme. Ganna Walska, despite denials of any such intention, have taken the earliest possible moment to marry. In fact, it is so early that it would be illegal in the bridegroom's home State, Illinois, as he was divorced from his first wife less than a year ago.

The head of the International Harvester Co. married the opera star yesterday morning in the town hall of the Sixteenth Paris Arrondissement. Immediately after the ceremony, which was witnessed only by Dudley Field Malone, Mme. Walska's attorney, and Mrs. Malone, the wedding party went to the Ritz for luncheon.

Here the new Mrs. McCormick did all the talking to the press.

"Please say only that we are both glad our troubles are over," she told the Post-Dispatch correspondent. "Our plans? We mean to spend half our time abroad and the remainder in Chicago and New York. Probably we will travel a good deal. I do not mean to let matrimony interfere with my operatic career, you know."

The honeymoon will be spent on an automobile tour, which probably will take in Deauville. The McCormicks plan to leave Paris for this trip today.

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, divorced McCormick last December on the ground of desertion. They had been married for 26 years. As Illinois law forbids a divorced person to remarry until at least a year after the decree is granted, McCormick and his bride probably will have to go through another ceremony next winter.

Mrs. McCormick's first husband was Baron Archadie d'Einghorn, a Russian officer, who was killed early in the war. Not long after her arrival in the United States in 1915 she was married to Dr. Joseph Fraenkel, 25 years her senior. After his death she met Alexander Smith Cochran, said to be the wealthiest bachelor in the United States. McCormick himself introduced them and after a brief courtship they were married. Two months ago the Polish opera singer obtained her divorce decree from Cochran.

The French law permits divorcees to remarry 60 days after the final decree is granted. The 60 days for Mme. Walska was up three days ago.

Prayers for Recovery of Lord Northcliffe Being Said in London Churches

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1922.)

LONDON, Aug. 12.

PRAYERS for the recovery of Lord Northcliffe are being said in all churches of the Bishop of London's diocese. This is an unusual request for a bishop to make except in the case of members of the royal family.

When prayers are said for royalty an official communication is sent to all the churches by the Bishop, but in this instance the same purpose was served by a notice in the press.

Lord Northcliffe has been in a dying condition for many days; in fact his death was expected last Sunday night. During the last 48 hours his grave condition has been unchanged.

There are rumors that should the publisher die, the Walters family, original owners of the Times, will try to buy back the Northcliffe interest in that paper.

of negotiating, if possible, a new wage agreement between the representatives of the United Mine Workers and the individual operating interests represented in this meeting. The conference is in no sense what may be termed a four-state conference and does NOT undertake to represent the operators of any particular State or district or any operating interests not represented herein. Its sole purpose is to promote a mutuality of understanding as between the operators participating and the representatives of their employes. This statement is the joint action of the meeting assembled."

The question of whether single State agreements between operators and miners might develop was said by union officials not to be settled by the joint statement from the subscale committee. A decision of this question was said to rest with the union's policy commitee, and its wage scale committee for the four States comprising the central competitive field.

No Discussion Over Arbitration.

No discussion arose today in the sub-committee over the question of future arbitration, which had brought a division of opinion among the operators. No concrete plan had been developed by them, but the miners had declared they would not agree to any proposal for dealing with the future that went beyond setting up an advisory commission.

Aside from the sub-scale committee's decision interest attached to the presence here of Govs. Davis of Ohio and Groesbeck of Michigan, who sent out calls to Governors McCray of Indiana, Sproul of Pennsylvania and Small of Illinois to join them in the conference here on Tuesday.

The invitation to the three Governors was as follows:

"The situation on coal negotiations is such that we deem it advisable and helpful that you be here Tuesday morning next; come earlier if convenient."

Pennsylvania Fuel Commission Fixes Brokerage Charge on Coal.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—The Pennsylvania Fuel Commission today fixed a brokerage charge of 25 cents a ton on bituminous coal between the mines and the retailers, but were unable to reach an agreement of the basic price of the fuel at the mines, according to announcement following the second meeting here of the commission.

This phase will be taken up Tuesday at Harrisburg, at a meeting of the commissioners and a committee of bituminous operators named as an advisory body.

mingling of the west and east in commerce. The wider portion of the city stretched along the shore, narrowing to a point on the landward side. The port faces southeast. In front of it pours the Han-Kiang River.

At the southern end of the city were the foreign warehouses with coolies always busy transporting cargoes. At the west end were the well stocked shops of the native brokers. Between the two shipping quarters, from east to west, extended scores of streets like the ribs of a fan almost too narrow and uneven for rikishas to travel, yet withal busy and fascinating. In contrast, along the coast and between the town and the railroad station ran a broad macadamized road, while an up-to-date railway connected Swatow with the prosperous city of Chaochow, and did much to forward the growing prosperity of the port city.

City of Ancient Temples.

Although there were Christian churches in Swatow, it was a city of ancient temples and of traditions, the majority of the natives following Taoism and Buddhism. The town was not open to foreign residents and trade until 1858 through the Anglo-French treaty of Tientsin. Two years later British and United States Consuls were installed.

It was a peaceful city. The foreign inhabitants were on friendly terms with the natives, and public offices and private residences of both stood side by side. There was no exclusive foreign settlement, though farther east along the coast were the large number of foreign firms, clubs, schools and some of the consulates, forming almost a suburb. Across the bay is Kakchio, where several hundred foreigners, Americans, French, Japanese, English, Germans and Portuguese made their homes.

Swatow had overcome its chief handicap—the lack of proper drinking water—by installing a modern system in 1914 with a reservoir eight miles above the city. The work of the English Presbyterian Mission, which has extensive premises, did much to improve the city. Conspicuous among these is the hospital under the management of Dr. Lyall, whose fame has spread far into the interior.

In their picturesque junks the natives trade for 250 miles along the Han-Kiang River, taking up salt, dried fish, kerosent oil and bringing down the famous bamboo paper from Kuhkien Province, tea and oil. To this immense trade was added steamship facilities comparable with Hongkong, Canton and the East Indies on one hand, and with Amoy, Foochow, Tamsui and Amping, the latter two in Formosa.

Prosperous Community.

While the region having Swatow for its distributing center is not large, comprising the eastern portion of Awangtung Province, the southwest part of Fuhkien and the southern part of Kiang-Si, its trade often exceeded that of Amoy. The abundance of products and the savings sent home by the emigrant laborers made the natives prosperous to such a degree that they could afford to be easy spenders. This caused the imports to far exceed the exports.

In the midst of Swatow's prosperity, came the disastrous typhoon. Year after year she had resisted the typhoons which annually sweep the lower coast of China. But she had no chance with this terrific storm.

Swatow literally was a house built upon the sand. The northern bank of the river on which the city stood is formed by alluvial plains. Twenty acres had been reclaimed from the sea to meet the demand for increased traffic and necessary building. Furthermore, Swatow is opposite the mouth of the Formosa channel, one of the windiest places in the world, according to scientists. The pretty fan-shaped city was broken to bits, its population cut in half.

COAL PRIORITY RULE EFFECTIVE IN STATE TOMORROW

Emergency Needs First, Roads and Utilities Next; Concerns Making Foods and Medicines Last.

STORAGE OR SALE BARRED TO ABOVE

Applications Should Be Made at Once, Commissioner McIndoe Says, and 10 Days Allowed for Distribution.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 12.—Transportation conditions in Missouri will be served best by the adoption of the Interstate Commerce Commission order No. 23, "Relative to the distribution of coal in this State," the Missouri Public Service Commission declared late today in a statement explaining the adoption of the order for Missouri. The statement came following hearings conducted earlier in the day to establish priorities in the furnishing of cars for railroads operating in Missouri.

Coal for emergency use is given first place in the State Public Service Commission's priority list. Railroads and public service utilities are next in the priority rating. Ice plants directly supplying the public or refrigeration for foodstuffs and hospitals and governmental institutions take precedence over residences, the commission's order sets forth. Concerns engaged in the preparation of foodstuffs and medicines and the containers thereof are last on the priority list.

None of the above may obtain coal for storage, for exchange or for sale, the commission has ruled.

Applications for coal to be distributed under the priority ruling should be made immediately, Commissioner Hugh McIndoe stated today. All applications must be investigated, forwarded to Washington and turned over to a regional Federal distributor in charge of coal production, and the director orders the coal shipped from the nearest point, McIndoe explained. As Eastern Missouri formerly was supplied with coal from Illinois fields, it now is necessary to get bituminous coal elsewhere and delay is experienced, he said. Ten days or two weeks should be allowed for coal distribution, McIndoe believed. The order will become effective in Missouri Monday, Aug. 14.

TWO KILLINGS IN RAILROAD YARD IN ARKANSAS REPORTED

Little Rock Hears of Shooting at Biddle of U. S. Deputy and Detective by Mistake.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 12.—John W. Cabines, a city detective, was reported to have been shot and killed by Deputy United States Marshal McQuire, who in turn was shot to death by O. N. Martin, another detective, in the Rock Island Railway yards at Biddle, near here, tonight.

First reports were that the shootings were the result of mistaken identity.

Rail and Union Chiefs Discuss Arbitration

to the Railroad Labor Board, and sat in conference for four hours, first with spokesmen for the employes and later with the railroad executives, seeking a meeting point. Neither of the replies was made public, although each side was ready to give out an answer on arrival at the White House. The executives delivered their letter through the committee named at the meeting in New York yesterday. The heads of the shop crafts organizations sent the response drawn up at their meeting this morning shortly before noon, and were represented at the afternoon conference by the chiefs of the brotherhoods whose men have not gone on strike.

L. E. Shepherd, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, the spokesman of the labor delegation, announced that the shopmen had left their case in the hands of the brotherhoods, including the "Big Four," which have not issued formal strike calls.

Separate Conferences.

Although the executives and the brotherhood officers were at the White House at the same time, they were not in conference together, nor did they meet. The labor delegation reached the executive offices at 2:30 o'clock. They remained with the President, Secretary Hoover, Secretary Davis, Chairman Cummins of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee and Chairman Hooper of the Railroad Labor Board, whom Mr. Harding had asked to be present, until 4:30 o'clock, when the executives arrived. The brotherhood chiefs then went into the Cabinet room for private conference and left the White House at 6 o'clock.

After the executives had been with President Harding two hours they, too, left his office and held an executive session in the Cabinet room. On departing, T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of the Railway Executives, said to newspaper men:

"I am sorry to say I can't give anything you will regard as satisfactory. We submitted the reply of the executives to the President. He requested that for the present it be not made public."

Offer to Act as Mediators.

Shepherd said the officers of brotherhoods not on strike had tendered their services to the President as mediators or in an other manner he might desire to use them. He was asked if he saw any prospect of a settlement and replied:

"God in His infinite wisdom only knows. I am Presbyterian, but sometimes I lose hope."

Shepherd stopped as he was leaving the White House to make this statement to correspondents:

"The representatives of the railroad labor organizations that have not been on strike called to tell the President the troubles they have had growing out of the strike, our troubles of keeping anyone at work, and the condition of affairs in the way of engines and equipment, which are in bad shape; also to offer our good offices in the pending controversy if we could be of any service to him or if we could act as mediators.

Committee to Stay in Capital.

"We were quite prepared to do anything we could to help out the situation. We want to say this:

"We know that your business depends upon space. We don't want you to go into any sensational stuff. If you want to serve the best interests of everybody you will write as conservatively as you can. So if you do this you will help the American people. Get your headline writers. They twist your stuff.

"We don't know what the President is going to do. We submitted a formal statement. We told him our position—how we felt about the matter and how we looked upon everything, all in an advisory way. We wanted to make it clear we don't want to muddy the water. We will leave a committee here. We had a very full discussion of the whole situation with a desire not to embarrass anybody, especially the President."

Shepherd announced that of the labor chiefs who called at the White House, five would stay in town as a committee subject to the President's summons. Harding told them he might have something further. Shepherd will remain in Washington for a few days himself.

Reply Not Made Public.

While Shepherd did not say so, it is fairly certain that the letter of the shop crafts' organization replying to Mr. Harding's peace plan was held up at the President's suggestion. Mimeographed copies of it were in possession of E. J. Manion, president of the telegraphers, when the delegation went to the White House. It was announced after the morning meeting of the railroad labor organizations that the reply would be given out after the brotherhood delegation saw the President unless some other arrangement was made at that time. It was also intended that the statement of the brotherhood chiefs whose men are not on strike, which they presented to Mr. Harding, should be given out at the same time.

Shepherd made clear that the President did not return the reply of the shopmen. It was left in his possession, as was that of the executives. Cuyler stated that he would remain in Washington over night and would probably see the President again in the morning. It was stated at the White House that other conferences would be held. The executive offices revealed nothing of what had transpired during the afternoon.

Those at Conferences.

In addition to Messrs. Shepherd and Manion, the labor chiefs who saw the President were Warren S. Stone, locomotive engineers; E. F. Grable, maintenance of way employes; William Doak, railroad trainmen; T. V. Cashen, switchmen; D. B. Robertson, firemen and enginemen; J. L. Luhrsen, train dispatchers, and D. W. Helt, signalmen.

The committee of executives was composed of Cuyler and W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania Railroad; Hale Holden, Burlington; A. H. Smith, New York Central; Howard Elliott, Northern Pacific; Julius Krutschnitt, Southern Pacific; W. L. Mapother, Louisville & Nashville, and C. H. Markham, Illinois Central.

It is understood that the reply of the shopmen is a rejection of the peace plan without provisos. Obviously, it did not constitute any sort of acceptance that could be harmonized with the qualified approval of the executives. The fact that the offers of the brotherhoods not on strike are holding themselves ready for another summons to the White House indicates that Mr. Harding may avail himself of their offer to act as mediators.

Labor Presents Solid Front.

It is regarded as rather a shrewd piece of engineering on the part of the shopmen by which the "big four" brotherhood have assumed the role not only of spokesmen but as their leaders in the negotiations with the White House, and thus indirectly, the executives. The more powerful organizations have thereby assumed charge of the situation, and it has given railroad labor the appearance of a solid front. On the other hand, it opens an avenue that may be the direct route to a strike settlement. Because of the inconvenience caused the majority of the organizations, those whose men were not involved in the last wage decisions of the Labor Board, by the strike of the shopmen, their chiefs have been anxious for a settlement and will work earnestly with the President in the hope of reaching one.

It is evident that Mr. Harding has not given up hope of solving the problem by means of his last suggestion, the Railroad Labor Board route. This was manifested because of his desire that the replies not be given publicity, which would clinch them beyond probability of revision. The fact that he had not permitted their publication was taken by some as indication that the shopmen had not closed the door completely, despite statements appearing to come on good authority that they had delivered and unqualified rejection.

DAUGHERTY ORDERS INVESTIGATION IN STOPPING OF TRAINS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The Federal District Attorney in Southern California was ordered today by Attorney-General Daugherty to investigate "whether the abandonment of trains on the Santa Fe Railroad was the result of a conspiracy by those operating them or others to interfere with interstate commerce and the handling of the mails."

"If the proof is sufficient, present the matter to the grand jury immediately," said Daugherty's order. "If grand jury not in session, present to court the necessity of calling special grand jury."

Action by the Department of Justice followed investigation of press reports of the tying up of trains.

"It has been reported to this department from certain places, especially Southern California and Arizona, on the Santa Fe system," said Daugherty, "that trains have been and are being abandoned by trainmen and employes. It has occurred at places most inconvenient (Needles, Cal., for instance), and not only results in interference with and obstruction to interstate commerce and the transportation of the mail, but in great suffering and distress among men, women and children who are passengers.

"After conference with the President, I have wired the United States Attorney at Los Angeles as follows:

"'Report to United States District Judge any violations of injunctions and institute proper proceedings to hold violators for contempt. Investigate quickly and ascertain if abandonment of trains was result of conspiracies, by those operating them or others, to interfere with interstate commerce and handling of the mails. If proof sufficient, present matter to grand jury immediately. If grand jury not in session, present to court the necessity of calling special grand jury. Department will give you all necessary support and assistance. The interference with and abandonment of trains strongly indicates the existence of a conspiracy and the Government will take all necessary steps to prevent its continuation or like conspiracies elsewhere. Advise me of results.

"'H. M. DAUGHERTY.'

"It is reported that 12 passenger and mail trains on the Santa Fe line in Southern California are tied up because of the refusal of members of the 'Big Four' to move them. The reason given for such action was the danger to members from armed guards and defective engines. Seven trains were held up at Needles, three at Barstow and two at Los Angeles. Hand grenades were thrown into the Santa Fe stockade at San Bernadino early this morning and an engine was run into a roundhouse turntable pit."

40 L. & N. Engineers Quit in Protest Against Armed Guards.

By the Associated Press.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Aug. 12.—Forty engineers on the Henderson & St. Louis division of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad quit work today at Earlington in protest against the presence of armed guards at the railroad shops there. As many firemen refused to man engines at the same place yesterday for a similar reason. The engineers in concentrating at Earlington, carried out instructions of their union leaders to bring their trains to home stations.

Freight trains are at a standstill. None have been moved since yesterday. But one passenger train on the Henderson division has passed through here since 6 o'clock Friday night. It reached here at 10 o'clock today. A few northbound passenger trains are being operated and they ususally are from four to five hours late.

RETURN OF STRIKERS AT JOLIET EXPECTED

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 12.—Initial concessions which it is believed will lead to the resumption of operations in the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern yards here by Monday were made this afternoon by railroad brotherhood representatives and Adjutant-General C. E. Black, Lieutenant-Colonel Morris and Acting Sheriff Lindgren at a conference held in the office of State Senator Richard J. Barr, who arranged the meeting.

Brotherhood chiefs and Sheriff Lindgren, after proopsals by Senator Barr, agreed to the removal of troops from the entrances to the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern yard gates. Adjutant-General Black said it was an impossibility for the troops to be moved from this city at present, while Sheriff Lindgren reiterated his statement that the situation remained tense.

"Whether it is right or wrong for the troops to be here is not the question," said Gen. Black. "The public is entitled to safety just as you 'Big Four' brotherhood men are."

"We figure there are other places in Joliet for the troops than their present location at the 'J' Park," Chairman O'Day of the Brotherhood declared. "And the only place Col. Morris is defending is the E., J. & E. property and we are not on a strike and have not committed any violence. We will not endanger our lives entering the yards while troops are there."

The suggestion by Senator Barr to arrange private guards at the gates followed and was generally accepted. It remains to receive the approval of the brotherhood members before being adopted, with the understanding that if the proposal is accepted traffic will be resumed at the "J" yards after four days of idleness. Sunday will mark the fifth day since any switching or yard work has been done.

Sheriff Newkirk, who was twice wounded during the rioting here last Monday will recover, hospital attendants say.

40 Trainmen Quit in Michigan Iron Section, Declaring Trains Unsafe.

By the Associated Press.

IRON RIVER, Mich., Aug. 12.—Forty engineers, firemen and switchmen employed by the Pere Marquette & Northwestern here, walked out today, declaring the engines in service were unfit for use and dangerous. Their action forced the suspension of ore shipments, amounting to about 125 cars daily. Only mail moved out of here today.

Spokesmen for the trainmen said they would not return to work until the equipment had been put into condition. No other points in this section have been affected, according to advices received here.

BRITISH DEMANDS FOR MORATORIUM HALT DISCUSSIONS

French Delegates to London Parley Amazed at Lloyd George's Proposal on German Question.

NEGOTIATIONS NOW AT A STANDSTILL

Premier's Announcement That He Will Be Out of City on Sunday Leads to Meeting Without Him.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The French delegation to the conference on German affairs was amazed to learn today that the British Government proposes and insists upon arbitration of the German reparations payments to about one-third the amounts fixed by the London schedule of payments of May, 1921—that is, cancel the annual cash payments of 2,000,000,000 gold marks and to leave only the 26 per cent assessment on German exports.

The text of Premier Lloyd George's proposal, which forms part of the tenth point of the British memorandum, reads:

"Subject to acceptance by the German Government of these guarantees, it will be for the Reparations Commission to grant a moratorium in respect to all cash payments remaining due from Germany up to the 31st of December, 1922, and, further, the Commission shall, as soon as possible, fix the annual payments in cash in respect to all peace treaty charges for the succeeding period at such an amount not exceeding 26 per cent of the value of German exports as they may find to be proper with a view to the early flotation of a loan by the German Government, the major portion of which shall be devoted to the payment of reparations."

Referred to Experts.

Premier Poincare had doubts regarding the interpretation to be placed on this article, and it was one of the points referred by the Premiers to the committee of experts. Only at this afternoons' sitting of the experts' committee did De Lasteyrie, the French Finance Minister, obtain explanations from the British members that it was designed to reduce the total cash payments to a sum amounting to 26 per cent of the value of German exports, but leaving the possibility still of payments in kind. De Lasteyrie is understood to have informed the committee there was not the least chance of the French Government accepting such an idea, or seriously considering it.

Consequently, the negotiations between the French and British are at a standstill. The members of the French delegation were greatly surprised that Lloyd George should send word to Poincare that he was leaving London over Sunday, thus causing the loss of one day when only two remain before the expiration of the date on which the next German payment is due under the partial moratorium now in operation.

Meeting Without Lloyd George.

There will be a meeting without Lloyd George tomorrow, of Poincare, Theunis of Belgium and Schanzer, the Italian Foreign Minister.

The Italian delegation shares the French view completely; the Belgians less so because Belgian interests in reparations are protected by priorities.

The British Cabinet today unanimously accorded its full support to Prime Minister Lloyd George with regard to the negotiations concerning a moratorium for Germany, and decided to leave the matter entirely in his hands.

The allied experts, who are studying the British proposals in the reparations question, continued sessions this afternoon and expected to conclude their report to the allied Premiers tonight. It is understood however, that there will be no further meeting of the full conference until Monday.

German Expulsion From Alsace-Lorraine Protested.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—A note from the German Government protesting against the expulsion of Germans from Alsace-Lorraine was delivered to the French Government late today. The note also protests against the French attitude with regard to compensation payment, saying it is contrary to the spirit and letter of the Versailles treaty and the subsequent agreements.

Steneck's machine came to a stop facing east, right side up, at the north curb about 30 feet west of the crossing. Witnesses said Steneck was driving fast, although he claimed he was traveling less than 15 miles an hour.

SHIPMENT OF SLACK WOULD MEAN SAVING TO THE CITY

Comptroller Says He Is Unwilling to Take Steps to Get Delivery Unless Mayor Acts With Him.

Shipment from O'Fallon, Ill., to St. Louis of 5000 tons of slack coal, purchased two weeks ago by the city but not moved because of the attitude of the striking coal miners at O'Fallon, would not only relieve a shortage seriously affecting city institutions, but result in a considerable saving to the city, Comptroller Nolte said yesterday. The coal at O'Fallon was purchased at $3.25 a ton, delivered in St. Louis. The city is now paying $8 a ton, delivered price, for virtually the same grade of coal purchased in the open maket.

The Comptroller said that he was unwilling to take steps to obtain delivery of the O'Fallon coal unless Mayor Kiel acted with him. "I think the city should get the coal immediately and am willing to go over and see what can be done if the Mayor will go with me," Nolte said.

Mayor Kiel, said the Comptroller had full authority to act in the matter of obtaining coal. The Mayor and Comptroller went to O'Fallon a week ago yesterday in an unsuccessful effort to induce the striking miners to permit the loading of the coal. When an effort was made to ship the coal shortly after the purchase, the miners refused to permit it. According to a city employe, one of the strikers said, "You ought to remember the Herrin incident."

MRS. HAZEL KINGSLAND RENO AND HARRY C. WALL MARRIED

Bride Is Divorced Wife of Former St. Louis University Law Instructor.

It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Hazel Kingsland Reno, 26 years old, of 5660 Kingsbury place, and Harry C. Wall of 7416 Westmoreland drive, St. Louis County, were married last Monday at "Forest Home," the home of Mrs. Wall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kingsland, near Hillsboro, Mo.

It was known among their friends that they were to be married, but the ceremony was unexpected at this time, even to Wall's father, Charles W. Wall, former president of Meyer Bros. Drug Co.

The bride is the divorced wife of John B. Reno, formerly an instructor in law at St. Louis University. At the trial of her suit in 1920, she was awarded custody of her children, Mary K., 3½ years, and John K., 2. She is a granddaughter of the late John D. Hearst of New York, uncle of William Randolph Hearst.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. George Steel and was very quiet, owing to illness of the bride's mother.

Wall is a stock and bond broker with offices in the Boatmen's Bank Building. He is a graduate of Smith Academy. His bride is a graduate of Central High School and Mary Institute.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Wall will make a wedding journey to the Carolinas. It was said today, however, at Wall's parents' home that he had departed for Greenwich, Conn., and that Mrs. Wall had remained in St. Louis.

BIELASKI ABSOLVED OF ALL GUILT IN KIDNAPING CASE

Full Clearance Papers Issued by Mexican Judge After Inquiry Into Affairs.

By the Associated Press.

CUERNEVACA, Mexico, Aug. 12.—A. Bruce Bielaski, former American Department of Justice official, was formally absolved of all guilt in the recent kidnaping episode in which he was the central figure when Judge Quiros, who has been conducting the examination into the affair, issued full clearance papers this afternoon.

$750,000 FRAUD IS CHARGED TO 3 FIRMS

Violations of Postal Laws Alleged and Indictments Against 11 Chicago Persons Made.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Indictments charging 11 persons with violation of the postal laws, in connection with alleged stock selling swindles aggregating $750,000 were made public today in the United States District Court Clerk's office.

Three companies, all of them alleged mail fraud violators, were named. They are the Dragon Motor Co., the Jackson Fire Brick Co. and the Caterpillar Manufacturing Co. The Dragon Motors was said to have obtained the most money, more than $250,000, by falsely representing that the company was turning out one automobile a day and had orders booked for $600,000 worth of cars. All of the Dragon stock, it was alleged, was sold through the Neidick Finance Corporation, with offices throughout the country. The company was headed by Herman Neidick, Joseph Stein and Hyman Edelman.

Abe L. Salzban, Bernard H. Schwab and Mate B. Pastel were said to be the owners of the Jackson Fire Brick Co., alleged to have a plant at Jackson, Tenn. The indictment charges that the bonds that they sold were not even a lien on the property and that their claims to having a church, missionary and other buildings for their employes were untrue.

The Caterpillar concern sold territorial rights to a device which it was claimed would remake old automobile tires. It was said to be headed by Charles Weidman, W. C. Weidman, John A. Suibart, E. J. Anderson and M. E. Pohly.

NEGRO CHARGED WITH KILLING MAN ON TOP OF FREIGHT TRAIN

Sam Simpson, 39, of East St. Louis, Held for Murder in Hillsboro, Ill.

HILLSBORO, Ill., Aug. 12.—Sam Simpson, 39 years old, negro, of East St. Louis, is being held here on a charge of murdering Edward Card, 22, white, of Nokomis, on top of a freight train at Joan, a station just south of Hillsboro, last night. Card's body was found on the car by members of the train crew. It was learned that the negro had been on the train, but had left it at Joan and was returning to East St. Louis when he was arrested at Livingston and brought to Hillsboro.

Blood stains were found on the shirt, shoes and hat of the negro. The theory of the officers is that Simpson was attempting to loot the freight train of meat which was being carried and that Card, who has been out of work and was "bumming" his way back to Nokomis, walked along the top of the train and was mistaken by the negro for a railroad detective.

Card's head was badly mutilated, evidently from being struck three or four times with some blunt instrument. Card is survived by his wife and one child in East St. Louis.

BEAT WAITER TO DEATH WITH SPIKED STICK, MAN CONFESSES

James Jones, Taxi Company Employe, Declares Former Chauffeurs Attacked Him.

James Jones, 27 years old, of 3410 Washington avenue, a solicitor for the Yellow and Columbia taxicab companies at Union Station, confessed yesterday that he had beaten Charles Rodenhauser, 25, of 5858 Cates avenue, a waiter, with a stick in which there were five nails during an argument in an alley between Lucas and Washington avenues on Eighth street, Friday night. Rodenhauser died at the city hospital.

Jones declared that the argument started when Rodenhauser and two other chance acquaintances, upon learning that he was working in the place of former taxicab chauffeurs who have been on strike, started "to beat hell out of him."

ALLEGED BANK FRAUD SCHEME DISCLOSED

Each Institution Purchased With Nonexistent Funds in the Other, Officers Say.

By the Associated Press.

COLGATE, Ok., Aug. 12.—The Parker Valley Bank at Parker, Ariz., has been closed because of the closing of the First State Bank of Clarita, this county, County Attorney E. N. Holland announced today that he had been advised by the Bank Commissioner of Arizona. A warrant has been issued there, according to Holland's information, for Alvin E. Smith, vice president of the Parker institution. Holland was informed by Arizona authorities that they believe Smith is en route to Oklahoma.

An investigation of the affairs of the Clarita Bank, according to Holland, shows that G. L. West, former Oklahoma City real estate dealer, bought the bank about 30 days ago with funds purporting to be in the Parker Valley Bank. West, who is in jail here on numerous criminal charges growing out of the failure, became vice president of the Clarita Bank.

Smith, the investigation shows, according to Holland, bought the Parker Valley Bank with funds supposed to be in the Clarita Bank. In neither instance did the money exist, Holland said.

Smith is a former resident of Oklahoma City and was an officer in a day and night bank which failed there some years ago, Coal County authorities say.

Sheriff Freeman left last night for Los Angeles to return here for trial H. C. Staggs of that city, who is under arrest charged with being involved in a conspiracy to wreck the Clarita Bank. Gov. J. B. A. Robertson has issued requisition papers for his return to Oklahoma.

A warrant was also issued here today for Frank Thompson of Los Angeles, charging him with participating in the collapse of the Clarita institution. According to local authorities Smith and Staggs sold fictitious notes to the Clarita Bank and accepted time deposit certificates in payment. Certificates to the amount of $40,000 were issued by the Clarita Bank in this manner, Holland said, and $18,000 of these were sold at a big discount in California by Thompson.

LINDELL BOULEVARD HOMES ENTERED THROUGH SCREENS

Money and Purse Taken at Each Place; Escaping Thief Stumbles After Shots.

Two homes on Lindell boulevard and one on West Pine boulevard were entered by a burglar early yesterday. He removed the screen from a window in each place early yesterday.

Gaynor Paddock, 3928A Lindell boulevard, on being awakened at 5 a. m., saw a man leave a window in the rear. He fired two shots at the man, who fled through a yard after leaping from the second floor. He said the burglar stumbled after one of the shots. A purse and $15 was taken.

The shots awakened Mrs. Anna Barringer, 3916 Lindell boulevard, who discovered that a screen had been cut in her home and a purse containing $21.75 taken.

At the home of Mrs. Stella Flautt, 3638 West Pine boulevard, a screen was removed and a purse containing $27 and belonging to Mrs. James Mallory of New Orleans, La., a guest, was taken.

LOCKED IN ON FIFTH FLOOR, HE GETS AID OF FIREMEN

Al Grossman, of the S. Schultz Millinery Co., 714 Washington avenue, was busy on the fifth floor when everybody else went home yesterday afternoon and when he wanted to go he found himself locked in. The prospect of spending Sunday on the fifth floor did not appeal to him. He called up the Fire Department and asked that a ladder truck be sent to get him out.

Truck Company No. 6 was sent. A ladder was put up to the fire escape at the second floor and two ladder men scampered up the fire escape to the fifth floor, where Grossman was looking out of a window.

He is 45 years old and too heavy to carry, and the ladder men had doubts about his ability to climb down, but he said he could and under their coaching he slowly descended, watched by a crowd which was gathered, and was applauded when he reached the sidewalk.

Somebody suggested that a $500 contribution too the firemen's pension fund would be about right. "Charge it," said Grossman.

MAN SHOT IN BACK AND ARM NEAR HIS RESTAURANT

Man Named by Victim Denies Knowledge of Shooting in Statement to Police.

Athanas Bazdekis, 27 years old, of 1813 Morgan street, a part owner of a restaurant at Broadway and O'Fallon street, was shot in the back and in the left arm during an affray in or near the restaurant at 9 o'clock last night. His condition is critical. Police found him on the sidewalk near the restaurant with a revolver in his hand. Before becoming unconscious he accused Joseph Londo, 614 Biddle street, of the shooting.

Londo was arrested at his home shortly afterward. He denied the shooting and said that he went to the Columbia Theater last night, but police say he was unable to tell anything about the performance. Police have been unable to learn a reason for the shooting.

Fight for Existence in Coal Competition Urged

Too Much Coal Menaces Industry, F. S. Peabody Tells Engineers' Institute.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Free competition, involving "a gigantic struggle for existence" among the nation's 10,000 coal mines, in which the fittest will survive, will solve the problem of overdevelopment and save the country $400,000,000 a year which now is wasted, F. S. Peabody, of Chicago, member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurigic gical Engineers' declared today in a report to the Federated American Engineering Societies.

"Too much coal has become a national menace to the industry and to the pocket-books of the consuming public," he said, "and is costing Americans 80 cents for every ton dropped into their bins.

Diagnosing the ills of the industry, he said:

"Prior to the war there were 6000 shipping mines in operation. At the close of the war there were 10,000, which, if operated full time, would produce 100 per cent more coal than is needed for consumption and export."

Allowing for interruptions due to accidents, failure of car supplies and other "uncontrollable features which seem inherent in the coal industry," Peabody asserted, "it is safe to say that the present developed capacity of the bitumionus coal mines in the United States is fully one-third greater than any possible demand."

Computing the cost he estimates the total investment in mines at $2,000,000,000. One-third of this represents overdevelopment, he said, which at 6 per cent annually costs the nation $40,000,000.

Waste of man-power is the second item mentioned. Of the 700,000 bituminous miners, there are 200,000 too many, Peabody maintained. Their wages, at $1500 per annum, represent the annual waste of $300,000,000.

Under present conditions, the 10,000 mines each averages 100 idle days a year. Based on his experience as the operator of 36 mines in 11 districts, Peabody estimated the annual upkeep of the nation's mines during periods of idleness at more than $50,000,000.

"In dollars and cents, therefore, we have an item in the country's annual coal bill of about $400,000,000 which is directly caused by overdevelopment. Since the normal consumption of bituminous, including exports, is about 500,000,000 tons yearly, this overdevelopment is costing us about 80 cents for every ton mined."

All the remedies suggested, including Government ownership, general regulation of prices and immunity from anti-trust laws, he discarded as impractical. The first because of Federal closing of excess mines would result in the immediate loss of $600,000,000 in invested capital and the loss of jobs to 200,000 men. The second because price regulation "would only perpetuate the wave" and the third for the same reason.

The cure, then "is do nothing" declares Peabody.

"Under free competition, with general industrial conditions normal the 10,000 units of the bituminous coal industry will be forced into a gigantic struggle for existence, in which the fittest will survive and those least able to stand the strain will be forced out."

This system, he estimated, will take about 10 years. At the end of that period, however, he declared, "we will have only the most efficient mines, able to produce coal at the lowest cost, and while the struggle for existence continues, competition can be depended upon to maintain a low level of prices. The situation is one that is bound to work directly to the benefit of the coal consumer."

PROTESTS AGAINST WAR CLAIMS PLAN

Senator Underwood Objects to Joint Commission to Pass on Claims Against Germany.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Formal protest against the action of the administration in concluding an agreement with the German government for establishment of a joint commission to pass on American war claims against Germany was made today by Senator Underwood of Alabama, Democratic Senate leader, in a letter to Chairman Cummins of the Judiciary Sub-committee.

The sub-committee has before it Senator Underwood's bill for an all-American commission to adjudicate war claims.

Senator Underwood in his letter challenged the contention of the State Department and White House that the precedents existed for the administration course, and added:

"No President, to my knowledge, has ever entered into such an agreement providing for the adjudication of claims arising out of war. Perhaps this is due to the fact that the Presidents, with but a few nominal exceptions, have not entered an agreement for the adjustment of a private claim of a foreigner against the United States without securing the approval of the Senate. But I think that it is chiefly because the settlement of war claims is necessarily part and parcel with the treaty of peace which, of course, under our Constitution, must be submitted to the Senate for its advice and ratification."

Senator Underwood said the administration plan does not provide a legal method for determining or paying Americans who had suffered damages and does not provide for disposition of German property taken over by the Alien Property Custodian. Under his bill, American claims would be expedited, Senator Underwood said.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—The agreement signed here for the appointment of a commission to settle American claims against Germany marks a significant step forward for Germany and represents dealings noticeably in contrast with the methods of the Entente in negotiating with Germany, according to the unanimous opinion today of the Berlin press.

Held for Firing at Street Car.

August Haarstick, 33 years old, of 154 Victor street, a cable splicer, was arrested last night at Fourth and Walnut streets after he had fired a revolver at a Manchester street car, the bullet breaking a window in the car. Alvin Engelke, 6418 Nashville avenue, conductor on the car, told police that Haarstick had been put off the car just before he fired the shot, for refusing to pay his fare. Police say Haarstick had been drinking.

NO VOTES FOR REED CAST ON G. O. P. BALLOTS IN OSAGE

An examination of the primary returns of Osage County, one of the Missouri River counties having a large German population, has shown that the statement contained in a Post-Dispatch story the day following the primary that Republicans in Osage County voted in large numbers for Senator Reed, was an error.

The statement was based upon the fact that the 1922 Democratic primary vote in Osage County was three times the Democratic primary vote of 1920. It appears from an examination of the complete returns that in 1920 the Democratic vote in Osage County fell off sharply, probably because of dissatisfaction with the war policy of the Democratic administration, the Democratic vote in 1920 increasing only 358 with the women voting, while the Republican vote increased 1788. In 1922 the Republican vote fell 1500 from the general election vote of 1920, and the Democratic vote increased by 600.

This would indicate that the heavy vote this year meant a return of the German Democrats to the Democratic party to vote for Reed. The returns also indicated there were no votes for Reed on Republican ballots. The vote for uncontested Democratic candidates was even larger than the total Reed and Long vote.

MAJORITY OF WRECK VICTIMS RECOVERED

13 of 56 Persons Injured Have Been Discharged From St. Louis Hospitals as Restored to Health.

Practically all the 56 persons who were injured in the Missouri Pacific Railroad wreck at Sulphur Springs a week ago last night, in which 34 were killed, are greatly improved in St. Louis hospitals and 13 have been discharged as restored to health.

Mrs. Mattie Degonia of 8410 Reilly avenue, however, has not recovered sufficiently to be told that three of her small children are dead and the fourth and her young husband lie injured in the Missouri Pacific Hospital, and neither is little Ruth Eickenberger, 4 years old, of Hopewell, Mo., well enough to know that her father, Rudolph Eickenberger, 54, was killed and she is an orphan.

Mrs. Degonia, who is 26 years old, is at the Jewish Hospital with a broken leg and cuts about the head. Ruth, who is at St. John's recovering from a skull fracture and internal injuries, will be adopted by a grandmother who lives in the city. Six-year-old Harry Koby of 5814 Garfield avenue, who is at the Baptist Hospital with fractures of the skull and leg, does not know that he lost his mother, Mrs. Mathilda Koby, and his little sister, Mildred.

With the exception of a very few who developed unexpected complications which have not increased the gravity of their condition as first understood, but have delayed improvement, the victims are considered well on the road to health. Eight of the 35 who were taken to the Missouri Pacific Hospital have been discharged, and none remaining are considered serious, although some with broken bones may have to stay a long time.

Flora Lee Weiss, a baby, who suffered cuts of the body, has been taken home from the Baptist Hospital, although her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Weiss, 24, of 3814 South Jefferson avenue, remains at the hospital with bruises and cuts of the back and head. The two who went to the city hospital, C. J. Hamilton and Robert Thomas of Desarc, Mo., were able to leave the next day. Harry King, 20, of 1921 Franklin avenue, who was at first thought to have a fractured skull, has been found able to leave St. John's, and Louis J. Roberts, 67, of Chicago, also has been discharged from that hospital.

In visiting hours this week the hospitals have been thronged with relatives and acquaintances of the injured.

Second Damage Suit Resulting From Wreck Filed.

The second damage suit resulting from the Missouri Pacific train wreck at Sulphur Springs last Saturday was filed in the Circuit Court here yesterday in behalf of Audrey Dalton, 6 years old, of 1042A Hickory street, seeking $10,000 damages from the railroad for an injury to the child's ankle and bruises on her body. The child's name did not appear in a list of the injured published Monday. The suit was filed by Audrey's mother, Mrs. Bessie Dalton.

The first suit was filed Thursday in behalf of Paul Smith, 11, of 1847 Biddle street, for $65,000 for a fracture of the right leg, injury to the right arm and nervous shock.

PUBLIC HEARINGS ON 43 PAVING JOBS SCHEDULED

Projects Totaling 14 Miles and to Cost More Than $1,000,000 to Be Discussed on September Dates

18 DAYS ALLOWED FOR FILING OF PROTESTS

Following Hearings, Ordinances Authorizing Construction Work on Each of Jobs Will Be Prepared.

Public hearings on 43 street paving projects, estimated to cost more than $1,000,000, have been scheduled at the city hall by the Board of Public Service for four dates in September. The 43 projects, totaling 14 miles of paving, represent 27 per cent of the approximately 53 miles of paving in the program outlined for 1923.

Estimated completed yesterday by board engineers on 36 of the paving jobs set for hearing in September total $1,012,390. The other six, when finished, probably will increase the total to $1,250,000.

Ordinances creating special benefit or taxing districts for the 43 paving jobs were passed by the Board of Aldermen in June. Following the public hearings on the improvements next month the Board of Public Service will prepare ordinances authorizing construction work on each of the jobs. These ordinances will be placed before the Board of Aldermen when it convenes Sept. 15. None of the contracts will be let this year as the legislative processes probably will not be completed before January.

Delay of 18 Days Required.

The city charter requires a delay of 18 days after a hearing on a public improvement taxing district during which time property owners may file a protest. At the end of that period the construction ordinance is forwarded to the Board of Aldermen. An average of six weeks is required for passage. A 10-day period is allowed for the Mayor to sign the ordinance, and it then holds over 30 days under the referendum provision of the charter before it becomes effective. The Board of Public Service then may advertise for bids on the construction.

Engineers for the Board of Public Service are completing the preliminary work on 28 miles of paving in the 1923 program for which no legislation has been passed. Ordinances establishing benefit or taxing districts for these projects will be placed before the Board of Aldermen this fall and public hearings will be held the latter part of the year or early in 1923, following the passage of the ordinances. Both taxing district and construction ordinances have been passed by the Board of Aldermen for 11 miles of paving in the 1923 program.

The Board of Public Service has arranged to handle the hearings set for September in four sessions, scheduled for Sept. 1, 5, 8 and 12.

Hearings on Projects.

The hearings, by groups, with the improvement projects and the preliminary estimates of cost, follow:

Hearings, Sept. 1—Geraldine avenue, Lillian to Thekla, $19,700; Neosho street, King's highway to 525 feet west of King's highway, $7500; Wilson avenue, Cooper to Edwards, $10,150; Blase avenue, Broadway to west line of Kuh's subdivision, $6900; Wiesehan avenue, King's highway to Korn, $11,300; Beacon avenue, Lillian to Prange, $14,200; Bancroft avenue, 240 feet west of Brannon to Macklind, $11,250; Brannon avenue, Sutherland to Bancroft, $4600; Missouri avenue, Keokuk to Chippewa, $10,500; Bates street, Grand-King's highway to Gravois, $144,600; Forest Park boulevard, Grand to Vandeventer, $46,500; Forest Park boulevard, Boyle to King's highway, $69,300.

ONE KILLED, 2 HURT WHEN AUTO HITS TRAIN

Wreck Is Second in Four Weeks at Same Crossing Near Edwardsville.

Joseph Lalaker, 30 years old, of Wilsonville, Ill., a striking coal miner, was killed and two others injured, one probably fatally, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a Toledo, St. Louis & Western passenger train at 3:25 p. m. yesterday, a short distance east of Edwardsville, Ill., at a curved road crossing in a cut, known as "death trap," due to numerous accidents at that point.

Joseph Katrick, 35, Wilsonville, is not expetced to live. Tony Paterits, 33, also of Wilsonville, escaped with minor injuries.

The machine, said to have been traveling at high speed, rounded the curve just as the passenger train, hidden from view by an embankment, was crossing the road. The automobile struck the train near the rear truck of the baggage car, was caught by the steps of the first coach and dragged for 75 feet, then thrown aside.

Paterits, the driver, was thrown from the machine before it came to a halt. Lalaker and Katrick, riding in the back seat were thrown against the side of the train.

The trio had been visiting friends at Collinsville and were returning to Wilsonville. The two injured men and the body of Lalaker were taken to Edwardsville.

This is the second motor wreck at this crossing in four weeks. The wreckage of another automobile still lies a few yards east of the tracks. Ben Middleton, seriously injured in this accident, is in a hospital at Edwardsville. The wrecked auto had been dragged to one side of the road and left there as a warning to motorists.

A request from the Madison County Farm Bureau for grading down the embankment is pending before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

40 JEWS, POLITICAL PRISONERS, REPORTED SLAIN IN RUMANIA

All Had Been Granted Amnesty and Were Leaving Prison Camp When Shot, It Is Reported.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 12.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency.)—Forty Jews sentenced for various political offenses, were executed by the Rumanian military authorities despite the recent amnesty decree by the King, says a report to the local Magyarorszag.

The prisoners are said to have been shot one by one while proceeding under escort from the prison camp at Julawa forest to Kishineff, where they were to be delivered and released.

WOMAN ROBBED OF BAGGAGE

Negro Left to Watch Auto Disappears with Suit Cases.

Mrs. Martha B. Black of 9831 Eugenia avenue, St. Louis County, was robbed of several suit cases and parcels at Sixth and Pine streets yesterday at noon by a negro. Her son, M. A. Black, had driven her downtown in his machine, and had placed the suit cases in a rear seat. He left her sitting in the machine and went across the street to the Commercial Building for a few minutes. Meanwhile a negro, described by Mrs. Black as looking like a "neat porter," approached her and told her that Black wanted her to join him, and that he had given him 50 cents to watch the machine while they were both gone. Mrs. Black started across the street, and, turning around, saw that the negro and her suit cases had disappeared.

STRIKER WOUNDED FATALLY IN ATTACK ON RAIL FOREMAN

Hosea Venerable, 40, Dies After Fight at Brooklyn, Ill., in Which A. E. Arnold Was Critically Wounded.

ANOTHER ASSAILANT SERIOUSLY INJURED

One of Venerable's Five Companions Tells Police They Intended to "Trim" Arnold.

Hosea Venerable, 40 years old, of 2521 South Tenth street, a striking railroad shopman, died at the city hospital at 9 o'clock last night from gunshot wounds suffered when he and four companions attacked A. E. Arnold, 43, night roundhouse foreman for the Terminal Railroad, at Brooklyn, Ill., in the rear of Arnold's home, 523 North Twenty-third street, East St. Louis, between 4 and 4:30 p. m.

Arnold, who fired at Venerable and the other assailants, was himself shot and critically wounded, and is not expected to recover. One of the others in the attacking party, James Callahan, 28, of 7126 Idaho avenue, was shot and seriously injured. He and Venerable and one of their companions, Fred Benish, 21, of 2114 De Kalb street, who took them to the city hospital in a taxicab, were arrested there.

Planned a "Good Beating."

Benish told a Post Dispatch reporter and St. Louis and East St. Louis detectives that he and Venerable, Callahan and two other men, who were known to him, had gone from a union meeting in St. Louis at noon with the intention of giving Arnold, to whom he referred as "Scaley," "a good beating."

He explained that "scaley" is a term applied to men who work during a strike, being synonimical with "scab."

Benish said they were all five striking shopmen, he and Venerable having worked at the St. Louis shops of the American Refrigerator Transit Co., Callahan at the Ivory avenue yards of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and the other two, whom he did not know so well, had worked, he thought, for the Terminal Railroad.

During the night George (Judge) Lewis, 30, was arrested at his home, 2103 Chippewa street. He was one of the men in the party which went after Arnold, Benish said. Lewis is a striking car repairer, who worked for the American Refrigerator Transit Co.

"General foremen didn't have to strike," Benish said, "but Arnold was only a straight foreman. He stayed at work. We figured to give him a good trimming, to hold him in the house at least two weeks. He had 14 'scaleys' working under him and we thought that if we beat him up we would put 15 men out of the running for a couple of weeks.

Changed His Story.

Benish at first had asserted that a stranger had accosted him and Venerable and Callahan "somewhere" in East St. Louis and shot the two men when they refused to throw up their hands.

Callahan told detectives that he and Venerable and Benish were accosted by a stranger southeast of the municipal bridge approach in East St. Louis and that the stranger shot them. Venerable was too seriously wounded to make a statement. He is married, as is Callahan.

Arnold had started to go out in his machine with his wife and two daughters, aged 13 and 15, respectively. Mrs. Arnold said they were all in the machine but her husband when the five strangers drove up. Three of them got out of their car, she said, and one of these struck her husband over the head with a "billy," which he then dropped. It was a piece of ruber hose, loaded with wire or some heavy substance.

STRIKE OF TRAINMEN AT DUPO IS STOPPED

Members of the "Big Four" brotherhoods employed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Dupo, Ill., at a meeting at Dupo last night ratified action taken by their representatives yesterday in a conference with company officials which everted the continuance of the strike of the 300 trainmen threatened at Dupo unless armed guards to whom the men objected were removed.

The conference resulted in an agreement by the company to remove the guards upon assurances by representatives of the trainmen that there would be no disorders at Dupo.

J. E. Moran, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on the Missouri Pacific, said last night that the guards have been removed and that the trainmen have resumed work as usual. "The incident is closed and we expect nothing more to come of it," Moran said.

The trainmen struck at 11 o'clock Friday night after guards had fired several shots, which struck two or three houses and slightly wounded two persons. The trainmen returned to work, however, at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, pending the outcome of the conference.

It was said last night that about 30 guards who had been on duty at Dupo were removed, leaving about seven who were on duty before the strike and to whom the trainmen do not object.

BROTHERS WHO SHOT MAN TO BE CHARGED WITH MURDER

Victim Fatally Wounded Aug. 2 at Neelyville, Mo., in Quarrel Growing Out of Domestic Tangle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., Aug. 12.—Murder charges will be filed against Jim and Tom Bullock, brothers, Neelyville men, for the fatal shooting of Lee Dollins, at Neelyville on Aug. 2. This action was planned today following the death of Dollins from his injuries last night.

The trouble leading to the shooting grew out of a domestic tangle implicating Jim Bullock, and Mr. and Mrs. John Smart. Smart accused his wife of improper conduct with Bullock. After beating her he went to Bullock's home, accompanied by Dollins. The Bullock brothers came out armed. After an alteration shots were exchanged. Dollins' arm was badly shattered from a shotgun discharge and he was wounded in the abdomen by a bullet from the pistol. The Bullock brothers are in jail, having failed to obtain bond.

CREEL HEADS ORGANIZATION FOR COMBATING CENSORSHIP

Theatrical and Literary Men Join to Promote and Protect Art and Literature.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Formation of a joint committee for the promotion and protection of art and literature, composed of members representing theatrical and literary societies, was announced today by George Creel, chairman.

"The purpose of the committee is to unite and direct every possible force in the fight against censorship," said Creel, "no matter what the form or manifestation. The spirit of narrow-minded intolerance, proceeding from the motion picture, has commenced to threaten the drama and literature, and unless resisted, it is only a question of time when every product of the creative instinct will be called upon to run a gauntlet of beadles."

The organizations represented on the committee are: The Actors' Equity Association, American Federation of Musicians, Authors' League of America, Cinema Camera Club, Guild of Free Lance Artists, Motion Picture Directors' Association, Printing Trades Union, Screen Writers' Guild and American Dramatists.

EDISON GOES SLOW ON PLUG GIVEN HIM BY HARDING

Inventor Explains It is the Only One He Ever Received From a President.

By the Associated Press.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 12.—Carefully biting off a small piece of tobacco from a thick, black plug, Thomas A. Edison explained to those near him that he was conserving the plug because it was a gift from President Harding during the camping trip made by the President, Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone and himself in the Cumberland Mountains last year.

An official of the company had told Edison his sons had just returned from Washington, where they had shaken hands with President Harding.

"That so?" said the inventor. "The President is a fine fellow. He gave me this plug of tobacco last year. I don't allow myself to go strong on this. I want it to last a long time. It's the only plug of tobacco I ever had from a President."

MANY GASOLINE EXECUTIVES TO BE QUESTIONED ON PRICES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Several days probably will be required for arranging the list of oil and gasoline corporation heads who are to be called before the Senate Manufacturers' Committee in its gasoline price investigation, Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, acting chairman, stated today.

In the committee's effort to "get to the heart of the oil industry" it appeared today virtually certain that the active managers of most of the big oil companies would be subpenaed. On the tentative list were A. C. Bedford of the Standard Oil Co. of New York; Col. W. W. Stewart of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana; H. F. Sinclair of the Sinclair group; J. E. O'Neill of the Prairie Oil and Gas Co.; Walter C. Teagle of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and, probably, E. L. Doheny, the California operators.

NEW STATE HOSPITAL PLANNED

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug 12.—Construction work may start this fall on a new state hospital, on the University of Missouri campus, immediately south of the present hospital used by the University, according to M. U. officers in the school of medicine. The hospital, which is to have 50 beds, will be used as a general hospital connected with Parker Memorial Hospital, and when the new million dollar state hospital now planned gets under way, the 50-bed hospital is to be turned into a children's hospital, according to present plans.

One-quarter of a million dollars was appropriated by the last general assembly for the erection of one wing of the proposed million dollar hospital. Recent bids, submitted to the board of curators, for the construction of the single wing, all proved to be too expensive for the $250,000 appropriation, President J. C. Jones of the University says.

Magazine and Ammunition Blow Up

BENICIA, Cal., Aug. 12.—One of the three powder magazines at the Benicia arsenal was destroyed and a quantity of old ammunition in open dumps exploded today in a fire believed to have been caused by the accidental discharge of a shrapnell shell.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

THE street car conductor, whose efforts to get along with the public are not always appreciated, has his defender and his admirers among the writers for the Post-Dispatch What-Did-You-See-Today Department. The motorman, who encounters less friction as a rule, has also his well-wishers among the contributers of incidents. Some golden words in behalf of street car employes are spoken in the paragraphs selected to lead today's list. All the writers will receive $1 each.

HELPFUL.

I saw a conductor assist two aged women to alight from a car, and assist them across the street past oncoming automobiles.

M. I. SANGUINET,

SERVICE.

An elderly lady approached conductor's vestibule on a crowded car at Seventh and Morgan, asking if Bellefontaine car was running along that street. Though he was busy collecting the fares from a large crowd of passengers, he did not slam the door on her, but politely informed the lady that Bellefontaine line, going north, can be reached two blocks west, on Ninth street. "But, I have a transfer," said the lady. "Kindly step in, and I will fix it up for you," was conductor's reply. He gave her a new transfer in exchange for the one she had, and told her where to get off, when transferring point was reached. He is the most accommodating conductor I have ever seen, and he was in charge of Cass car No. 2333.

MISS MARIE POLITOWITZ,
1421 Cass Avenue.

A TRANCE-BREAKER.

I saw an Olive conductor step to the door and whistle to a young lady who was standing on the sidewalk, absorbed in a newspaper. She ran and boarded the car, after which we moved on.

W. D. M.,
5062 Geraldine avenue.

HELPED A MOTHER.

I saw a thoughtful motorman on a Union car. A mother and her two children were waiting for the car one block from a yellow "stop" pole. The car went on to the next corner and the motorman called to the woman to come on, that he would wait for her and her babies. They got aboard with many thanks for the kind-hearted motorman.

A PASSENGER,
5309 Easton avenue.

MOTOR-GENTLEMAN.

While riding on a Page street car, a deaf and dumb woman extended to the motorman a slip of paper which contained directions to reach her destination. On reaching Eighteenth street and Washington avenue the motorman stopped the car, escorted the woman across the street and turned her over to a man in front of a hotel. The motorman then returned to the car.

MRS. J. L. ROHLING,

INSECT STRIFE.

I saw two ants carrying a dead cricket, and seeming to have a hard time of it. Stooping down, I saw that it wasn't a case of co-operation, but a contest to see which would walk away with the cricket.

MRS. ROSE BOBER,

ABUSING THE FLAG.

A builder's truck passed by with a scantling sticking out the rear. At the end, as a danger signal, hung a much-bedraggled American flag.

MRS. A. DEVOTO,
5312 Union Bl.

REINFORCED.

I saw a woman buying cigars for her husband in a drug store. The clerk asked her if she wanted mild or strong cigars. She told him he had better give her strong cigars, for her husband had a habit of breaking the others in his pocket!

E. HENDRICKS SR.,
4202 North Euclid Av.

LIKE THE OFFICE.

My absent-minded business partner, with whom I had gone into a cafeteria for lunch, put his tray of food on the table, took his coat off and rolled up his sleeves, prepared to go to work again.

R. K. A.

SOUGHT EGRESS.

A bewildered rustic wandered around the corridors of the Postoffice, and finally, in desperation, asked a policeman where the "entrance to the outside" was.

G. SPENCER,
5527 Vernon.

HELP THE POOR.

I noticed a sign on a box in a polling place which read: "Poor Box." I contributed a quarter upon being told that the funds were to go for "starving Jews." But I found out later that the contributions were for the thirsty election clerks.

MATHEW N. MESSMER,
132 Florence Av., St. Louis County.

SIDEWALK VAUDEVILLE.

I saw a man and a woman stop in front of the Columbia Theater, place a shoe box on a newsboy's stand, open it, and begin eating their lunch that was inside. They appeared oblivious to all the passersby.

CHARLES VAUGHN,
3519 Blaine avenue.

HATS ARE HIS RELISH.

I saw a black horse hitched to a large wagon in the wholesale district, reach over a man's shoulder, get a large mouthful of his straw hat. Then the man gave the horse the remainder of the hat. I learned afterwards that this horse has eight straw hats to his credit.

H. HARRY,
615 North Theresa avenue.

ABORIGINAL TASTE.

She was a tall young Indian girl —a Papago, about 18 years old. She stood before a large mirror in a downtown department store and viewed her full-length reflected image with satisfaction. She was shy, and continually looked around to see if anyone was looking at her. She wore a new dress of purple silk made in the fashion of 70 years ago. The skirt was wide and ruffled and touched the floor. A pink silk scarf covered her head, and her long, black braids were tied with a red ribbon. Finally, one of the sales girls laughed, and the Indian maid gave a horrified little shriek and fled from the store.

IMPROVING THE TIME.

I saw four girls at the Forest Park tennis courts playing bridge to pass the time until they got a court to play on. One said, "we just hate to waste the time, you know."

OUR SPARKLING TOWN.

Returning to St. Louis a few days ago from Jackson, Mo., two young men also coming here from the same town stepped into Union Station and I heard one say, "we may as well spend the day here so long as a picnic is going on." The station was crowded and I presume that the "booths and all" gave the appearance of a picnic to these visitors.

BERNICE PRYURTCH,

WORTH HIS WHILE.

A well-dressed, middle-aged, intellectual looking man read Grimm's Fairy Tales from the time he boarded an Olive street car at Taylor avenue until the car reached Eighth street, without raising his eyes from the book.

I saw a man, a mirror in one hand, five and one-half inch file in the other, and he had his mouth open as he filed his front tooth.

LOOKED THAT WAY.

I saw a loaded ice wagon with a sign on it reading: "We Have Come to Stay," with one of the rear wheels buried to the hub in a mudhole.

BROWNS BEAT SOX, 7-6; CARDS DROP FROM LEAD

Shocker, Pounded for 17 Hits, Almost Loses Game in Ninth Inning

Fohl's Ace Weakens in Last Two Rounds, Despite 6-Run Margin, and Is Benched During Chicago Rally.

By Dent McSkimming,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 12.—The American League averages that treat of games won and games lost will bear witness that Urban Shocker of the Browns won a game from the Chicago White Sox, 7 runs to 6, today at Comiskey Park. As the ball game actually ran, Shocker was anything in the world except a winning pitcher. The Sox hammered him for 17 hits for a total of 25 bases. There were two doubles and three triples and 12 singles off his offerings.

Only the lax hurling of the once great spitball pitcher served to dim the luster of a remarkable game played by the Brownie team. The fielding was perfect, so far better than average that many solid blows from Chicago bats were held to singles, when the drives looked good for extra bases.

Fohl's team showed initiative on the bases, drive and power at the bat and sound, tight defensive ability. On but 12 hits the Browns outscored the White Sox—and Gleason has no slow club.

Sisler's stretching of a single into a double and Jimmy Austin's alert base running, which enabled him to get a double and a triple on drives which might well have been only a single, and a double, were high lights in the offense.

Highlights of a Big Day.

Hank Severeid's unequaled display of gameness in going behind the plate as the day's catcher, while the middle finger of his throwing hand remained far from healed, and the fast infield play were other features which, from a St. Louis viewpoint, made the game interesting and bespoke future success for the Fohlies.

With the Yankees idle because of rain, the Browns advanced one-half a game over their rivals. A full game now separates the two clubs.

There is no real cause for alarm over the fact that Chicago found it possible to cut down St. Louis' big lead and all but win the game. Were any other pitcher on the hill, getting pounded late in the game, Manager Fohl undoubtedly would have stopped the game quickly and sent in a relief pitcher.

But, because in the past he has established an exceptional record as a pitcher, Shocker's case becomes an unusual one. Just as at Washington where the fading Walter Johnson is often suffered to remain in the box until the enemy has scored enough runs to win, so with St. Louis. The conviction that Shocker is a great pitcher, able to extricate himself from an embarrassing situation, is deep rooted in the hearts of the Brownies. The only trouble is the other clubs in the league are not in the least sentimental.

Browns Give Shocker Wonderful Aid, but Veteran Pitcher Fails to Respond

In the course of the ninth inning rally when the Sox scored four runs and had the tying run on third and the winning run on second, the St. Louis team showed not a sign of weakening. Rather, every effort on the part of the fielders was more impressive than before. They tried hard to save Shocker but he just couldn't respond.

Gleason placed his hope of victory in Courtney to start the game. Chicago still has pennant hopes and the Sox were out to win. Courtney allowed but two hits in the first three innings and the game took on the aspect of a pitcher's battle for Chicago was having difficulty finding Shocker's shoot.

In the fourth Sisler's walk was followed by singles, clean sharp hits, by Jacobson and McManus, and a double by Williams. Severeid met one heartily but his drive was straight at Sheely who converted it into a double play.

Pepper Jim Adds Spice to the Game.

With two out and Marty McManus on third, Jimmy Austin, the gritty, peppery Jimmy, drove Courtney out of the box and chased Bib Falk to the left field fence for a drive which netted three bases. Then Jimmy scored on Gerber's single to left. That hit of Austin's was a triple only because he ran like mad every step of the way and finished by diving head first, into third to beat a perfect throw from Falk. Austin received a thunderous round of applause for his speed and pluck.

Hodge, a righthander, was on the hill after Courtney and he got by the fifth without being scored upon, but in the sixth the barrage was resumed. With one out Austin picked on a cripple and dropped a Texas leaguer in right center. As Austin rounded first Hooper was picking up the ball. Jimmy noticed that the Sox fielder loafed ever so little and, in a flash, Jimmy was hurtling into second. Hooper's throw was good and Eddie Collins knows how to tag a base runner; but somehow Austin was in there ahead of the throw. He went to third on Shocker's infield out and he scored on Gerber's pinch single to center.

Gerber and Tobin scored later on Tobin's walk, Sisler's double to left which bounced behind a roll of tarpaulin, and Eddie Collins' boot to Jacobson's warm grounder.

Blankenship to the Rescue.

Blankenship hurled the seventh, eighth and ninth for Chicago and did a very acceptable job. He held the Browns to one hit, McManus' single to left in the ninth. This poke was followed by a towering drive from Williams' bat which would have carried into Grand boulevard on the home lot. The Sox park, however, has very deep fields and Strunk was under the ball near the fence. His throw to the infield doubled McManus off first.

The Sox had put one over in the first on three hits and they came back in the eighth with another on a trio of safe blows. Entering the last of the ninth the score was 7 to 2, in favor of St. Louis.

Smashing hits were the order until Chicago had driven in three runs and then Pruett was called upon to relieve Shocker and pitch to Falk, a left-handed batter. Falk pulled the ball down the right field line and although Sisler, by a grand effort, got his hands on the ball, he could but deflect it. Falk got a double, scoring the fourth run of the inning and putting a man on third.

Then came to bat Eddie Mulligan, the St. Louis boy who plays third base for the White Sox. Eddie is not regarded a slugger, but his chances of hitting the left-handed curves of Pruett were regarded as much better than his chances of hitting a righthander, so Manager Fohl recalled Pruett and sent Wayne Wright in to finish the job. Wright did. He slipped a couple of strikes over on Mulligan, then Eddie obliged with a roller to McManus whose toss to Sisler retired the last batter of the game.

The appearance of little Joie Ryan, the 12-year-old Brownie mascot, was greeted with generous applause. The youngster was bedecked in a new traveling uniform and made a most favorable impression. Manager Kid Gleason of the Sox was much taken with him and gave him an opporunity to show off for the fans in filding.

Elam Vangilder, whose regular turn to pitch fell due last Wednesday, will go to the hill for the Browns tomorrow. Although Severeid's finger is still badly swollen, he will probably continue behind the bat.

A crowd of close upon 20,000 turned out to see the Browns. The fans generously cheered every good play by the St. Louisans and seemed highly pleased with the exhibition. Sisler is almost as great a hero here as at home.

Frank Ellerbe will probably join the Browns in Washington on Tuesday. The crippled third baseman was left at home when the team left Friday evening.

Sisler Gets 3 Hits And Displaces Cobb From Batting Lead

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—George Sisler, batting star of the St. Louis Browns yesterday soaked the ball at a .750 clip while his rival for the batting honors of the American League, Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, did no better than a .333 gait, and as a result, the Mound City favorite is out in front with an average of .412, compared with a mark of .409 for the Georgia Peach.

Sisler was at bat four times and smashed out three hits and Cobb poled only one hit in three times at bat.

Both players were idle for two days and before the games were resumed today, the Georgia Peach was leading Sisler by a fraction, the race being so close that it was necessary to carry the decimal beyond the customery three figures, which showed Cobb's mark .40956 and Sisler's .40920. Tonight Sisler is three points to the good.

Danforth, in Statement, Tells About His Pitching Technique

Southpaw, Who Will Be Sent to Minor League by Browns, Says He Rubs Hands, Usually Moist, Over One Side of New Baseball, Thrown to Him by Umpire.

Southpaw Dave Danforth, whom the Browns will send to the minor leagues because of his suspension for pitching a "doctored" ball, made a lengthy statement to the Post-Dispatch yesterday, explaining his pitching technique and denying that he had ever used illegal methods.

"This is the first time I have ever told how I throw a ball," said Danforth. "I do not do anything illegal, anything outside the law of pitching, but in the past I always have thought that what I did was my own business, so long as it was honest, and so I always have refused to divulge my method of holding a ball, etc.

"Now, that I am about to be railroaded to the minor leagues, I want to make a statement before a notary public or on a stack of bibles.

"I not only did not put mud in the seams of that ball that Umpire Owens found in that game July 27, but I never put mud or dirt in the seams of any baseball. When I was experimenting with freak pitching in the days when such deliveries were allowed I did try loading seams in the bull pen. But that apparently had no effect on the ball and I never have pitched a ball in a game in my life with loaded seams.

Rubs One Side of the Ball.

"My secret is this: I take a baseball after it is thrown to me by the umpire and rub my hands, usually moist, over one side of the ball. That is the sum total of my special treatment. Every pitcher in baseball rubs the ball with his hands. Why? Because that makes the ball smooth and gives the pitcher a better grip on the ball with his fingers.

"On every baseball, even those fresh from the box, you will find fuzzy spots on the surface and along the seams. Balls which have been used for some time are rougher, the fuzziness is more pronounced. Now when I rub one side I smooth the surface of this fuzz on one side and not on the other.

"I don't know that that makes the ball hop or sail. But it certainly is within the law. The rule that permits a pitcher to rub a ball does not specify that he must rub all the way around, that he must be particular to get every bit of gloss removed. Watch any ball game and you will see the pitcher pat his hand in the dust and then rub the ball. Did I ever pat my hand in the dust? No, because I had been advertised all over the circuit as a cheater and every time I pitched the umpires and players were looking for something to kick about.

"I always rubbed the ball the same way for every pitch and always held the ball the same way, with the smoothed side up. If I found an uneven spot on a ball I never tried to take advantage of it. I would call an umpire's attention and throw it out. My great misfortune was that I did not notice the dirt on that ball that Owens threw out. I guess it made little difference, though. If they were watching me that way they would find some crcumstantial evidence some day and that's all they waited for.

No Sympathy From Fohl.

"I went to Lee Fohl and told him I did nothing more than other pitchers, but he gave me no sympathy. The umpire had put me out and I had no one to fight for me. I asked Fohl to let me pitch and that I would even give up that rub that I had given the ball for so long. But he said 'no chance,' that I was through. I spoke to Quinn and he referred me to Fohl. I am surprised that all the big league clubs waived on me.

"If there is anything illegal in rubbing the hands on the ball, on one side or all sides, then I am guilty of illegal pitching and every other pitched in baseball is equally guilty. But I never have rubbed dirt or any foreign substance on the ball and I never have loaded a seam.

"To put me out of the big leagues because an apparently doctored ball was found in the game appears to me to be rank injustice. I know I cannot change the situation, but I want the public to know that I plead not guilty.

"Ever since I joined the Browns I have been subjected to continual nagging by the umpires, all because of adverse publicity. Umpire Moriarty came out to me in Washington and said, 'I know you, Danforth. You've got some white powder hid about you somewhere.'

"I felt like laughing in his face, but I knew that would anger him. Other umpires decided I must be loading the seams and every time a bit of dirt was found in the seams, I had done it. How can pitchers rub a ball with their dirty, sweaty hands without rubbing some dirt into the seams?

Umpires Always Nagged Him.

"Then the umpires nagged me about my motion to first. One said I didn't step to first. Another said I had a swinging step that was illegal. Another said I stepped, but raised my foot too high, and the whole trouble was that I had perfected a legal motion that would fool the best of base stealers. That didn't look right and so umpires decided I must be doing something wrong.

"But I gave up that motion and I was ready to give up my pitching secret, but because an umpire decided I was guilty I am kicked out of the league, without hearing or another chance. Umpire Owens said finding the ball did not indicate that I was guilty, but the specific rule called for my expulsion. And so without even having been charged with anything I am thrown out of the league. It certainly doesn't appear fair to thus brand me as an unfair pitcher. I can't try to beat back. If I show any good form no one will pay any attention to it. They'll remember that I was up before, that I am no longer a youngster and it'll be a tough row to hoe."

Danforth said he would go wherever the Browns sent him this season, but that if he was not satisfied next spring he would give up baseball.

O'Farrell's Homer Off Pfeffer, With 2 On in 8th, Wins for Cubs, 6-4

Doak Is Driven From the Box in Sixth, but St. Louisans Regain Lead in Seventh—Locals Are Outhit.

By J. Roy Stockton,

Six inches of tar paper does not constitute a particularly offensive object, nor can it be said to be be of any particular benefit in an ordinary ball game. But 6 inches of tar paper roofing, marking the space between the foul line on the roof of the right field pavilion of Sportsman's Park and the spot where Bob O'Farrell's eighth-inning drive landed, was the margin by which the Chicago Cubs gained their 6—4 victory over the Cardinals yesterday afternoon, thereby tumbling the Rickeymen out of first place and reinstating the Giants in the lead of one-half a game.

It was a seesaw ball game and had it not been for that drive, fair by six inches of tar paper, the Cardinals would have gained victory, 4 to 3. Jeff Pfeffer was pitching fairly effectively when the blow spoiled his efforts. Two men were on at the time and three runs resulted. He retired the next batter and the Cubs did not threaten thereafter. But Percy Jones, after relieving Ernest Osborne, was unhittable for two and one-third innings and so those three runs driven in by O'Farrell's homer were enough.

Rickey's pitchers were hit fairly hard, but the Cardinals would have retained their lead, even though outhit, if the hits had been 10 to 7. But the score in hits was 11 to 7 and that eleventh whack was the one that hit on the wrong side of that six-inch tar paper strip and that broke up the game.

Doak Weakens in Sixth.

Bill Doak started for the then league leading Cardinals and held the Cubs scoreless with three hits in five innings. In the sixth, after one was out Hollocher doubled to right and scored when Terry grounded a single between Stock and Toporcer. Grimes slammed a triple down the right field line, scoring Terry. Doak tried to put on more stuff and lost his control, walking Friberg. Then came an unfortunate break. Heathcote sent a bounder between third and short which Stock tried to stop. Had he nabbed it cleanly he might have had a double play or might have headed off the run at the plate. Or, if Stock had missed the ball completely Toporcer was in position to complete either a force play at second or get the runner at first.

But Stock deflected it out of Toporcer's reach and the ball slowly rolled to left field for a single, scoring Grimes. Rickey decided that the fates did not want Doak in there and called for Haines. Jess struck out Krug and retired O'Farrell on a fly to Flack, but three runs had crossed the plate and the Cubs were in the lead.

Many Chances to Win.

Just a wee bit of timely hitting by the upper half of the Cardinal batting order would have put the game away for good, but hits were not forthcoming in the pinches. For instance, in the fifth Toporcer started with a double and scored when Clemons lined a two-bagger deep to left. Doak tried to sacrifice and popped to O'Farrell. Flack walked, but Stock popped a foul to O'Farrell. Jack Smith drew a walk, filling the bases, but Rogers Hornsby, the home-run king of the league, sent a high fly to Heathcote and the huge rally netted only one run.

In the sixth inning the Cardinals drew within one run of the Cubs, but they passed up fine chances to bag more runs. Fournier opened the attack with a mighty clout to center for three bases, but was out at the plate trying to score on Mueller's grounder to Grimes. Toporcer came through with another triple, an annoying liner down the right field line, scoring Mueller, but Clemons could not deliver even a sacrifice fly and Toporcer was retired when Tubby hit to Krug. Clemons reached second during the run-up, but Joe Schultz, batting for Haines, grounded out to Krug and another potential run was left to swell the left on base total.

Osborne Wild in Seventh.

Osborne's wildness enabled the Rickeymen to take the lead in the seventh inning. After Flack and Stock had flied to Friberg Osborne walked Smith and Hornsby and hit Fournier, filling the bases. Mueller came through with a timely line single over second, scoring two runs and the throw-in enabled Fournier to reach third and Mueller second.

Gainer came out to bat for Toporcer when Jones relieved Osborne, but Rickey either had a second thought or listened to advisers and he let Toporcer bat. George had singled, doubled and tripled in three trips to the plate, but he is notoriously weak against southpaws and Rickey's second guess proved to be a poor one. Toporcer tapped to Grimes and the rally was ended.

However that lead looked sufficient, with Pfeffer working smoothly. After one was out in the eighth Friberg grounded a single over second. Heathcote tried to beat out a bunt, but it went for a sacrifice when Pfeffer made a fast pick-up and throw. Jeff then set the stage for his own undoing by walking Krug, not a dangerous batter and then came that clout by O'Farrell which plunked against the aforementioned tar paper.

The Cardinals were helpless against Jones. In the seventh, as told, he retired Toporcer on a grounder to Grimes. In the eighth he struck out Ainsmith, and retired Pfeffer and Flack on easy flies. In the ninth after throwing three bad balls to Stock he grooved four, Stock fouling the third and watching the third slip over. Gainer batted for Smith but grounded to Terry and when Hornsby went out the same weak way the ball game was ended and first place had been vacated by the Rickeymen.

Sherdel and Aldridge Rivals Today

Aldridge and Sherdel probably will be the pitchers in the second game of the series this afternoon. Those Cubs certainly have been tough babies for the Rickeymen this season. If the Cards had spanked them and the Braves as often as paper says they should have done, they would be firmly entrenched in first place.

Ernest Osborne tried to land a haymaker on the jaw of Capt. Charley Hollocher of the Cubs in the seventh inning yesterday. After Ernest had walked Smith and Hornsby and hit Fournier, Charley ran to the mound and took the ball from Osborne, signaling for Jones to come from the bull pen.

Osborne apparently objected and Hollocher, it appears, told him what he thought of a pitcher who would

Greatest Player Contest Closed To Tris and Ty

Playing Managers Barred Under American League Competition Announced Today.

PITCHERS ARE ELIGIBLE

Votes of 8 Writers to Decide Name of First Player to Go on $100,000 Monument.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—For the first time in its history, the American League officially is to designate this year its "greatest allround player." The star will be honored by having his name inscribed on a massive monument to the national game, which will be erected in East Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., to commemorate the sport.

Names of stars selected at the conclusion of future seasons will be added to the monument. The magnitude of the memorial can be judged by the fact that the American League has appropriated $100,000 to build it and leading sculptors of the nation will be asked to submit designs.

The plan that has been adopted by the league proposes that the selection of the player shall be made annually by a committee of sport writers of the eight cities in the league. I. E. Sanborn, a veteran, retired baseball wrtier, is chairman of the committee, and its other members are J. C. O'Leary, Boston; Harry Neily, Chicago; H. P. Edwards, Cleveland; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit; W. B. Hanna, New York; J. C. Isaminger, Philadelphia; J. Ed Wray, St. Louis, and Denman Thompson, Washington.

Great Managers Ineligible.

Ty Cobb, the Detroit manager, and Tris Speaker, the Cleveland leader, will not be eligible for selection on account of being playing managers, but the competition is wide-open for all other players. Batting, fielding and pitching records alone are not to be the basis for selection, but faithfulness, continuity of service and conduct—both on and off the field—are to be items of consideration. The rules for governing the award of the trophy announced today by President Ban Johnson follow:

The purpose of the American League Trophy is to honor the baseball player who is of greatest all-round service to his club and credit to the sport during each season. To recognize and reward uncommon skill and ability when exercised by a player for the best interests of his team; and to perpetuate his memory.

The selection of the player to be awarded the trophy shall be made by a committee of eight active baseball writers, one from each city in the American League.

It shall be the duty of the Trophy Committee to determine the best player of the year by careful consideration of ability and achievement in all departments of the game; to watch for and encourage the "winning ball player."

Averages Not Everything.

Batting, fielding or pitching averages shall be given due consideration, but not such as to constitute them the sole factors in the choice, remembering that combined offensive and defensive ability is not always indicated by any system of records.

Faithfulness, continuity of service during a season, freedom from or liability of injury and illness shall be taken into consideration.

Conduct on and off the field, absence from games on account of the exercise of discipline by managers, club owners or league officials shall constitute part of the players' records for the purpose of the award.

Playing managers shall not be eligible to the Trophy contest. In the nature of the game the manager, if he also acts in the capacity of a player, is of greater value to his team and places all other players at a disadvantage in the contest.

The Trophy Committee shall be appointed by a chairman, who shall have no voting power; nor any financial interest, either directly or indirectly in baseball. He shall be appointed by the President of the American League, or otherwise, as the club owners may direct.

Point Plan to Name Winner.

The Trophy Committee shall choose the best player by a composite ballot based on an amplification of the point system used to determine the winning team of a track and field meet.

On a date prior to the end of each championship season, each member of the Trophy Committee shall mail to the chairman a ballot containing the names of the eight players who he believes have been of greatest service to their respective teams during the season. Each member shall arrange those eight names on the ballot in order of his preference.

First place on each ballot shall count eight points for the player so honored. Second place shall count seven points; third place six points, and so on.

The chairman shall tabulate these ballots, according to the aforementioned system, and announce the composite result; the award of the Trophy to be made to the player who shall be found to have received the highest total number of points.

Ballots Will Be Confidential.

To permit each member of the committee to express his choice freely and without possible outside influence, the ballots shall be confidental, known only to the chairman who shall promulgate only the composite result; provided that the ballots, with their signatures cancelled, shall be open to inspection and verification by any interested party.

These rules may be amended, modified or simplified by a majority vote of the Trophy Committee, the chairman to cast no vote except in case of a tie.

Giants Win Two, Regain the Lead

McQuillan, Obtained From Braves, Pitches First Victory, Beating Dodgers 3-1.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The New York Giants made a clean sweep of the three-game series with Brooklyn by winning a double-header today, scores 11-5 and 3-1.

High's muff of a pop fly in the seventh inning of the first game gave the Giants their winning margin, after the Robins had tied the score and knocked Ryan out of the box in the sixth.

Kelly hit his fourteenth homer in the second inning.

McQuillan formerly of the Braves, pitched his first victory for the Giants in the second game.

BRITISH GOLF TEAM ARRIVES IN U. S. FOR INTERNATIONAL EVENT

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Eight members of the British Amateur golf team, four Englishmen and four Scotchmen, arrived today on the Carmania to oppose an American team Aug. 30 at Southampton, Long Island, in the firts international contest for the Walker Cup, and to compete later in the national amateur championship at Brookline, Mass.

On the team are Roger Wethered, Cyril Tolley, John Caven, C. V. L. Hooman, Colin C. Aylmer, Robert Harris, W. W. Mackensie, W. B. Torrence and Maj. Angus Hambro, M. P. With them was Bernard Darwin, grandson of the expounder of the theory of evolution. Darwin, a newspaper man will be liaison officer between the team and the press.

They were met at the dock by officials of the United State Golf Association. It has not yet been decided whether they will accept invitations to visit inland cities before returning to England.

Wray's Column

Rough on Ty and Tris.

TWO of the greatest baseball players in Christendom will be ineligible to have their names chiseled on the $100,000 baseball monument, which is to be erected in Washington, D. C., to immortalize the "most valuable player to his team."

The rules approved by a majority of the committee declared that playing managers are not eligible to the honor—hence Ty and Tris will be deprived of all chance at the glory. Tyrus is now knocking at the door and Tris is but little far behind.

At this time both would be given a one-two-three-four placing by probably every member of the committee of eight, were it not for the two stars' managerial connections.

The ban this year will probably knock these players out permanently from consideration as both are sure to fade in a year or two, due to long service.

Nothing Difficult About It.

ALTHOUGH a majority of the committee thought it best to bar the playing manager, the idea still is not clear. It seems altogether possible for impartial, experienced men to judge a playing manager on his merit as a player, without considering any managerial connection.

When it is considered how difficult it is for a manager to shoulder the worries of a leader and keep up his playing standard as well, it seems all the more reasonable to give such a candidate a chance to make good.

While it is unlikely that either Tris or Ty would have received a majority of votes this year, unless their late season performance reaches unusual attainments, it is none the less the thought of a minority that they should have been entitled to the chance.

However, this is the first year of the American League memorial competition. If the existing rule is found to work a disadvantage, it can be remedied.

In the meanwhile old Father Time is ticking two of the world's greatest players slowly out of possibility of gaining the high honor.

What Is a Professional?

IN a Chicago newspaper of recent date there appears the advertisement of a new hotel which is specializing in golf. It calls itself by a golfing name. The advertisement carries a picture of and an encomium from Chick Evans, a leading amatuer and for several years champion of the United States.

There have been many liberal constructions of the meaning of the phrase: "Exploiting one's amateur reputation for gain." In order to know whether Chick comes under this category we would first have to know whether Chick was paid for the use of his face and name.

However, there is one thought about the matter that seems inescapable. It is this:

If Chick received money for it, he is, at least in the spirit, a professional; if he did not receive money he is a "mark."

And nobody ever accused Chick of being either, with better proof at hand.

Change the Word or the Deed.

TENNIS and golfing circles will have to change their attitude on the amateur question. Too many men are using their amateur reputations to exploit themselves into a career.

It is not for us to say whether this is professional, or even reprehensible. In fact, we have decidedly contrary leanings. But as long as national bodies are differentiating along the line referred to they should either enforce the rule, or abandon it.

Distinction With No Difference.

IN some respects there is no difference between some professionals and some amateurs. Undoubtedly one thought, in making the original distinction, was that the professional, making a business of a sport, had opportunties and time to devote to it that gave him a great advantage over the amateur. It might therefore be considered unfair to put them on an equality in competition.

But this distinction has long since departed. With the advent of of the wealthy amateur, the time devoted to golf, tennis and some other pastimes by professionals is less than that devoted to them by the simon pures. Some amateurs do nothing else than play golf; and the same goes for some tennis players. The time and opportunity distinctions, therefore, no longer exist.

Even the social distinction is waning, as witness the case of Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes and other pros of note. When Jim Barnes was at Sunset Hill he had a room in the clubhouse and was given the privileges of membership—not to mention teaching, and the privilege to sell golf balls and clubs.

They Don't Come Back.

MAY SUTTON BUNDY, mother of four children, and now nearing the middle years of life, made a gallant effort to come back and wrest the United States tennis title from its Norse holder. But the American came back about four years too late.

The championship appears to be hopelessly tied up in the possession of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, until such time as youthful Helen Wills or some other sturdy youngster shall acquire steadiness and craft.

Mrs. Bundy, it is almost certain, has passed out as the "hope" of the United States. Three times this year Mrs. Mallory has met Mrs. Bundy and three times the California girl, former world's champion, has succumbed. In three matches she won by a single set. That is an almost hopeless showing, with the national championship for women now at hand.

All other rivals in the field seem to have no chance against the Scandinavian woman whose vigor and experience make her stand out from the available field.

But Mrs. Bundy made a good fight and deserves great credit. Three or four years ago she still had the stamina and speed to beat Mrs. Mallory. Once she did it, two matches out of three. But each year after 35 takes something from the athlete, man or woman.

Mrs. Bundy timed her comeback too late.

Massachusetts Plans Commission to Control Baseball, C. of C. Hears

Among many letters which have been received by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce from every section of the United States regarding the recent action of the organization in pointing out to officials of the major leagues that some practices should be remedied to protect the future of the game, is the following:

"We are going to have a Baseball Commission in Massachusetts similar to the Boxing Commissions in many states. Every man who plays ball for money in this State will have to secure a license from us no matter what club he plays with. Dishonest playing and other undesirable conduct will be punished by fines and suspensions, and trades among the several owners will be subject to review and approved by our commission before the players involved can secure a license to play in Massachusetts.

"There is a model for Missouri to follow unless you can think of something better." (Signed) Joseph Collier, 9 Haviland st., Back Bay, Boston.

THOMPSON, NEGRO BOXER, ENTERS DEMPSEY'S CAMP

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 12.—Another sparring partner was added to the Jack Dempsey retinue here yesterday by Manager Jack Kearns when Jack Thompson, colored heavyweight from Tulsa, Okla., informed the impressario he was willing to help box the champion into shape for his ten-round exhibition with Bill Brennan here on Labor day. This makes two colored boxers on the list, the other being Jack Taylor of Omaha. These two will be the punching bag upon which Dempsey will warm up. Billy Wells and Jack Malone are engaged to give the champion plenty of speed.

Dempsey has always gone into the colored ranks for sparring partners. He trained with big Bill Tate and Panama Joe Ganz for Willard and the results more than satisfied him.

Golf 'Pros' Ready For Big Tourney

Gene Sarazen Will Try for Barnes' Title at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 12.—Pittsburgh was the gathering place tonight for golf enthusiasts, attracted by the Professional Golfers' Association title tournament, which will open at the Oakmont Country Club Monday morning. The final round will be reached Friday.

Sixty-four pros, the cream of the United States players and a few from Europe, have qualified and will try to annex the title held by Walter Hagen, the British champion. Hagen, according to word received here, will not defend his title as he is engaged in a series of exhibition matches with Joe Kirkwood of Australia and found it impossible to cancel engagements.

Gene Sarazen, the open champion; Willie Hunter of England; Jock Hutchison of Chicago and other celebrated figures in the world of golf made up the field. Two rounds of match play will be run off Monday. During the remainder of the week the program calls for a 36-hole round of match play daily.

The Oakmont course, one of the most difficult in the country, is in excellent shape for the tournament.

Pairings for the tournament were announced tonight as follows:

SHERDEL AND ALDRIDGE PROBABLE RIVALS TODAY IN SECOND CUBS GAME

throw three men onto the bases with two down and score so close. Osborne turned even redder than usual, struck a straight left into the air in front of Charley's beak and took a fighting pose. But Umpire Moran and other players stepped in and dragged Osborne to the dugout. It's all right to have the will to win. But the will to punch one's captain in the nose, is something else again and usually expensive.

Flack has done some grand watchful waiting recently. He has averaged more than a base on balls a game and yesterday drew walks on his three first trips to the plate. One he died stealing and the other times he was left.

Heine Mueller is a great ball player until he reaches a base. He can hit and field like a fiend, but when he is on the sacks with two down the side virtually is retired. In the second he was on second and Toporcer on first when Clemons scratched a single to deep short. Heine rounded third and then looked back to see where the ball was. But he continued to watch and before he could determine its exact location Terry at second had relayed Hollocher's throw to Krug and Heine was out a Gravois road block. To start the next inning he made a spectacular catch of Osborne's low liner.

It isn't very often that only one hit is made by the first five batters in Rickey's swatting order. But that was true yesterday. Flack, Stock, Smith and Hornsby went hitless and Fournier's only safety was his triple.

Toporcer made three of the seven hits and Clemons contributed two. The seventh was Heine Mueller's timely single.

Loss of first place does not discourage the Cards. Next week Brooklyn comes, with the Giants meeting the dashing Pirates. That ought to enable the Rickeymen to beat back to the front, as it were.

Miss Wainwright Sets New World's Swimming Record

American Establishes Mark of 7:09 2-5, Beating British Rival at 500 Yards.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 12.—Miss Helen Wainwright of New York City, added another world's record to her already long string when she won a 500-yard free style open swim for women in the national water championship here today. The time was 7:09 2-5. The record was established in a 100-yard closed water pool. According to the officials, the best previous record for the distance in a closed pool was 7:19 3-5.

An American record also fell by the wayside for 300 yards in the same race, when Miss Wainwright swam the distance in 4:13 2-5. The previous American record for 300 yards was announced as being 4:18 3-5.

Hilda James, champion woman swimmer of England, was second to Miss Wainwright and Aileen Riggin of New York City was third. Miss James gave Miss Wainwright a real struggle until the final hundred yards, when the American woman began a spurt that was not to be denied. She won by about 10 yards margin. Miss Riggin was nine yards behind Miss James.

English Girl Makes Good.

Miss James was first in the 300-yard medley race (100 yards breast stroke, 100 yards backstroke and 100 yards free style). Miss Sybil Bauer of Chicago gained rapidly on her in the second lap of the race, in which the back stroke was used and was within a few yards of the leader when the final lap at free style began. Miss James was equal to the challenge, however, and finished several yards in the lead of Miss Bauer. Miss Wainwright was third. The time was 4:40 3-5.

Johnny Weismuller, the world's fastest swimmer, was a winner in two events today—the 220-yard free style for men for the national senior championship and the 50-yard free style open event. His time in the 220 was 2:22 2-5, more than two seconds behind his own world's record. The Chicago boy's time in the 50-yard swim was 23 3-5 seconds. Tom Blake of Los Angeles was second in each race and John Moore of Indianapolis third.

Aileen Riggin of New York, Olympic fancy diving champion, was declared the winner over Miss Helen Meany of New York, national outdoor high and fancy diving champion, in an open diving contest. M. Dorothy Hucknall of Atlantic City was third.

BOB KINSEY WINS PLACE IN THREE FINALS AT SOUTHAMPTON TOURNEY

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The semifinal round of the mixed doubles was played despite a heavy downpour.

Miss Helen Rocker of Greenwich, Conn., and S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn defeated Mrs. J. Cooper Lord of Southampton and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, in one match, 1—6, 8—6, 6—3, while Miss Florence Johnson of Southampton and Robert Kinsey of San Francisco were triumphant in the other over Mrs. E. P. Twining of Southampton and E. W. Feibleman of Harvard, 8—6, 8—6.

Robert Kinsey's victory gives him a place in all of the final round matches. He previously had reached the finals of the singles, and the men's doubles with his brother, Howard. All the championship matches now are scheduled for tomorrow.

MISS ENDICOTT AND ALVIN SCHWARZ ENTER MIXED DOUBLES FINAL

Millicent Endicott and Alvin Schwarz reached the final round of the mixed doubles tournament for the championship of the Forest Park Tennis Club by defeating Alma Savage and Charles Hoffman in a semifinal round encounter. The score was 6—1, 6—1.

The final round of the mixed doubles will be played next Saturday at 3 o'clock. Millicent Endicott and Alvin Schwarz will oppose Etta Roever and Karl Kammann for the title. A close contest is expected.

Goshawk Defeats Strong Field in Saratoga Special

McKee, Owned by John E. Madden, Makes Bid at Finish but Is Outgamed.

Bud Fisher's Two-Year-Old Suffers Early Misfortune That Hurts His Chances.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Gov. Miller sat in the stand with the stewards as H. P. Whitney's Goshawk beat John E. Madden's McKee and others in the Saratoga Special at the track here today.

For the first time in the history of New York State the Governor, in a few well chosen words, presented the gold cup to H. P. Whitney, who went up in the stand to receive this much sought trophy.

The Saratoga Special is not a rich stake, as stakes go, but it has ever carried a strong appeal because of the sporting conditions and because of the distinction which victory brings.

It was first run in 1901 and won by the late W. C. Whitney's Goldsmith. Since then H. P. Whitney has won the trophy four times with Irish Lad, Regret, Tryster and with Goshawk.

The field today was made up of most of the leading 2-year-olds of the year and they met at even weights, 122 pounds each, so that the result went far toward pointing to the best of that age in training.

McKee Makes His Bid.

Goshawk, which showed high qualities at Aqueduct, again proved himself a leading candidate for the so-called 2-year-old championship. He raced head and head with Martingale in the run up the back stretch, and around the turn and after shaking off the winner of the Tremont Stakes at Aqueduct and the United Hotel Stakes here, he had enough to withstand a bold and determined challenge from John E. Madden's McKee, winner of the Juvenile Stakes at Belmont Park.

Half way down the stretch it looked as if McKee, which came though on the rail had Gochawk beaten; but the latter, under McAtee's strong handling, proved his courage, as he had his speed and stamina, so that right at the end he drew out to win by half a length.

Two lengths away, Bud Lerner, recently purchased by the Rancocas Stable from John E. Madden, for a price said to be $45,000, got up in time to beat Martingale a head for third place. The son of The Finn has been rated by many as the best of his age, and he again proved his right to high ranking, even in defeat, as he suffered in the early part from a little ill luck and yet closed in game and resolute fashion.

Martingale had no excuses. He was up with the pace all the way, but found it a little too stiff and tired through the last furlong.

Cartoonist Interfered With.

August Belmont's Messenger was in a good position at the head of the stretch, but failed to come on, but an excuse must be offered for Bud Fisher's Cartoonist. This good colt met with interference soon after the start and almost went to his knees.

"Buddy" Ensor was restored to good standing after almost a full year of enforced idleness, at a meeting of the stewards of the Jockey Club last evening and had his first mount on Tall Timber in the Saratoga Special. The boy was warmly applauded as Trainer Tom Healy gave him the leg-up in the paddock and applause broke out all along the line as he led the parade to the post.

TOWER GROVE TENNIS TEAM OPPOSES FOREST PARK CLUB FOR TITLE

The final round of the Municipal interclub tournament will be played on the Forest Park courts this afternoon. Players from Tower Grove Park will meet the members of the Forest Park team for the championship.

Play will commence promptly at 2:30 o'clock. There will be three singles and two doubles events. Both clubs have strong teams and a close contest is expected, with Forest Park the slight favorite for the title.

The interclub tournament this year was an elimination affair. Eight parks had teams in the event. Forest Park reached the final round by winning from the Oakland Tennis Club players, while Tower Grove surprised with a victory over the Fairground team in a semifinal round match.

KIRKWOOD CLUB NET TEAM BEATS CABANNE

In an interclub tennis match yesterday afternoon the Kirkwood Country Club team defeated the players from the Cabanne Tennis Club, 3 to 2. The contest was played on the Kirkwood courts. There were three singles and two doubles matches.

Kirkwood won the first and second singles encounters and the first doubles. The third singles and the doubles went to Cabanne. Andrew B. Lynn, the active president of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, surprised with an easy victory over J. Longionetti, the Cabanne Club champion.

Results.

Kirkwood 3, Cabanne 2.

Ed Harris, Kirkwood, defeated Brockmeyer, Cabanne, 6-1, 6-1; Lynn, Kirkwood, defeated Longinotti, Cabanne, 6-2, 6-2; Davidson, Cabanne, defeated Harford, Kirkwood, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4; Harris and Lynn, Kirkwood, defeated Brockmeyer and Longinotti, Cabanne, 9-7, 6-2; Abrhams and Davidson, Cabanne, defeated Carson and Harford, Kirkwood, 6-3, 7-5.

Postponement to Aid Australians

Yesterday's Rain, by Preventing Davis Cup Play, Gives Cripples Time to Rest.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 12.—Instead of fighting out their struggle for Davis Cup preliminary honors, the tennis teams of Australia and France went to the movies or nursed ailments today. The postponement until Monday, because of rain, of the two singles matches that remain of the tourament in which the Australians who led by one match was satisfactory to both.

Its play was pleasing to the men from Australia. Although the advantage in standing was theirs, physically they were hardly up to renewal of the stern competition of the past two days. Gerald L. Patterson, their captain, drawn to meet the brilliant French youngster, Henri Cochet, was limping on an ankle that threatened to keep him out of play. Pat O'Hara Wood, called upon to face the giant Andre Gobert, star of yesterday's doubles match, was ill at ease with the neuritis that has pained him for weeks.

Anderson Out of It.

In bed, but convalescing from a heavy cold, James O. Anderson was definitely out of the play.

With the respite that came with the rain, the Australians expected to be in better shape. In Patterson's case especially, the rest should bring him onto the courts Monday fit for play. Should Wood's trouble become seriously worse, it was possible, the Australian captain said, that Anderson might be able to replace him, returning to the assignment which Wood took over after Anderson's eleventh hour illness developed on Thursday.

The Frenchmen were on the fine fettle, but concurred readily in the postponement. There was no disposition on the part of Capt. Allan H. Muhr to seek play and gain the advantage consequent on the opposing team's injuries. "We will go to the movies," he said, when Gobert and Cochet asked if they were to get into their playing togs.

MILLERS PLAY BLUES AT ALTON PARK TODAY

Jimmy Feeney's Ben Millers aggregation will play the Alton Blues today at Sportsmen's Park, Alton, in the final meeting of these two clubs this season. At present the Hatters are in second place with the White Rose and Mount Vernon Car Builders tied for the leadership. A win for the St. Louis outfit and a defeat for the two leaders in today's battles will place Feeney's crew right on the heels of the pace makers.

At Belleville the White Rose club is carded to tackle the Wiles-Chipmans of St. Louis. The Lumber boys have played in some tough luck in the past two weeks and Manager Fisher is counting on his charges coming through with a victory today against the leaders. Either Fisher or Steinman will work for the Wiles-Chipmans with Jasper doing the hurling for the White Rose.

The tail-end Tricity Packers are scheduled to meet the Maxwell Motors at Polo Park on the East Side. The Collinsville Maroons will travel to Mount Vernon to give battle to the Car Builders. Boss Ritchie has hopes that his team will come back with a victory.

The tablet was presented by C. A. Spaulding of Buffalo. The ceremony was followed by the association's annual regatta, with clubs from Washington, D. C., Auburndale, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa represented.

Exalted Idea of His Value Keeps Jack Dempsey Idle, Edgren Writes

Champion Could Fight Once a Month if He Wanted to, Boxing Critic Says, Who Points Out That Jack Is Letting the Best Years of His Fighting Life Pass.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1922.)

"THERE are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught," and it's a joke to say that Jack Dempsey can't get any work in his specialty. Wonder what the old-time champions would have said if they'd been offered 10 per cent of the amount Dempsey could make, if he wanted to, in the ring during the coming six years.

The trouble is that the champion is holding out for big purses. He and a lot of other fighters have exalted ideas of their values since the row on Boyle's Thirty Acres a year ago. If he and his manager were sincere in their offer to take on the top-notchers among the challengers he would keep busy, show good sportsmanship and incidentally take in a lot of money.

Of course it is pointed out that Dempsey has "signed" or "agreed" to take on the four leading challengers. But, except for the Brennan bout, which at this writing seems pretty sure to be held at Michigan City Labor day, "signed" and "agreed" mean nothing. They are off-set by the jokers in the "articles" that makes the bout itself contingent upon time, place and purse matters still to be settled.

And as long as the champion demands a month's output from the mint for his divvy there is small chance for settling on the purse, let alone the rest of the essentials.

Could Fight Once a Month.

Dempsey can fight once a month if he wants to. All that he'll need to do is forget the big money he got with Carpentier and be satisfied to fight often for comparatively small purses, then he'll find the promoters willing to take a chance. Dempsey may not be able to shake the plum tree for another $300,000, but the notion that he'll have to go back to riding the brake-beam because he has fought himself out of a job is a joke.

Probably Jack could take on Willard, Brennan, Wills and Carpentier, if he won the first three bouts and average close to $200,000 a fight, clearing up $800,000 in the series. The income tax would take most of it, of course, but even at that Dempsey's share of his own earnings would be a useful sum of money.

It is a well-known fact that age doesn't help a boxer anyway and it behooves Jack to gather his rosebuds while he may, to make hay while the sun shines and get while the getting is good. If he takes on the big four in succession and lays aside a considerable fortune—which is well within the possibilities and certainly according to every rule of sportsmanship—the champion can then lay back and await a new crop of challengers.

Successor Sure to Come.

It will not be long wait. Dempsey is at or past the peak of his form. Others are coming on and the man that will beat Dempsey is long out of knickerbockers. Dempsey himself says he expects to have some young fellow, a lad with plenty of ambition and a wallop, hit him on the chin some day.

And with the color line erased to let Wills have a crack at the title, Jack will have no excuse to avoid meeting the latest dark cloud on the horizon.

This cloud is Mistah Tut Jackson, who has been knocking them over right along. He needs experience, mayhap, but a year or so will give him that, and a year is not so likely to help Dempsey.

The fishin's good, Jack. Better hook 'em before some man-eating shark swallows hook, line and fisherman as well!

NEW ORLEANS PITCHER DENIES COMPLICITY IN GAMBLING SCHEME

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 12.—Pitcher Matteson of the New Orleans Southern Association team, mentioned in connection with a letter alleged to have been sent by an unknown New Orleans gambler to a telegraph operator at the Chattanooga baseball park offering $106 a game to tip off balls and strikes, shortly before yesterday's game here declared he delivered a letter but "That was the extent of my connection with the case."

While in Chattanooga, he declared, a special delivery letter was sent to him. In the envelope, he said, was an anonymous note asking him to deliver it to the telegraph operator at the baseball park. He delivered the message, he said, but said that he did not know what it contained.

'Babe' Ruth Operated On for Abscess; Will Miss Detroit Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.

JUST at the time they need him most "Babe" Ruth has failed the Yankees, and the psychological effect may have a lot to do with the winning or the losing of the 1922 pennant.

The big hitter went to St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday and was operated upon for a bad abscess on the left leg received in sliding in Detroit. It is just above the ankle. The doctors are fearful lest it may develop into a more serious condition and have ordered him not to play ball for at least four days.

So great is the confidence of the other Yankees, they do not believe the absence of Ruth, even through the whole Tiger series, which lasts through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, will hurt them. They do want him back when the crucial clash with the St. Louis Browns comes on Aug. 25, 26 and 27.

BELL TELEPHONE NINE WINS TWELVE INNING GAME FROM FALCONS

The Bell Telephone team of the Commercial League defeated the Polish Falcons, 4 to 3, in 12 innings in the feature contest in that circuit yesterday. The Falcons tied the score with two runs in the seventh inning and the teams battled until the twelfth when the Bell Telephones put the winning run over before an out was registered.

The American Railway Express team gained its second victory of the season when it defeated the Tower Camp M. W. A. team, 12 to 9. Four runs in the seventh inning gave the winners a lead sufficient to clinch the contest. The Tower Camp team used four pitchers in attempting to halt the Railway team's batting attack.

The Union Electric team defeated the champion Hezel Milling nine, 23 to 10, in six innings. The game was called by agreement at the end of the sixth inning. The Union Electric team scored nine runs in the third and a like number in the fourth.

The Muckerman-Cushman team, of the Manufacturers Leage, defeated the Butler Brothers yesterday by a 17 to 7 score. Hensiek pitched good ball in all but the seventh inning when the Butlers reached his delivery for four runs. Splendid fielding support enabled the Muckerman-Cushman pitcher to pull out of several tight holes. The Butler team's poor fielding gave the Muckerman team seven unearned runs.

The McElroy-Sloan team defeated the Rapidayton outfit 9 to 7. The McElroys outfit hamered Mulch for ten hits, netting them 19 bases. Bamert's inability to locae he plae casued his removal in he sixth inning. Up to that time he had allowed but two hits.

Brain of Edison Is Like a Multiple Switchboard Which May Be Turned From One Thought Line to Another

Thoroughness of Wizard and His Ability to Persist Until Imagined Result Is Realized Accounts, in View of Writer, for Success.

This is the second of a series of four articles on "Edison, the Man," by Mr. Desmond, noted Irish author and publicist. They will be published on succeeding Sundays, the one next Sunday being on "Edison and War."

By SHAW DESMOND,
Noted Irish Publicist and Author.

AND yet the extraordinary "Will to Do" which is Edison would without "the System" be like a steam shovel without a cutting edge. This fact was constantly borne in upon one during conversation with this man of System.

To invent is one thing. To make an invention practicable is quite another, as we have said. The invention of the electric incandescent light by Edison was not a tremendous brain-flash—it was the culmination of countless experiments based on much bold and logical thinking through which he dared to reverse all previous theory and practice. The making of the invention into an ordinary utility of every-day life was a gargantuan piece of experimental organization, in its way as curious and painstaking as the efforts of the bee through countless centuries to make the final completed honeycomb.

Here should be nailed to the table the lie, springing from jealous minds, that Edison is "a brainsucker," i. e., that he sucks the brains of other men and gets the credit of the result. The actual fact is, that Edison would need a million years of life for himself to carry out all his own experiments, and so has to leave some of the work to subordinates. But, like the electric spark that ignites the gases of the motor to their work, it is the spark from the Edison brain that initiates these experiments. Also, it is Edison who has made practicable hundreds of ideas of other inventors, which they had either abandoned or failed to bring to fruition.

The incandescent light may be taken as an example of that "System" which applies to everything to which Edison has set his brain.

To make this practicable, the following points had to be complied with:

1. The securing of a fundamentally correct method of distributing the current, efficient, economical and commercially practicable. This meant a network of conductors all connected, so that in any given city area the line could be fed with electricity from every direction, thus eliminating disturbance due to breakdown in any particular section.

2. Man is incurably traditional, and so it was necessary that the new lamp should give a unit of light about equal to the old gas light. The wiring, etc., had to be so economical that it required a minimum of outlay for repairs and replacements, and then, that exceptionally difficult problem—each lamp had to be independent of every other lamp. With these points went a host of minor problems, such as safety of handling, durability, etc.

3. If the energy used by the new lamp could not be measured, it could never be a commercial success, for no lighting corporation could know what current had been used. So an electric gauge was invented which registered unerringly the quantity used by each customer.

4. Each building had to have its own electric light service, and so a system had to be devised by which the main conductors in the streets could have branch tapping wires run from them into the buildings.

5. And even if all the above had been accomplished, the electric incandescent lamp would have been a failure if absolute evenness of current pressure had not been secured, so that a lamp 50 miles from the central station had to give the same light, despite wastage of current, as one within 50 yards; and this evenness had to be quite independent of the strength of current turned on at the central distributing station.

What System Means.

One realizes exactly what "system" means when one remembers that in England and America during the war some thousands of inventions were brought to the notice of the naval and military authorities of both countries, all of them possible of achievement under special conditions, but quite useless for ordinary purposes of warfare because such special conditions could not always be obtained.

It is this system and thoroughness which makes Edison the giant he is—otherwise his brain would be of as little use to the world as a 4000-horsepower marine engine without the ship. Some of the inventions in the incandescent light had been led up to by many years of experiment. In the experiments upon gas mantles, I have been informed that Edison experimented with substances so widely different as lions' teeth and asbestos. When on the trail of a solution, the American wizard reminds the onlooker of a hunter on the trail of some wounded animal. Before he brings down his quarry, Edison has to shoot experiment after experiment at it, until finally he registers the fatal shot which means that he has "got home."

When Edison first made his phonograph, it was discovered that they had the habit of smashing in transit. So he began that meticulous, patient "elimination of error" and weakness by experiment, until he believed he had what he wanted—a record that was unbreakable. He told his assistant to pack a crate with the new records and throw the whole package out of the factory window on the third story. He did so, and it was found that again the records were broken. He experimented further and told him to pack another and throw it out of the window, with the same result. This went on for some time, until at last a package reached Mother Earth without a single plate broken. That is the Edison method.

Edison himself seems to have a sort of multiple switchboard by which at will he can switch his brain from one thing to another, thus making it possible for him to attack a dozen problems at once whilst giving to each problem undivided attention when at work upon its solution.

Whilst he was working upon some abstruse calculations upon a sheet of yellow paper, I noticed a boy standing behind him with a long paper in his hand. Very eager he looked as he waited to speak with the chief, and very shyly he handed in his sheet, which was one of Edison's famous "questionnaires"—those sheets of 101 questions to test a man's general knowledge.

The great man himself took it from the hands of the boy and went through the answers with as much pleasure and concentration as though the fate of the world hung upon it.

"Anybody can see him," said one of his young employes, and then he added, after a moment, significantly, "that is, if anybody has anything really to see him about." Nothing is too small or too great to escape the personality that is Thomas Alva Edison. I will not say that he is omniscient or omnipresent—but he is, shall we say, well on the way!

Edison as He Really Is.

Having had the close opportunity of watching Edison not only whilst at work in his laboratory but in his human relationships with others, I have been struck by the extraordinary blend of shrewdness and "childlikeness"—I do not say "childishness"—which characterizes this modern magician.

His absolute and childlike belief that his questionnaire really does represent a sort of touchstone for human intelligence and human capacity is something at which to admire and wonder and marvel.

If anything is more sure than another, it would seem to be that a man might answer every one of Edi-

Getting Acquainted With Missouri Woman

HOW MRS. ST. CLAIR MOSS WON NOMINATION IN 8TH DISTRICT

Columbia (Mo.) Educator Seeking Office to Help Fulfill Democratic Party's Promises of Political Partnership for Women; Victory in Primary by 4000 Plurality Came After Vigorous Campaign Through Country Districts in Ford Sedan.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

THERE are many reasons for believing that Missouri may elect a woman Representative to Congress this fall.

In a district normally Democratic, Mrs. L. W. St. Clair Moss of Columbia, nominated for Congress on the Democratic ticket at the recent primaries, received the highest plurality (more than 4000 votes) ever given a candidate for this office in this district, except where a candidacy was uncontested.

Her opponent at the November elections will be the present Congressman, Sid Roach, Republican, who is serving his first term. His election in a Democratic stronghold was accounted one of the vagaries of the late lamented landslide. "Any good housekeeper ought to be able to get rid of Roaches," to quote a local wag. And it is conceded Mrs. Moss is a good housekeeper, and then some.

There have been two Congresswomen, both Republican. Another Republican woman, Mrs. Huck, already nominated in Illinois, is likely to be a third. No other Democratic women have been nominated for this office as yet, so if Mrs. Moss is elected, to Missouri is likely to come the distinction of being the first State to seat a woman on the Democratic side of the house.

Democrats all over the country are looking to the Eighth Congressional District of Missouri to embrace an opportunity of helping fulfill the promise contained in the national platform, that women shall be taken into full partnership. And it is to be hoped, too, that no other voters in that district are so Hyde bound (one of the apt phrases for which Mrs. Moss is noted) as not to help claim another progressive distinction for the State.

Such an Event Would Give Rise to Variety of Emotions

MISSOURI represented by a woman in Congress! With a variety of emotions many of us will adjust ourselves to the novelty of the situation. But, having been over to Columbia and met the candidate in her related environment, her triumph is in no sense a mystery to this observer.

As a woman consistently active in the advancement of womanhood; as the peer of any man in professional achievement and demonstrated business acumen; as a citizen with a record of leadership in civic movements; as a pioneer with a number of "first woman" entries to her credit; as a personality of rare versatility and winsomeness; as an authority on political questions and issues of the hour—her nomination seems now not extraordinary at all, but merely logical.

To explain the above conclusion—how Mrs. Moss "gets that way"—a brief catalogue of her attainments will suffice.

She is now president emeritus of Christian College, a school for young women, at Columbia. Two years ago she retired, after 28 years as president of the institution, agreeing not to sever activity completely until the last of eight buildings she had caused to be erected was completed. When she became custodian of this property it was valued at $30,000, was up to its ears in debt, and the institution probably would have been abandoned by the board of the Christian Church as a hopeless undertaking had not faith, determination, energy, resourcefulness, enthusiasm, on the part of its new president intervened to save and build it up. Today the property is valued at $750,000. Eight handsome buildings, modern to the last degree in their equipment, adorn the campus, which covers two city blocks, while enrollment at the college reaches its capacity. Down to the last detail of acquiring its now substantial endowment and administering its affairs, the enterprise is credited to Mrs. Moss.

Few men in the country can claim more enviable records as builders.

Along with this achievement, during her career Mrs. Moss has experienced every phase of school work, and besides has not neglected her destiny as a woman. She has been twice married, twice widowed, once a mother.

As a young wife and the mother of a 2-year-old daughter she began teaching a rural school in Colorado. She rode a mustang, broke a trail through the snows and taught cowboys. Her first husband, Prof. Frank P. St. Clair, in declining health, accepted the presidency of Christian College, with the understanding that his wife should share in its administration. His death followed shortly and she assumed full charge. The little daughter died some 20 years ago. In 1911 she was married to Dr. Woodson Moss, head of the medical faculty of the State University. After nine years Dr. Moss also died. It will be observed that she retains the names of both her husbands, though she does not affect a hyphen.

Three times she retired, as she says, "to be a fireside woman," but each time circumstances combined to draw her back into wider activity.

Has Taken Part in Civic as Well as Cultural Life of Columbia

ALONG with the development of her own college, Mrs. Moss has taken an active part in the civic as well as the cultural life of the university town. Two years ago she was elected, with a large majority, the only woman member of the School Board of Columbia. She is the only woman member of the National Board of the Disciples of Christ. She was the only woman on the committee which directed the Liberty Loan campaigns in Columbia. Now she is the first woman nominated in Missouri for Congress. She has led in women's club work, always holding some high office, and is at present vice president of the League of Women Voters. Always in her work for the advancement of women, of education, of civic welfare, she has held the belief that in politics lay the fundamental basis of human progress. She was born Luella Wilcox, in Virdin, Ill., 57 years ago. Her father was then the leading Democrat of the locality. All Democratic caucuses were held in his home. She grew up in a political atmosphere and never has wavered in her belief in the party of Jefferson as the party of the people, as opposed to the vested interests. And she will support the party ticket this fall, she says, regardless of the personality of the man who happens to head the ticket in this State.

Mrs. Moss is especially regarded as an authority on tariff problems in all their perplexing ramifications. To join her voice with that of the minority party against the high protective tariff, "which is as a voice crying in the wilderness, as the voice of the political evangelist," is her chief personal motive in wanting to be a Representative in Congress, she says.

While her nomination, in view of her qualifications, seems the most natural thing in the world to those who knew her, Mrs. Moss, herself, took nothing for granted, but made a most vigorous campaign.

In a Ford sedan, driven by a young student of the university, she covered the entire district twice, traveling more than 2000 miles.

"I had to do this," she says. "People will take a man on faith, but a woman must prove herself. They will forgive a man almost anything, and they will forgive a woman nothing. Men are concerned to know if you have been a business success; women are concerned to know if you intend to help lift moral standards in politics. It is a fierce light which beats upon a candidate, but I was glad of the opportunity to take my record to the people. I have done a man's work for 30 years, and I believed I could convince men that a qualified woman who has made good in some other field of public service need not hesitate to enter this field. I hoped to do something toward eliminating sex prejudice, and I believed some of us women must lead the way so that other women will follow in the assumption of new political responsibilities. To have made a creditable campaign, that alone would have satisfied me."

Her travels must have been trying enough, although her account of them showed her full appreciation of many ludicrous phases.

"I spoke two and three times a day every day, except Sundays, for six weeks," she said. "Sundays I dictated letters, wrote a column of 'political pointers' which I published at regular advertising rates in eight Democratic papers in the district, and prepared the copy for handbills and announcements.

"I had no assistance from any man, financially or otherwise. What little money was spent came out of my own pocket.

"I made a point of getting the women together in the afternoons and impressing upon them that it is within their power to get anything they want accomplished in govern-

MRS. L. W. ST. CLAIR MOSS

Political Philosophy of Mrs. Moss

A NEW day has dawned and it isn't the men, spitting and chewing on the street corners, who can say what is going to happen in politics now, but the women who must be consulted.

Any woman who can manage a family budget can understand a tariff bill.

The market basket has gone into politics; women follow.

The Esch-Cummins act is guaranteeing the railroads 6 per cent on their investment while the farmer is not making 1 per cent. American people should inform themselves why freight rates advanced from 35 to 40 per cent; passenger rates, 20 per cent; Pullman rates 50 per cent.

It might mean money in the pockets of good natured American public if it would take a night off from the movies or the evening auto spin, to read the newspaper reports of what is happening in Congress.

MANY special interests are taken care of by the politicians, but not many of our representatives go out of their way to appeal to or promise to represent women wage earners, of whom there are millions. It isn't only to help women that I would see their special interests represented. It is to help the men as well. Our best men are exploited by women. Men will be able to develop fully only when women are developed beyond the parasitic stage.

Political life to be well balanced, needs men and women. The great war discovered woman as a citizen. When women were called upon to help win the war, they did it. They are now needed to help win an economic peace. This is the job of the American wife and mother. The ballot is her weapon of defense.

My platform: Lower taxation for the masses; relief of present agricultural conditions; economy in governmental administration; a tariff that will not raise the cost of living or destroy foreign markets; international co-operation to end war; better moral standards in politics.

League of Nations Abandons Hope That the United States Will Come In Unreservedly

Favors Virtually Any Concession to Get Us to Assume a Share of Its Arbitral and Ameliorative Undertakings.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 24 (By Mail).

AROUND a council table in St. James' Palace, the home of the Prince of Wales, gathered this week the representatives of an agency for peace brought into being by an American President. George III, in painted portrait, with others of his line, looked down upon the gathering. But oddly, as it must have seemed to a Martian visitor unfamiliar with the ways of our international politics and of the American Senate, none was at the council board to speak for the American nation. Europe was there, and South America, and the Orient, but not the country whose idealism in 1917-18, as expressed by its leader of those years, made possible their face-to-face exchange of views.

The League of Nations, evidently, is functioning. This was a session of the Council of the League, called for the discussion of the mandates question. Except for the setting—the great red and gold room, entered through a smaller room hung with exhibits of the tools of war—there was nothing showy about the meeting. It might have been a meeting of a bank's board of directors. M. Viviani, with his perfect poker face, was there as the representative of France, and Balfour, an Earl since his Washington achievement, was spokesman for Britain. There was nothing to call forth the splendid oratory of which Viviani showed himself master at Washington: he spoke briefly and to the point on a moot question of league procedure. Lord Balfour was sleepy-eyed. Indeed, he may even have been asleep at one stage; for he lifted his head from concealing hands when a vote on a minor point was about to be taken, confessed that he had not followed the discussion and begged to be excused from voting.

Doing Its Best.

These were certainly not supermen, nor did they wear the aspect of men administering a super-government. They seemed, rather, to be going about a workaday job in a very human fashion—comporting themselves in about the same manner as a committee of the House or Senate.

It is this very lack of spectacular features in the work of the league, I am told, that keeps it from being better advertised in the United States. Vitally important matters—such as control of the opium traffic and prevention of "white slavery"—are being dealt with, but they are not of the sort that capture the public imagination; they do not lend themselves to the dramatization which Mr. Hughes gave to his disarmament proposals at the opening of the Washington conference. Consequently, it is often said by critics of the league in the United States that it is doing nothing. I imagine that former Gov. Cox, over hear to study post-war conditions, will make much of the fact that the league is doing the best it can without the United States and that this best, while not ostentatious, is considerable.

Manifestly, the league is gravely handicapped even in the simplest, most innocuous matters of world concern—purely humanitarian projects, by the non-co-operation of the United States. For a time, I am informed by a league official, communications of the league to the American State Department went unanswered. This condition no longer exists, Secretary Hughes being now given credit for scrupulous attention to letters from the league, but the position of the United States on international questions with which the league is grappling must still be ascertained in a roundabout way.

The Present Issue.

All hope that the United States will come into the league appears finally to have vanished. The end toward which the league is working is that of limited co-operation by the United States. Americans connected with the league—there are several in the secretariat—point out that the issue is no longer league or no league, but co-operation in the humanitarian activities of the league, and in the International Court of Justice, as opposed to utter aloofness. In other words, will the United States continue to truckle to the opinion of a minority who go into hysterics at the very mention of the word "league," or will it openly join the league in work which by no stretch of the imagination can draw it into entangling alliances?

The United States has said through the State Department, that it cannot join with the league in sponsorship of the Court of Justice because it has no voice in the selection of the Judges. On behalf of the league, it is being said that a way will be found to accommodate the United States in this respect; the United States, it is suggested, might become a member of the league only for the purpose of electing Judges, with no futher obligations whatever.

In a nutshell, the league's position is this: It has abandoned hope that the United States will come in unreservedly, but will make virtually any concession to get the United States to assume a share in its arbitral and ameliorative undertakings.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Our Greatest Writer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal, in an article reprinted by you, after having established Mr. Ludwig Lewisohn's inaptitude as a literary critic, and that the Literary Digest poll was not representative of the American reading public, is apparently content to let the matter rest there. Though not an authority on literature, I read Mr. Lewisohn's instructive criticism whenever afforded the opportunity and it seems to me that, apart from the general training and perception that is the prime requisite of a critic, he possesses one other indispensable quality that puts him a shade above the ordinary critic—his almost if not absolute freedom from class or caste prejudice.

If left for the reading public to decide, Harold Bell Wright, Robert W. Chambers and Rupert Hughes would have fair chances of being accorded first place. Yet at least two of these would be unable to win commendable mention among even the lesser of critics. The American people like sensationalism, and just as they choose those sensational and scandalous news stories in the daily press, so to a large extent they choose their fiction authors. Mr. Upton Sinclair has ideas of social justice (which are invariably the central theme of his novels) that are supposed to be notoriously unpopular, yet he has the knack of getting himself read. But the average reader would turn from one of Mr. Sinclair's novels to one of Mr. Robert W. Chambers' later novels with their impossible plots and counter plots without any revulsion of feeling.

Mr. Chambers' prostitution of talent is no more apparent to them than Mr. Sinclair's exaggerated sentimentalism and much-strained efforts for melodramatic effect. Sinclair shocks them and Chambers scares them.

"Miss Lulu Bett" would have never won a literary prize had the American reading public been the judge, yet I think it may be safely said to be literature. We of the nonliterary profession have never received the instruction in literature to make us competent judges and this may apply to many who have attained success in literary endeavor. My own humble vote, did I possess one, would go to Sherwood Anderson.

The Near East Relief.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICE a report by Mrs. N. H. Austin concerning the Near East Relief, in which this lady says that only one-half of the work has been done, and that there is a lot still undone. From the recent controversy which took place in the local office of the Near East Relief, it would appear that the public has not been taken into the confidence of the national office concerning the vast expenditures made out of the funds collected for that worthy cause.

It is to be hoped that they will be able to render satisfactory accounting, after which, I have no doubt, the work of raising more money will continue.

ONE INTERESTED.

Enforce the Pistol Statute.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A FEW years ago the Police Department was trying to enforce the law against carrying concealed weapons. There was objection made by citizens that this interfered with the private rights of citizens. I do not believe that there are many good citizens who would object to being searched or questioned for carrying concealed weapons, in fact, 99 per cent of the good citizens would do everything they could to encourage any effort that could be made to carry out the law in that direction.

There are hundreds of cases probably every day right in this city where the use of firearms has been made in holdups and othr crime, that the public never hears of. Only a few weeks ago two holdup men jumped on the running board of a machine driven by one of the salesmen of my concern, and at the point of two revolvers he was ordered to drive on and was relieved of his valuables when arriving at an isolated place.

This is one of the many cases that the public does not hear of because it does not get to the newspapers. We hear of such cases very frequently, and it is only a few of the many to hear of. If the law against carrying concealed firearms would be enforced, this enterprise so many are engaged in right now—because it is so easy to get by with—would be made more difficult, and there would be fewer citizens and policemen killed.

C. F. BLANKE.

Blaming the Engineer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I THINK it a shame for a jury of men to blame a dead man for the terrible wreck. He is not here to defend himself, so it is easy to blame him, but a man with a clear record for 37 years should get more consideration.

He would not forget at a time when he had so many lives at stake. If his brakes did not work, the signals did not mean anything, and if the signals were defective, the brakes could not save the situation.

A MOTHER OF SEVEN.

THE FLEXIBLE TARIFF.

The Senate has adopted the flexible tariff plan by which the President is empowered to raise or lower rates as circumstances require. The plan as adopted is hedged about with restrictions, but the objections to the original proposal, in which both Republican and Democratic Senators joined, may as competently be preferred against the modified method.

Those objections were offered on two grounds—constitutionality and practicability. In the first instance it was pointed out that the Constitution directs that revenue measures must originate in the House. The power now vested in the President is a departure from that custom. It is a power which the founders of this Government would never have intrusted to any individual. There have been fiery Congresses in our history that would have shouted impeachment if a Chief Magistrate acquiesced in such a grant.

As regards practicability, it was argued that the executive would not have the time or opportunity for properly and justly determining when rates should be increased or decreased. Already the demands on the President's time and energy are enormous. Many questions can be given only the most perfunctory attention; many have to be delegated to subordinates. That condition will seriously be aggravated by this piling of Ossa on Pelion.

As a matter of fact, the proposal for a flexible tariff is a party confession that a tariff act cannot be drawn in the face of present world conditions. Political expediency, however, precludes a candid acknowledgment of that fact. November elections are coming on. Accordingly a tariff act must be placed on the statutes.

How business can thrive or even survive under such insecurity of flexibility is the practical question. Politically an electorate may be wanting to know what has become of Mr. Harding's campaign vow to love, cherish and obey the Constitution.

A JOB FOR SHERLOCK.

At a congressional hearing on gasoline prices the other day curiosity was expressed as to whether there was any real competition between the units of the Standard Oil group. The cautious will hesitate to say flatly there is not, but it may be ventured that the competition is not the ruthless, cut-throat brand. The law of the jungle, under which only the fittest survive, is not to be found in the Standard Oil statutes. Since the famous decree of dissolution the component parts of Standard Oil, each in its separate sphere, seem to have operated successfully unmolested and unharassed by any of the others. Perhaps a commission will be appointed to probe into this mystery. Its chairman should be Sherlock Holmes.

AMERICA'S LEADING WRITER.

The Literary Digest recently invited 29 of the foremost American literary critics to name their choice for the "first five" American writers, giving their reasons for the nominations. The result of the poll was that Joseph Hergesheimer was named as our chief literary light; that is, he received more nominations for first place than any of his contemporaries. The significance of this lies in the obvious fact that a distinctly new school of writers has arisen, whose work, in the opinion of professional judges, has greater merit than that of the old favorites.

In view of this fact, it may surprise laymen that the author of "Main Street" did not receive the palm, as he undoubtedly typifies the new trend to a larger number of readers than does the creator of "Cytherea." In sooth, the critics themselves seemed to hesitate. The deciding element, it appears, was Mr. Hergesheimer's craftsmanship. Espousing virtually the same cause that Mr. Lewis champions; namely, the revolt against provincialism, spiritual repression and conventional standards of conduct and thought, he has done it with more skill, with greater artistry.

The new idol is no novice. During a moderately long and very busy literary career he contented himself until lately with producing the commonplace stories of romance, adventure and industry. Comparatively late in life (he is 44) he joined the insurgents. But when he arrived he brought a formidable equipment, and hence was the more esteemed as an ally.

In the works of the new writers—and among them should be mentioned Cabell, Dell, Dos Passos, Miss Cather, Anderson, Mencken, Sandburg and Miss Lowell—are many things which are unlovely and almost offensive. Especially is this true of the novelists. But this, in the life of mankind, is no time for sweetness and light. We gravely suspect that much in our society is wrong—not more in its conduct, perhaps, than in its standards for judging conduct. It is Ibsen's old fight, all over again. Such a condition calls for candor and penetration, brutal if necessary. In the new constellation we cannot complain of a lack of that.

IRELAND'S LOSS AND HOPE.

Had it been asked what, in the mortal view, would be the worst blow to Irish recovery and peace the reply might well have been: "The death of Arthur Griffith." To an analogous question at the close of the American Civil War it might have been answered: "The death of Abraham Lincoln." A few weeks ago equal gravity was attached to the death of Walter Rathenau.

To mortal calculation these calamities were and are of such magnitude as to leave little room for optimism. The Republic of the United States, however, did survive in peace without its great leader in the vale of darkness. Germany's situation following the loss of her foremost statesman is still desperate. The one hope incident to the untimely death of Griffith is that his loss will brace his followers to renewed determination and that the influence of his policy and personality on the hearts and minds of his countrymen will take a firmer hold in death than in life.

The excellence of Griffth was that he dared to be right when his reason told him what was right. The emotional side, and therefore the side of least resistance, in a crusade for national liberty such as Ireland has gone through, is the side of rebellion and intractability. Griffith was as extreme in his patriotism as any of his fellow fighters. But he stopped at the point of fanaticism. He abandoned the happy orthodoxy of perpetual irreconcilability when his brains told him that the Irish Free State would be free and that fighting over a fictitious issue would only mean needless suffering to his people and damage to his country.

Ireland at this critical hour grievously needs the Griffith mind, the Griffith balance and the Griffith conscience. No fervor of hope or prayer will blink that fact. Fate times its blow at Ireland's zero hour. Yet, the steepest hill has been passed. The forces of constitutional government and of the legal majority have won. It remained for Griffith only to organize the victory and set it on its way in peace. The sobering effect of the patriot's death upon his countrymen of both factions may, and we believe will, be a distinct aid to his survivors.

EXPENSIVE BOOKKEEPING.

The good people of Moberly and Randolph County, Missouri, have a right to feel that they are paying too much for bookkeeping at the State Penitentiary. They have loaned Walter Bundridge, their leading bank wrecker, to the State for a few years to work out what he owes them for misappropriated deposits. As near as they can figure it, his services will cost them a trifle over $53,000 a year.

The period of Mr. Bundridge's indenture, as fixed by the Randolph County Court which accepted his plea of guilty, is 10 years, but if he does a good job of bookkeeping and behaves himself, as he probably will, he will get two and a half years off for good behavior, which will make his stay only seven and a half years at most.

There is no assurance, of course, that he will stay that long. What with merits easily earned and paroles and pardons easily obtained, it is hard for a man, with the best intentions, to stay in prison. But if, despite the opportunities which are considerately provided for a bright young banker to get out, he stays in the seven and a half years, Bundridge will be expiating his guilt and obligations to depositors at the figure stated.

This facile adjustment of the account does not include the cost of chasing Bundridge over several states and into Canada and the board bills for him and his younger brother, Verne, while they were making up their minds in Hunstville jail to plead guilty. These costs come out of the pockets of taxpayers. They constitute the penalty incurred by a community and county for the possession of a fast-fingered and fleet-footed financier.

As long as bank presidents can be assured of bookkeeping jobs in the penitentiary at $53,000 a year, collected in advance for seven and a half years, there will be encouragement for the wrecking of banks and the robbing of depositors.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

WEBSTER'S ADDENDUM.

(Written for the purpose of clearing up certain expressions frequently used in our daily papers.)

NORMALCY—A condition dealt with in futures. Similar to the millenium except that it will be more welcome if it ever arrives. Not so popular with certain political personages as it was. Coiner of word fears that unless his dream comes true that he will have to give up golf and go to work.

FOUR-POWER TREATY—Not exactly clear on this. Sponsored by the Senator from Massachusetts, so must be right. Thought to be an improved model of League of Nations. In what way not known. Not enough kick in it to be of much consequence. Not a cause for insomnia.

PEACE BY RESOLUTION.—Another comedy by our Senate. Not so good as some that they have forced on the dear people. Probably would go good in a junior circuit. Was supposed to restore financial equilibrium of our late enemy.

SOLDIERS' BONUS—Something the ex-soldier will never receive. Will make good campaign material for years to come.

REPUBLICAN—A state of mind best described in Psychiatry. People in this condition know a great deal if they could think of it. Friends of Labor. Custodians of the full dinner pail. Angels who announce the return of prosperity. Motto—Pax Vobiscum.

DEMOCRAT.—A paragon of virtue. A follower of the Golden Rule. Misunderstood by some people but always suffers in silence. Will receive his reward in heaven.

PRESIDENT.—A squeaky doll. Pressure from the correct quarter makes him say Uncle. The only man in the country who simultaneously has the time to play golf and the wherewithal to buy golf clubs. Also the only man getting more footage in the movies than Charlie Chaplin. Charlie makes more money, but he thinks up his own stuff. Charlie not so funny, but professional comedians never are.

PRESIDENT'S PHYSICIAN.—Your guess is as good as ours. Conduct during late hotel fire proves him to be worthy of the star he wears. Should be decorated for bravery shown during conflagration. Also for the solicitous attitude shown toward the wounded ex-buck.

GOLF.—Otherwise known as pasture pool. Brain work not necessary. Very popular with men too old to chase anything but a ball.

BOLSHIVIK.—A nut with a brainstorm brought on by a desire to spend other people's money. People so afflicted will not steal money, but raise hell in the hope that it shall be given unto them. Troublesome until dead.

JIMREED.—A Democratic-Republican. A conscientious objector to any idea except his own. An opportunist. Will die of Osteomyelitis in the region of the brain cavity. Prognoses—Guarded.

CAPITAL.—The Invisible Empire using the party now in power as their legislative agents. The Charmed Circle whose gods are green and yellow, and whose disciples have Republican inclinations. Will donate liberally to the party of the right part. Will pay in full.

LABOR.—A man greatly maligned for looking after his own interests. Foolishly asks remuneration for services rendered. Forgets his benefactors easily and votes for a change, to his sorrow. Seekers after normalcy. Rainbow chasers.

STRIKE.—A cessation of activities. Another example of man's inhumanity to man. A struggle between capital and labor paid for by the dear public. A thing our President knows not how to handle and knows not that he knows not how to handle. Another excuse for calling a conference.

MORATORIUM.—The see-you-next-week spirit. Some of our best people have been afflicted with this all their lives. A condition hoped for by most men in business today. This condition to last until the misplaced Normalcy returns.

VOLSTEAD.—A camel who walks like a man. A fox who couldn't reach the grapes. The man who made the bootlegger's paradise possible. The man who took away one-third of the ruination of men. He will now attack the women and the song. Let us hope that he takes the song first.

Dear Just a Minute: What is the significance of the term "panetela" as used over your verses? I read and love 'em, but can't fathom the heading.

A. W. JOHNSON.

Salisbury, Mo.

Pan was supposably the all-god of the Greeks, and we have from him the word Pan-American, meaning all-American, etc., etc. Tela means thin. We therefore have panetela, which means saying in a thin way all there is to be said on a given subject, as for example our panetela of last Friday on reconstruction.

STARVED ROCK.

MILES and miles of level roadways;
Acres upon acres of waving corn,
Such as an Indian never knew
In those olden, golden days
Before the white man came.
A river winding placidly
Amid these bottom lands,
When lo!
Titanic, gigantic, overpowering,
In its awe-inspiring height,
With dwarfed pines upon its brow,
And the Illinois River bathing its feet
Stands Starved Rock.
The restless whites of today
Camp around its base
And leisurely climb its dusty sides
To gaze out over the same river
That Pere Marquette and Joliet
And La Salle looked upon
In those olden, golden days.
The modern traveler reads the tablet
Upon the top of time-defying Starved Rock,
Which tells of these pious fathers
And their intrepid explorations.
And the legend is retold of Indian tribes,
Who, warring, kept the one enemy group
Imprisoned on the top of this great plateau
Until all had starved to death—
Brave warrior, dusky maiden,
An wee papoosie at his mother's breast.
We take a little modern boat
And noisily chug-chug around the base
Of this great natural wonder,
And see the hugeness of the Rock again,
Its top crowned with century-old pines;
But below, and overhanging the river,
We see what La Salle and Joliet doubtless saw,
And in their gentle Latin voices called
"Les hirondelles"—the swallows.
These swiftly darting birds were here,
Building their conical nests of mud
In those olden, golden days, sans doute.
And when the dust of our grandchildren
Has mingled with the dust
Of those red-skinned children
Who starved upon the Rock,
The hirondelles will still be there.
Nor you nor I nor anyone
From Darwin can tell
From whence they come,
Nor whither are they going.
Altho' they'll probably build their nests
Of Illinois River mud,
Beneath Starved Rock, as they did then,
As they do now, and as they will
World without end—
And all their days such golden days!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

A NEW DEMENTIA.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE midsummer heat has strange effects. For example, President Ban Johnson of the American League has just announced that $100,000 has been appropriated to erect a monument to baseball in East Potomac Park, Washington, D. C. What sort of dementia this may be can be left to specialists. The important thing to note is that it is dementia of a weird sort. It used to be a custom for great conquerors to build triumphal arches to commemorate their victories. * * * But it is somewhat novel for such intelligent business men as baseball club owners are supposed to be to throw away a fortune to attempt to glorify a commercial sport. Ban Johnson and his colleagues' perspective is obfuscated. Baseball has been the means of making their fortunes or adding to their fortunes. As such, it also represents to them the focal point of their sentiment. But, even considering these things, it is surprising that they cannot see the wastefulness and absurdity of building a statue to the game. Has anyone ever seen a monument dedicated to railroads, to steel, to oil or to cotton? Yet there would be far more reason to commemorate these things which have helped build up the country. It is to be hoped that the midsummer heat does not affect the exponents of ping-pong, croquet, checkers and ring-around-the-rosy as it has the baseball magnates. Otherwise, East Potomac Park might become a place of a thousand sculptured idiocies. If commercialized baseball continues to do things in this manner it will need a monument, not for glorification, but for the preservation of its memory.

SCALING MOUNT EVEREST.

Willis Fletcher Johnson in North American Review.

THOUGH the full measure of success be denied to the gallant attempt to scale Mount Everest, the adventure has certainly been crowned with the glory of unrivaled achievement. The explorers reached a higher point than ever before was attained; higher than the very summit of any other peak on the globe. "Mont Blanc," sang Byron, "is the monarch of mountains," and Coleridge in an immortal hymn hailed it as "sovran Blanc." Yet these men on Everest were more than two miles above the summit of the great French peak. It was nearly a century and a half ago that, after years of effort, Balmat and Paccard first of all men surmounted Mont Blanc, and created a sensation which the conquering of Everest will not greatly surpass. It was within our own recollection that the Matterhorn was scaled for "one crowded hour of glorious life," which ended in unprecedented tragedy, and it seems only yesterday that the height of Mount McKinley was fully gained. Whether it is this year or the next, or still many years to come, that

. . . lonely Himalayan height,
Gray pillar of the Indian sky, will in turn surrender its virgin crest to the resolute wooing of men who reckon nothing gained until all things are attained. Their ambition is not fruitless nor vain. Like that which led explorers to seek the Poles, it is of the spirit which makes man the master of his fate.

Events in the Social World

Present Period of Social Inactivity Resembles the Quiet Before the Storm, as Attention Soon Will Turn to Gay Affairs in Honor of Those Returning From Their Summer Retreats.

THE exodus of Society to vacationing spots has been so unusually heavy this season that early August finds social activity in the city at its lowest ebb and the calendar of events with no entries save little gatherings for informal swimming, dancing or porch parties, and an occasional table of bridge. Like a period of quiet before a storm the days pass with only occasional whispers of the half-formed plans for the autumn season when madam and madamoiselle shall have returned from their summer retreats, and Society will turn its attention with renewed zest to the gay affairs to be given for the coterie of damsels who will be presented to Society and the interesting activities which always center about those who choose the fall as the time to speak their marriage vows.

Children Have Gala Day at Two Michigan Resorts

Two Fancy Dress Masquerade Balls for Them at Harbor Point and Wequetonsing Bring Out Quaint Costumes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARBOR POINT-WEQUETONSING, Mich., Aug. 12.—These attractive twin resorts, alike in purpose, separated only by a narrow neck of water and one so far as social life is concerned, have been ruled by the children during the last few days. Many dinner dances and bridge parties were given by the elders, but it was the younger set and especially the small children, that had the glorious times.

There were two grand fancy dress masquerade balls for the children, one at the spacious Harbor Point Casino and the other at the pretty white casino just under the tall bluff at Wequetonsing. Both were under the direction of Miss Belle Chamberlain of Detroit, who is in charge of the dancing at both resorts. Also there were water contests and boat races for the younger set.

On Friday the "Weque" casino was a fairyland, and all the wonderful characters pictured in the books of babyhood were there. On Saturday night the "Point" casino was crowded with quaintly clad tots, costumed regardless of expense or labor. At both parties a large gathering of laughing elders looked on, and the decorations at both places were similar.

At the "Point" ball the brilliantly costumed youngsters marched down the center led by Duncan Meier, son of D. I. Meier of St. Louis, clad as the Pied Piper of Hamlin, and blowing a horn. He was followed by Dorothy and Duncan Dobson of St. Louis. Little Dorothy was a butterfly and Duncan Jr. was a pirate. Frederick Meier as a Chinese boy won the trophy for the most attractive boy's costume and Henry Meier was dressed as an Indian. Youthful Dan Schlafly, son of J. F. Schlafly of St. Louis was a diminutive female pickaninny, well blacked except where it didn't show, and he carried off the trophy for the most ludicrous boy's attire.

Hila Howard, daughter of Clarence H. Howard of St. Louis was an

ST. LOUISANS AT NORTHERN AND EASTERN SUMMER RESORTS

orchid, and her dainty little lavender dress excited much favorable comment. Frances Bates, daughter of Charles F. Bates, 4325 Westminster place, St. Louis, wore the quaint attire of a Quaker girl.

Lee Wallace of St. Louis was a farmer. Billy Stanard, son of E. T. Stanard of 4512 West Pine boulevard, St. Louis, was a tiller of the soil. Mary Louise Kennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kennard of 4960 Pershing avenue, St. Louis, was a charming gypsy girl.

The Wequetonsing ball was equally magnificent. As the children came down the steps from either side of the stage and marched down the center of the hall under the flying ribbons of serpentine paper, a beautiful picture was presented.

There was the designing "vamp" there, too. She was little, but, Oh my! She wore a close-fitting black satin with a train and showed bewitching bare shoulders and arms and couldn't make her eyes behave. She was Dorothy Dittman of St. Louis and was desclared the most comically dressed girl.

Louise McCluney, daughter of Mrs. Samuel McCluney of St. Louis was most attractive as a Russian girl in white satin and white furs.

Mary Pettus, daughter of William Pettus of St. Louis, was an old-fashioned lady, and her brother, Billy, was a funny clown.

Pauline Lumaghi, a little girl belonging to Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Lumaghi of St. Louis represented the very soul of patriotism. Her gorgeous red, white and blue costume was composed entirely of silken flags.

Proud authority marked the appearance of Mary Grey McNeely, daughter of Mrs. James McNeely of St. Louis, who was a swaggering policeman. Edward Dittman, brother of the little vamp, was a horny-handed tiller of the soil.

Dwight and James Wear, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wear, and likewise Billy O'Fallon of St. Louis, were pirates bold in swashbuckling attire and murderous knives.

Mary Gaunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Gaunt of the Missouri metropolis, was clad in white and covered with real flowers from head to knees.

Madge Mackey of St. Louis and Patricia Sergeant of Evansville, Ind., were swarthy gypsy girls, and George Mackey of St. Louis was an Indian chief. Eloise Hutchins wearing silver armor and carrying a shield, represented an Amazon. Katherine Church of St. Louis was amazing as both a boy and a girl. When she approached she was the former, in white, and when she turned and walked away she was the latter in black.

Other youthful St. Louis participants in the two affairs included "Penny" Strellinger, son of Penfield Strellinger; Frances and Maffitt Bates, Billy Pettus, Mary Spear, Helen McNeely, T. S. McPheeters Jr., Dorothy Reismeyer, Billy Dittman, Phillip Becker, John Sluder W. K. Stanard II, Robert Schlafley and Winifred Duncan.

The aquatic events, which are in charge of E. H. Steedman and William Barnette of St. Louis are attracting the attention of Wequetonsing and Harbor Point folk and especially the younger set. In a recent contest Sam McCluney of St. Louis won the tub race; Elmira Steedman of St. Louis the girls' 25-yard swimming dash, and first place in the girls' fancy diving event.

Week Has Been Devoted to Yacht Racing in the East.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The New York Yacht Club fleet which arrived at Marblehead on Tuesday received a royal welcome and the week has been one round of gayeties connected with the visit of the yachtsmen. On Wednesday the races for the King's Cup were held off Marblehead. This trophy was given in 1912 by King George V to the N. Y. Y. C. to be raced for each year, the races open to any yacht of any size belonging to a recognized yacht club. It seemed as if no one along the shore was so unfortunate not to have friends who owned some kind of a yacht and who invited him out to see the races.

This week was also yachting week for the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead and 125 yachts started in 19 classes, from the big vessels who raced for miles outside to the little catboats sailed by skippers under 15 years of age, whose course was wholly inside the harbor.

Jack Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon of St. Louis, member of the Annisquam Yacht Club, continued his series of victories on Saturday and came in second in the Bird Class, his Albatross being only a short distance behind the winning Mavis.

Last Saturday the most exciting contest of the summer was held at the North Shore swimming pool, Magnolia, a large number being attracted by the children's swimming and diving exhibition. Prominent among the winners were the three children of Mrs. Luther Ely Smith of New York, grandchildren of Mrs. Samuel Kennard of St. Louis, with whom they are spending the summer at Magnolia. In the 25-yard back stroke for the senic midgets, Adeline Smith, finally won after the closest race of the afternoon. SaLess Smith showed her mastery of the side stroke in the 2.-yard dash for midgets, defeating William Esson by a hair's breadth. In the 25-yard swim for senior midgets Luther Smith did not do as well as his sisters in their classes, yet gained third honors. The diving exhibition for midgets, always a popular number, was as interesting as ever. Among those entered in this event was Sa..ees Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey and family of St. Louis have arrived at th Ocean Side, Magnolia, to spend the remainder of the summer The family has usually spent the entire season at the North Shore, where they have taken an active part in the social life of the colony.

The Saturday night ball at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, was an interesting affair. Among those entertaining guests at dinner before the dance were Miss Gloria Geisinger of St. Louis and her friend, Miss Isabelle Cawthra, who together had 10 guests at their table. Miss Geisinger was extremely attractive in a crepe gown of a de. cate pink, while Miss Cawthra wore a frock of pink silk.

Missourians Taking Part in Social Life of Washington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Missouri is to have a place among the States which are to have rooms in the New Woman's Capitol. The National Woman's party proposes to build on the historic site of the old brick building used after the burning of the Capitol in 1814.

This site and the buildings are the gift of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of New York. Ten women lawyers are working on the problem of finding State discriminations in laws affecting women and Miss Lillian Bass, a graduate of George Washington University, just finished the digest of the Missouri laws showing the legal position of women in Missouri.

The Missouri State Society was the guest of honor at a mass meeting held in the garden of the National Woman's party headquarters last Monday night. Senator Selden P. Spencer, president of the society, was out of town. A number of prominent other Missourians attended, however, including Wallace Bassford, former secretary to Speaker Champ Clark, former Governor and Mrs. Folk and Prof. and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins.

Mrs. J. M. Thomson a Visitor.

Mrs. James M. Thomson, daughter of the late Champ Clark, who has been visiting her sister-in-law, the Misses Thomson, at Summit Point, W. Va., made a motor trip through the Shenandoah valley last week. Upon her return to Summit Point she motored over to Marshall, W. Va., to inspect Marshall College, of which her father was president when only 21 years old, the youngest college president in American history. This was in 1873-1874 and Mrs. Thomson found that he was remembered still by venerable members of the faculty.

Mrs. Thomson has now gone to New York by motor, where she is the guest of Miss Miriam Marsh, daughter of Col. Edward Marsh of Iowa, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. After a stay of several weeks there she will return to Washington en route to New Orleans.

Miss Catherine Letts entertained a large and fashionable audience at an outdoor card party and tea Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. William M. Guthrie of St. Louis, Mo., who is her house guest. Twelve guests were present and the event took place at "Ayrlawn," the country home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Letts. An informal dance followed the card party and tea at which additional guests were present.

Senator Spencer who has returned from the West will be one of the group of Congressmen, Senators and Representatives composing the

How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, just bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this more refreshing than an hour's rest.

As a wrinkle-remover the saxolite lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deepest furrows, as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour is improved wonderfully. The simple ingredients of course can be had at any drug store, and you need not hesitate to try the lotion, as it will not harm any skin in the least.

ST. LOUISANS AT NORTHERN AND EASTERN SUMMER RESORTS

American delegation of the interparliamentary union designed to promote world peace who will attend the annual meeting of the union which begins in Vienna on Aug. 28. Among the other Senators are Senators McKinley, Ladd, Caraway and Harris. They will remain in Europe about a month.

Miss Nellie Millspaugh, daughter of Representative Millspaugh of Missouri, entertained a group of 12 girl friends at tea on Saturday at the girl scouts tea house on the Speedway.

Senator and Mrs. James A. Reed returned to Washington last week and have reopened their town house. Many others of the Missouri delegation also arrived to attend the opening sessions of Congress next Tuesday which is reconvening after its brief recess. There is little hope now that there will be another recess save for a few days before this session merges into the next one on the first Monday in December. This presages a fall full of gayety and social happening and from now on Washington, socially speaking, after its brief eclipse of the summer.

Mrs. Charles Beverly Ewing, widow of Maj. Ewing, Medical Corps U. S. A., formerly of St. Louis, is at Monterey Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Johnson. Later she will go to Kansas City to visit her daughter, Mrs. Myron E. Bagley.

Before leaving for the West Mrs. Selden P. Spencer gave a luncheon last Sunday for former Vice President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, who have been greatly feted on their last visit to Washington. Every Senator and his wife in Washington were present. President and Mrs. Harding also entertained guests for the Marshalls.

The Henderson pool continues to grow in popularity and among those enjoying its cool waters last week were Mrs. Audrieus Jones, wife of Senator Jones; Mrs. Atlee Pomerene, Mrs. George W. Pepper and Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, wives of other Senators. Mrs. Henderson will return Sept. 1 from Bar Harbor.

DUTCH PAINTINGS ARE POPULAR AT MUSEUM

50 Canvases One of Interesting Attractions There—They Will Remain in View Till Aug. 31.

The loan exhibition of paintings of the modern Dutch school, which begins its third week at the City Art Museum today, is proving very popular as a temporary relaxation from the brilliant and often overstimulating coloring of "modernistic" art.

The 50 canvases on view are almost without exception of substantial craftsmanship with careful attention given to harmony of color, correct values and drawing. Climatic and atmospheric conditions in Holland are reflected in no small degree in the art of the landscape painters of the country. Because of the low altitude of the land, the skies are frequently overcast and the air is often heavy with mist; but notwithstanding this, there is always an abundance of light—softly diffused, seldom brilliant or glaring. It is this peculiar quality of gentle yet pervading light, requiring a most dexterous handling of values, that is noted immediately in the paintings of the Dutch masters of landscape, Jakob and Willem Maris, Anton Mauve, J. H. Weissenbruch, and in a lesser measure in the brilliant compositions of Theophile de Bock and the stormy marines of Willem Mesdag, all of whom are represented in the present exhibition.

Three by Jacob Maris.

Three splendid canvases reveal the ability of Jakob Maris (1837-1899) as a painter of the low, vaporous clouds and the moist landscape of Holland. His "Netherlands Landscape," lent by Edward Mallinckrodt, depicts a broad expanse of great, fleecy clouds, with here and there a bit of dull blue sky. In the foreground is a small stream, its low, moist banks carpeted in green. Against the low sky line rise the arms of windmills and the flat roofs of a village. There is no direct sunlight, but a gently diffused illumination reveals color and detail clearly. "A Town in Holland," lent by Charles P. Pettus, is more somber in tone, the entire foreground and middle distance being enveloped in the shadow of heavy masses of clouds. The graduation of values is masterly, the quaint buildings of the distance maintain their respective planes unmistakably beyond the old bridge and the water of the foreground. "The Harbor at Dordrecht," by the same artist, lent by William K. Bixby, shows a busy commercial scene with lighters and sailboats crowding the foreground, while on the further shore lies the city, subdued in haze and smoke. The sky is clouded, but luminous, its light imparting a shimmering quality of brilliance to the misty atmosphere typical of the country.

J. H. Weissenbruch (1824-1903), another interpreter of the soft, mist-laden atmosphere of Holland, is represented by a "Scene in Holland," lent also by Bixby. It has a foreground of water, with a thin line of shore in the distance, along which the ever-present Dutch windmills lift their arms. Above is a broad expanse of sparkling sky filled with moisture-laden clouds, the fine rendition of which was Weissenbruch's special delight.

Animals Depicted.

Willem Maris (1844-1910), brother of Jacob Maris, is a painter of cattle, but the animals which he depicts are an integral part of the Dutch landscape, not still life studies with a landscape background. The exhibition contains two of his compositions, "Landscape With Cattle," lent by Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, and "Cattle," lent by Bixby. At a period when the rendition of every detail was thought essential, Willem Maris had the good judgment to subordinate the drawing of his cattle until they are merged into and form a part of the landscape. In the present examples, the cattle are enveloped in the delicate, luminous atmosphere which pervades the compositions; and through the artist's adherence to the higher truths of broad effects of light and color, are far more vital and real than if minutely painted.

Another pre-eminent painter of animals in a surrounding of landscape is Anton Mauve (1838-1891), by whom there are seven paintings in the current loan exhibition. His favorite subject was sheep, of the pictorial qualities of which he possessed a consummate knowledge. Mrs. Daniel Catlin lends to the exhibition two important examples of the work of Mauve. The larger of these, entitled "Landscape With Sheep," is particularly noteworthy for its subtle, at mospheric treatment and its idyllic sentiment. It shows a shepherd with his flock in the low, soft light at the close of day. The rendition of the sheep is masterly in its feeling for form and texture as modified by the gently diffused evening light and the shadows of the gray green foliage. Mrs. Catlin's other Mauve, called "Landscape, the Flock," and Charles P. Pettus' "The Flock," are both typical pastoral compositions by this artist. The "Landscape" lent by John T. Davis is a variation, however, from the Mauve's usual theme of sheep. It shows a barren landscape of sand dunes with sparse patches of stunted grass and shrubbery, across which travel a group of peasants with a horse and cart. The sun strikes hotly, but not brilliantly, upon the parched ground, outlining with well-defined shadows the figures of the stolidly plodding peasants.

Mauve's Work.

The three examples of Mauve's work presented to the Museum by Mrs. Catlin are an important portion of the exhibition. Of these, the painting, "By the River," is perhaps the more popular by reason of its fine treatment of autumnal browns and greens, its remarkable feeling for the picturesque aspects of sheep and its clear, idyllic atmosphere. On the other hand, the "Twilight," with its delicate nuances of tone and its soft, green shadows, recalls the poetry of Corot. The third example, "Cows," is of interest chiefly as an example of Mauve's early and immature style.

Theophile De Bock (1851-1904) reveals perhaps more than any of the other artists represented, the influence of the French landscape painters of the Barbizon school. Interested in landscape for its own beauty, without accessories of figures or animals, he paints now with the poetry and sentiment of Corot and now with the dash and verve of Daubigny. The ofrmer phase of his work is illustrated in the delightful little "Landscape" lent by Charles F. Bates, with its lace-like tree foliage silhouetted against a warmly glowing evening sky; or the Museum's idyllic "Edge of the Wood," with its matchless harmonies in soft, warm greens. A more direct, but not less effective technique is evinced in the two De Bock "Landscapes," lent by Edward Mallinckrodt and Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, respectively. Both show a direct and vigorous application of the pigment, with little or no overpainting, but with sure feeling for the picturesque quality of the subject.

The collection of Dutch paintings will remain on view until Aug. 31. Other attractions at the Museum today are a collection of old Chinese wrought iron pictures lent by Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, and five of the mural paintings by St. Louis artists for the museum of natural resources in the State Capitol at Jefferson City.

French Fete in Florissant, Aug. 26.

A French fete and market, an annual event of more than 100 years, will be held in Florissant, Aug. 26, for the benefit of St. Ferdinand's Catholic Church. The parish is 145 years old. The Rev. J. M. Milet, S. J., is now in charge. Picturesque old French dances and customs will be revived for the fete, and there will be booths with attractive articles on sale.

Cantilever Shoes Benefit Weak Arches

We claim that if everyone would start wearing Cantilever Shoes at sixteen years of age, there would be few, if any, men and women with weak feet, fallen arches, etc. However, if we didn't say this early enough to help you keep your arches strong, we can help you now—unless you ought first to consult a foot specialist. In that event, we can help him to help you.

The number of people in this country who have weak feet, or a kindred foot trouble, is so many millions that we hesitate to publish it. Practically all of these cases could have been avoided.

EXERCISE MAKES STRENGTH.

Your foot arch is composed of small bones held up by ligaments, muscles and tendons. Keep these healthy by free circulation and natural exercise, and, Nature will see that those arch bones never fall. Cantilever Shoes permit this free circulation and unrestricted foot action by being shaped like the foot, flexible like the foot and arched like the foot.

PARTY COMMITTEEMEN TO PLAN REORGANIZATION MEETINGS

Democrats and Republicans Convene Tomorrow—Time for District Gatherings Unchanged.

Plans for the organization meetings of the Congressional District committees in the three St. Louis districts, will be made by committeemen of both parties at special meetings of the city committees, called for tomorrow. The Democrats will meet at 4 p. m. at 412 Pontiac Building, and the Republicans tomorrow night at headquarters in the Odd Fellows' Building.

One of the questions to be decided is the time for holding the district meetings. The provisions of the law fixing the time for the meetings was re-enacted by the 1921 Legislature to make a minor change applying to Jackson County alone, but the clause fixing the time for district meetings was not changed, contrary to the impression of some politicians.

There has been little discussion of selections for membership on the State committees from the St. Louis districts. It is said the committeemen will be re-elected, if still eligible, and willing to serve.

The Democratic State Committeemen in the St. Louis districts are: Tenth, Sam Lazarus and Tony Steuver; Eleventh, John F. Byrne and Frank J. O'Neill, and Twelfth, Michael Kinney and John E. Clooney. The Republican Committeemen are: Tenth, Henry S. Caulfield and J. W. Shields; Eleventh, Joseph Mogler and Jesse N. Barnett, and Twelfth, L. H. Bradbury and Gabe Roth.

WOULD ABOLISH GOLD MEDIUM

Universal Brotherhood Party's Presidential Candidate Outlines Platform.

H. W. Hayssen of Milwaukee, candidate of the Universal Brotherhood party, for the presidency in the election of November, 1924, who was in St. Louis last week, believes in the abolition of gold as a medium of exchange. If he is elected President, he said, everyone will do the work he is best fitted for, whether it be excavating ditches or composing symphonies. No one will labor more than five hours a day, and Congressmen, Senators, Judges and policemen will have to find some other mode of employment. Supplies will be doled out in proportion to the demand, and if one has philanthropical tendencies, one may say "thank you."

Before Hayssen became a presidential aspirant he ran a free employment agency in New Orleans. Previously, he had been a traveling salesman.

BALLOT BOX OPENING ENJOINED

Temporary Order Issued in Phelan's Committee Contest.

A temporary order prohibiting the Election Board from opening the ballot box of the Seventeenth precinct of the Twelfth Ward in John J. Phelan's contest of the election of Michael J. McGee as Democratic City Committeeman from the ward, was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer. McGee was elected by a 10-vote plurality in the official returns, and Phelan alleged irregularities in the Seventeenth precinct.

McGee's suit alleges that a party committeeman's position is analagous to that of a county officer, and that, therefore, the contest should have been filed in Circuit Court instead of with the Election Board. Other contestants have argued that the new law permitting the opening of primary ballot boxes does not apply to committeemen because they are elected, not nominated.

HEARING ON DRY LAW CHARGE

Cases of Two Men Arrested With Still and Whisky Set for Tuesday.

Vito Andolfo, 38 years old, of 819 Wash street, and Camillo de Bartola, 35, of 3032 Cass avenue, who were arrested Saturday night on a farm on the Geyer road, St. Louis County, charged with possession of a still, 10,000 gallons of mash, and 10 gallons of "moonshine" whisky, will have a hearing next Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Stecker in Clayton.

An affidavit, sworn to by Deputy Sheriff Grupp, was filed with the Justice Saturday, alleging that this was Andolfo's second offense. He was arrested in February, 1922, and convicted in March, after he was discovered on a farm on the Taylor road with what officials declared at that time was the biggest still yet found in the county, the deputy said in his affidavit.

JUDGE CATCHES BIG FISH

C. B. Faris Writes of Landing 41-Inch Muskelunge in Wisconsin.

Federal Judge C. B. Faris, who departed July 4 for a vacation scheduled to extend to Sept. 1, has written in St. Louise that his outing, is at this time a complete success.

The Judge, who frequently has admitted that he is one of the two best fishermen in Missouri, probably placed his stamp of approval on his vacation following his catch of a muskalonge at Stone Lake, Wis., which he writes, is the largest fish caught in that vicinity in years. The Judge said the muskelunge measured 41 inches and weighed 25 pounds. The Judge was in a speedy motorboat, which he shipped north for the purpose, when he made the catch.

Monument to Be Unveiled.

A monument in memory of Adolph J. Nagel, 2529 Hebert street, a world war veteran, will be unveiled at 3 p. m. today at Memorial Park Cemetery. Nagel was a private in E Company, Sixtieth Infantry, Fifth Division, and died of wounds in France. The Society of the Fifth Division will conduct the ceremony. Free automobile service will be furnished from the Ferguson car at Hunt road.

NEWS BITS FROM PARIS AND PROVINCIAL FRANCE

Napoleon's Promise to Marshal Ney, 177 Years Ago, Fulfilled by League of Nations.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The promise made by Napoleon to Marshal Ney, 177 years ago, has just been fulfilled by the commission governing the Saar valley under supervision of the League of Nations. The commission has authorized the institution of a supreme court at Saar Louis, the celebrated Marshal's birthplace.

It is a town of less than 10,000 inhabitants, which was the old capital and military stronghold when the Saar was a French province.

When General Mangin passed through the Saar with his troops on the way to the Rhine, some of the old inhabitants who retained French sympathies reminded him of the Emperor's promise.

"But I'm not Napoleon's successor," General Mangin replied, "and the judiciary is not my line. I will pass on the request to the proper authorities."

Gen. Mangin was relieved of his command in the Rhineland before he could take steps in the matter.

Children Play on Royal Estate.

Four hundred children from the French devastated regions this week are disporting themselves royally where royalty did before the war wrecked so many thrones. They are on an outing at the magnificent Chateau at Urville, near Metz, which belonged to former Emperor William and which is now part of the national domain of France.

Thousands Visit Grotto.

Six hundred thousand persons since the war have visited the grotto at Lourdes, attention to which was called by the recent accident of two trains filled with pilgrims to that celebrated faith-healing resort.

The great many of these visitors are American tourists who run over from Pau to witness the unique spectacle of thousands of pilgrims with candles forming a procession to the Grotto, singing Ava Maria. Ten thousand people at one time chant the Credo.

The entrances to the chapel and to the spring of healing water below the cathedral are almost blocked by piles of crutches that have been cast off by cripples who have walked away from the Grotto unaided.

Several trains, each carrying from 600 to 1,000 persons, are arriving at Lourdes daily.

Reunion of Foreign Legion Veterans.

A movement is on foot among American veterans of the French Foreign Legion to hold a reunion of survivors in Paris in 1924 during the week of July 21, which will be the tenth anniversary of the French Government's decision to accept foreign volunteers in the legion for the duration of the war. The minimum service previously had been five years.

Survivors of the Lafayette Escadrille probably will be asked to participate in the reunion, as they are technically members of the Foreign Legion.

About 120 American citizens enlisted in the legion and one-third of that number were killed in action. Lieut. Edgar J. Bouligny of New Orleans, as president of the Association of American Volunteers with the Foreign Legion, which was formed just after the armistice, is taking charge of arrangements for the reunion.

Skirts to the Ankle for Fall.

Winter modes now being shown in Paris differ only in detail from those of last spring and summer. Skirts are long, but not radically so, usually extending to the ankle. The waist line, however, is rising again, and next season it will be almost back to its normal position.

Sleeves are slightly altered, being full above the elbow and tight from the elbow to the wrist.

There is a new idea in skirts. They are split in front, but otherwise they are like those of last season, being cut straight up and down with great fullness, accentuated when the wearer walks.

Dressmakers are trying hard to make next winter a season of color. Much brown, old gold and green are being shown, but black continues popular. Dark green and blue will be extensively used for after dresses. One of the younger enterprising designers has introduced a dress with a three-quarter length coat in place of the three-piece suit with which he made such success last year. It promises to be equally smart.

The new materials include silk, velvet and velveteen, the former for afternoon and evening gowns and the latter for afternoon only. The young designer mentioned above has resurrected the backless gown, which is more backless than ever, the bare space extending from one side of the back to the other.

DANIEL UPTHEGROVE NAMED TEMPORARY COTTON BELT HEAD

Daniel Upthegrove, 50 years old, general solicitor of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co., for the last six years, has been appointed temporary president to succeed J. M. Herbert, who died last Saturday. Announcement of Upthegrove's appointment was received at the road's headquarters Friday from Edwin Gould of New York, chairman of the Board of Directors.

Upthegrove, who resides at 5128 Westminster place, has been in New York attending the meeting of railway executives. The permanent president of the company probably will be chosen in October at the annual meeting of the stockholders. New directors will also be chosen in October.

Brain of Edison Is Like Multiple Switchboard

son's questions correctly and yet be almost useless in a laboratory, in a factory, or in an office or consulting room. When the writer tried gingerly to point out that the photograph of a gentleman who had answered a surprising percentage of one of the Edisonian quesitonnaires displayed a most humdrum and ordinary looking individual, one could feel the atmosphere at once become chilly within the Edison laboratory.

But it is this very human side of the great man which endears him so much to his friends. He, like other sons of men, less eminent and less assured, has set up his own private particular gods within his laboratory. His statement to a friend that he "could demonstrate the existence of God in his own laboratory" is but another example of his childlike belief in the all-power of science to span the cosmos. In a word, Edison has made science into a god.

Not least interesting is Edison's perfectly paralyzing way of sweeping aside all experiments and their results which in his view are "unscientific"—not least in the world of psychic phenomena, as will be demonstrated later in this series. For him, enshrined within the walls of material science, the psychic experiments and conclusions that the continuation of personality has been conclusively proved of Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the world's greatest physical scientists, Sir William Crookes, once perhaps the world's first chemist, Alfred Russel Wallace, the contemporaneous discoverer of the principles of evolution with Darwin—all become as naught when they clash with what he would call "scientific" experiment.

In matters commercial he is, as one of his closest friends said to me, "but a child," and this in spite of the fact that, as before stated, his is the brain which can always or nearly always give to an invention the possibilities of commercial success, but that is on the inventive, not on the business side.

It is his "humanness" which perhaps makes him one of the happiest of husbands and, when he is not in his laboratory, "a real home bird." I am sure that no man on earth has a greater love for children and the child mind than the man who is himself a child. And I will venture to prophesy that the great Edison will never grow old and that when he passes over to the Great Beyond he will do so in a sort of white flame and, like Russel Wallace and other old young men, will more likely than not be found dead in his chair at his old deal table, a smile on his face.

His close friend, W. L. Saunders, who, during the war, helped him in the work of the War Inventions Bureau, which, during the struggle, examined literally thousands upon thousands of inventions, from methods for destroying the German fleet from New York to pins for hand grenades, told me a characteristic story of Edison's human side.

What Edison Fears.

It seems that very many years ago it was decided at an international gathering of iron and steel experts in the United States, including many eminent Germans who had come from Germany to make a pilgrimage to the world's first inventor—the man who is regarded by his scientific comrades as the doyen of them all. Mr. Saunders, the chief of the Ingersoll Drill Co., and himself one of the greatest living engineers and drill experts, happened to be with Edison at the moment when in the far distance they discerned a confused mass of eminent iron and steel experts pouring up the avenue to pay their respects to the big man.

Edison, with the extreme modesty which is his, turned around in despair, as though "looking for a rock where he might hide himself," and was only with difficulty brought back to the realities of the situation by his friend, who supported him at his side as a long line was formed of the horde of visitors, the German members of which, each of them, as he passed Mr. Edison and before shaking hands, presented his card to the now perfectly bewildered inventor.

After a time Edison's hands were full of cards, and when after a fresh accession of pasteboard the cards began to drop on the floor, he could stand it no longer, but, throwing all the cards in his hands into the fireplace, he fairly bolted to the regions below where his workshop was and where, a few minutes later, his friend found him on his knees before a new electric rock drill, which, he declared between each revolution, "would put Mr. Saunders himself out of business"—this with the childlike glee which he sometimes shows. He had completely forgotten his eminent visitors above, some of them in a state of perturbation that the great man was no longer to be found.

But even Edison doesn't know everything. His friend, who knows everything about drills that is to be known, after watching the new marvel for a few moments, said to Edison, to his discomfiture: "Not this time." It seemed that the "pull-back" of the drill was too weak—something that Edison had not taken into account.

As a rule, however, one of the outstanding features of the Edison psychology is its extreme cautiousness.

I suppose that Thomas Edison gets his bump of cautiousness from his Scottish forbears. No other inventor has probably ever been so careful in his statements and conclusions.

The problem lying immediately in front of the further development of great cities like New York and London is the traffic problem. Already both cities are more or less disorganized during the "rush" hours, and in London, in particular, if no way is discovered of relieving the congestion, the world's metropolis will simply automatically cease to expand and even human beings will have to be forcibly prevented from migrating to the world's largest city. It has already been stated that New York itself has reached its limits both of expansion and population, owing to the traffic problem, it now being proposed as a temporary solution to reclaim the foreshores of the Hudson.

I asked Mr. Edison how he proposed to solve this urgent dangerous problem, and once more was astonished to find how the great inventor not only kept his feet upon solid earth, but even rooted them deep in that earth.

With the temerity of the tyro, I had suggested to him that the "obvious" solution was taking the foot passengers up to the roof-tops in elevators from central clearing stations, whether in London or New York, placing them in large passenger ships slung from overhead cables and driven by air propellors, as the Germans are beginning to drive some of their railway trains, and so transport them easily and evenly out to suburbs, lying, in the case of New York, as far as 50 to 100 miles in New Jersey and other districts. But Edison would have none of it. "Why go up into the air?" he asked, "when it is possible to go down into the earth?"

I pointed out that already in London, for example, the earth was so honeycombed that buildings like St. Paul's Cathedral were already subsiding.

"Then go deeper," was his comment.

Solving New York's Traffic Problem.

"What is to prevent going down two or three hundred feet? What does it matter if a man takes four or five seconds more on to downward journey than at present in the tubes? In London, you are built on chalk, I believe. Then go down into the chalk—an easy medium for excavation. Build your tubes deeper and multiply them as much as you like. In a city like London there is nothing to prevent a sort of spider's web of tubes lying beneath anything now laid down, and below that again another spider's web. Go down three or four hundred feet if necessary, or more.

"What the Deep Level mines in the Transvaal did, we can do in London and New York. Of course it is not unfeasible for people to go 'up in the air' as you suggest, but here in North America our heavy storms constantly cause trouble to overhead cables and wires. Go down. That is the solution. Then he showed how at the 'rush hours' the whole floating populations of New York and London, instead of the usual nightly orgies in their attempt to reach home and rest could be cleared out of the hearts of the cities within the space of an hour or two without crowding or inconvenience.

One will not say that the great man is "of the earth, earthly," but he certainly is not transcendental in his feelings about life and the future.

It is now rapidly becoming apparent that at any moment some inventor, perhaps Edison himself, may find a method of tapping the absolutely unlimited power lying to hand of the earth currents, etc. If mankind discovered a source of practically costless, unlimited power, it is obvious that cyclonic changes would be effected in the life of the human.

And so it was that I ventured to ask Edison: "Surely" if we get some such power, will it not at one stroke wipe out all the struggle between capital and labor, simply because labor-power being abolished through such unlimited machine power, and the price to be paid for labor-power being today the only bone of contention between capital and labor, the labor question would simply cease to exist?"

Of course, Edison replied tacitly agreeing to my contention so far as the labor question was concerned, but always having in mind the urge to struggle inherent in humanity, "the motion of the earth alone could give us all the light, heat and power we want and that many thousand times over, and some day we may harness that motion—there is nothing impossible in it—just as we may one day possibly harness the rise and fall of the tides and prison the rays of the sun—but," and he paused with that inscrutable smile of the child, "struggle is inherent in humanity not only between capital and labor, but between the man who has and the man who has not—between the 'Haves' and the 'Have-nots!'

"The coming of limitless cheap power will not change that inherent vital principle so deep in humanity which is the mainspring of evolution, However limitless such power, however easy of application, no human being can live long without work. Individuals, here and there, may do so for a time—but eventually the restless struggling human will find work of one kind or another to do. Such work may not always take the same form—yet, it willl be work, whatever the form of that work."

His Views on Capital and Labor.

And then this kindly gentleman, smiling in gentle considerate derision, used the following notable words: "The trouble between capital and labor is that the workman does not grasp the complexity of the modern system of manufacturing and production and the thousand and one problems attaching themselves to such a power-problem as that to which you refer, and the capitalists have too many 'stinkers' among them."

His face lighted up in one great illuminating smile as he used the expressive word. It was that delightful "humanness" of Thomas Edison which makes him as beloved of his workmen as of the employers. It is the quality which perhaps explains the willing generous service given to him by so many of his workers.

It bore out what a prominent labor leader had once said about Edison: "Take a single really intelligent and far-seeing man from the labor leaders, give him a free hand and put him at a table with Thomas Edison—and the Labor Problem could be settled within a week, and for our time."

The Edison mentality, as a matter of fact, it was obvious to the observer, is an excellent blend of conservatism and progress. One realizes from every word how this man feels that the workman should have, literally, every cent that is due to him, but he also feels, because he has proved it in himself, that hard work, as such, provided it is interesting, prolongs, not shortens, a man's life. One feels that Edison at least would be willing to guarantee a living wage and so secure the life-standard to all workmen, if, and it is a big "if," the workman on his part would agree to put his back into it when he is at work. In a sense, the inventor occupies a midway position between employer and employe—a position which makes him in a peculiarly favorable position to act as arbiter.

Edison's own private method, I have been told, is not to pay gargantuan salaries to his employes, even to those who occupy prominent positions and who are of many years' standing, but to interest them in their work and show them to what hard, honest work may lead and what it can lend to the interest of life. In fact, someone who knows him well and is one of his greatest admirers, frankly regarded the comparative modesty of the salaries offered as a disadvantage, as men might be apt, after having learned the Edisonian methods, to be tempted to seek work elsewhere at big pay.

It is indeed a unique tribute to the Edison personality that, despite what has been said, it attaches employes to it over long periods of years and extracts intensive and willing service. Edison has the Napoleonic capacity to draw out, from the privates in the army, everything that they have to give of brains or capacity. Yet what is true is that every Edison employe, from boy to manager, like Napoleon's carries in his pocket a baton. He can and frequently reach the topmost place world of science and invention.

Strange People In Our Own State of Missouri

On a recent long horseback ride through the Southeastern part of our State, we met an old man by the name of Silas Brown.

He had never seen a railroad train, so we persuaded him to ride about thirty miles with us to the nearest railway station.

We arrived just in time to see the St. Louis "Limited" load and unload its passengers and express.

Uncle Silas looked over the big train in amazement.

"Fellers," said he, they'll never start her."

Just then the train pulled out and soon disappeared. "Fellers," said he, "I'll bet yez they'll never stop her."

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH WOMAN WHO MAY GO TO CONGRESS

ment, now that a new day has dawned, and it isn't the men, spitting and chewing upon street corners, who can say what is going to happen in politics now, but the woman who must be consulted.

"Many times my speaking rostrum was a few rude plans set up on stilts at a country picnic. I was delighted with opportunities to speak from baseball stands. We encountered a cloudburst one night, in the midst of which the gasoline gave out and the car slid downhill into a ditch. That night I slept in a log cabin in a room with the other strange wayfarers, men and women. The next night I spoke from the Capitol steps, where I had the largest audience that greeted any candidate excepting Reed and Long.

"We pulled through mud three days at one stretch, when we did not see another car on the road. In many rural communities they never had heard a woman make a political speech before, and I had the satisfaction of having many men of the conservative farmer type come to me and say that though they never had intended to vote for a woman, they were going to vote for me. And they did vote for me.

"When I heard of a place where there was said to be a particular prejudice against women and Democrats, that was the place I determined to reach. Ashland, in Boone County, they told me, was pro-German and wet. 'I'll get Ashland,' I said. And I did. When the returns came in, it was found that I had carried Ashland.

"I went everywhere except into my opponents' counties. I knew it would be useless to go there but I made capital out of not going. Before November, however, I shall have to invade Camden County, the home of Mr. Roach.

"On the other hand, my two Democratic opponents in the primaries did not hesitate to invade my territory. Indeed, Boone was the only county in which they made speeches. They insisted on sharing every speaking date with me and claiming an equal length of time on the program. But I made capital otu of this, too. 'To catch fish you've got to go to where the fish are,' one of them explained, apologetically. Whereupon I asked the people how they liked being thought of as fish?

"I shared every picnic, every sandwich, every bottle of soda pop with those men. I did not let the audiences lose sight of this fact, and it only reacted in my favor. Why, I wouldn't have lost those men for anything in the world. They were my greatest assets.

"On the last night, here in Columbia, when we had our biggest audience, they might wisely have stepped aside with a show of gallantry and let the lady speak first. But, no, they didn't. And so I had the last word."

Subject of Discussion Largely "What Is the Matter at Washington?"

"WHAT did I tell the people?" she responded to a query. "My subject was large, 'What is the Matter at Washington?' While my opponents bore down heavily on local issues, the need of a new Federal building, especially, it struck me that, as we were asking for a national job, we ought to keep to national issues. The cut in the national waterways appropriation was one national issue to be brought home, in its effect upon the Missouri River. Then I sought to bring home to the farmers, to the merchants, to all the people who are feeling the high cost of living, the danger of the high protective tariff the Republican Congress is attempting to engineer, and its vital, intimate relationship to its vital, intimate relationship to conditions here at home.

"Upon the great chess board of national life is being played a political game in which the sinister high protective tariff wins out, and we, the people, who must pay the added price of living, lose. It's your game and my game, being played at Washington, I would tell them. Ours is a representative Government. Our hope lies in sending to Congress and the Senate, representatives who will fight against fastening this heavier millstone around the necks of the people. I pictured to them that the Democratic minority in Congress is figting against an oppressive tariff bill and for the people, as did that band of Greek heroes at the Pass of Thermopylae.

"Any woman who can manage a family budget can understand a tariff bill. The market basket has gone into politics; woman is following, I reminded them.

"Why should a hide of a 4-year-old steer bring a farmer $1.14, while a razor strop costs him $1.59? I asked them. And a pair of shoes, on one side of the scale, outweigh in price 30 bushels of wheat on the other side? I reminded them of how the Esch-Cummins act is guaranteeing the railroads 6 per cent on their investment, while the farmer is not making 1 per cent. I told them of a man I knew who sent a carload of vegetables to the city. The produce brought $675 and the freight was $495.

"That the Middle West has no contribution to make to the President's toy American fleet was another talking point. One of my opponents paid me the compliment of saying he never had heard the ship subsidy issue more clearly defined even by a man," she observed, laughing.

"I got most of my inspiration out of my audiences, however, and was surprised to find that the larger the audience the more fluently came my thoughts and the better my voice carried."

Not Frightened at Report of Congresswoman's Hard Time.

JEANETTE RANKIN, former Congresswoman, filling a speaking engagement in Columbia, had told her, she said, that a lone woman in Congress has a very hard time keeping firm to her convictions. "But she did not frighten me," remarked Mrs. Moss. "I have outsat many long sessions in committees where I have been the only woman. I have never been smoked out. In fact, I thing I must be what they call a man's woman, since I work very happily with men."

There were, nevertheless, many evidences that she is a woman's woman as well.

She invited me into a cool, dainty apartment, essentially feminine in all its appointments. She is slightly built, animated, vivacious, with many mannerisms and phrases that are distinctly youthful, as if she had absorbed them through close association with young girls. She is cordial, though not gushy, a fluent and vivid talker, having always just the right word, just the apt quotation and many an anecdote to illustrate a point.

She occupies a complete suite set apart for her in the newest of the college buildings, a suite containing a kitchenette in which she indulges a fondness for cooking, and a cozy dining room in which she does some charming entertaining. Many articles of furniture elaborately carved and cleverly put together without nails, are the work of her own hands, revealing another phase of her versatility.

"Come, let me show you our peacock alley," she said, leading me out into a long loggia, white pillared and blue carpeted with many comfortable divans, looking out over an imposing entrance or foyer.

The building covers an acre of ground and almost the whole first floor is devoted to the laboratories and classrooms of the home economics department, which is made a principal and intensive branch at the school.

That she has a mind for detail, though revealing herself as broader visioned than her opponents in her campaign speeches, was evidenced when, as we crossed the lawn she called the attention of a yard man to a crooked window shade and as she expatiated on the superior merits of the heating plant which she had selected after personally inspecting the heating plants in all the big hotels in St. Louis.

A swimming pool occupying another building deep set in tropical foliage, a gymnasium, a chapel, were three other buildings, signifying in their uses the belief in the development of womanhood, not in one, but in many directions.

"But after all," she remarked, "one gets just so far in one's efforts to open doors of usefulness to women and one runs against the limitations that have been imposed by a too one-sided Government, by politics. Politics are fundamental. Thus far many special interests have been taken care of by politicians. There are, for example, the German vote and the Irish vote about which they have been concerned of late. There are the wet and the dry vote. But who hears much about the vote of the wage-earning woman, and the professional woman? Men are not going out of their way to appeal to or promise to represent this type of voter. And they number many millions.

"It isn't only to help women that I would see their special interests represented. It is to help the men as well. The best of our men are exploited by women—by innocent, but, nevertheless dependent women. Men will be able to develop more fully and completely when women are developed beyond the stage where they are parasites."

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE ANNOUNCES NEW MODEL

The latest addition to the Wills Sainte Claire line a five-passenger Brougham, is now being displayed by the McNiece Hill Motor Company, local distributor.

The new model is built on the standard Wills Sainte Claire chassis with its eight cylinder V-type engine that includes such unique features of design as overhead camshafts as well as overhead valves. The body was designed and built by Fisher.

The interior of the new Brougham is extremely commodious, space and seats being arranged with ease of access and the comfort of five passengers. The two doors have the unusual width of 29 inches. The divided front seats are two deeply upholstered chairs, each folding forward. This permits entrance to the rear seat from either side of the car. There is ample room for three passengers on the rear seat.

Upholstery is granite weave cloth or gray velour and body colors are blue and maroon with upper panels in black. The new model is equipped with special disc wheels. An addition to the equipment is a trunk platform and nickel bars on the rear body panel. The lighting includes combined large and small headlights, with the large lights tilting and magnetically controlled from the steering column. There is also a white backing light operated automatically in reverse gear.

DORT REDUCES PRICE ON CLOSED MODELS

The Dort Motor Car Co. of Flint, Mich., announces the following reductions in the prices of closed models: Yale sedan, $1095 from $1115; Yale coupe, $1045 from $1065; Harvard sedan, $1385 from $1445, and Harvard coupe, $1265 from $1315.

In commenting on the announcement, Mr. G. A. Kraus, manager of the Wilson Motor Car Co., local Dort distributor, says that production of closed cars at the factory has far exceeded in volume all expectations which accounts for Dort's ability to make the present cut.

INLAND PRODUCTS CO. TO OPEN NEW STATION

The Inland Products Co., manufacturers of pistons, pins and piston rings, will open a Service Station at 2835 Washington av., which will carry a complete stock of Inland products for the prompt handling of orders.

Mr. Kirk M. Roberts, District Sales Manager, will be in charge assisted by Mr. A. G. Haberle and Mr. Horace Foote.

DORRIS CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY WEEK

The seventeenth anniversary of the Dorris Motor Car Company will be celebrated this week by the local factory and by all Dorris distributors and dealers throughout the country.

George P. Dorris, now president and chief engineer, together with other incorporators, organized the present company Aug. 15, 1905, and started to build the Dorris car.

It is claimed that Mr. Dorris was the first engineer to adopt certain mechanical features, such as the valve-in-head motor, unit power plant, and multiple disc clutch, and with the exception of the change from the four to six cylinder engine, no deviation has been made from the mechanical principles which were embodied in the first Dorris car.

It Is Not a Light Six

Six Cylinders—50 Horsepower—$995

The Jewett is a sturdy, powerful, six-cylinder motor car. Ready for the road the touring model weighs over 2800 pounds.

This means that to measure the new standard of value it has set in American motordom you must compare it with cars costing from $200 to $500 more.

It has the strength essential to sturdiness in its frame, motor, clutch, transmission, drive shaft and in its special Timken axles.

The great power plant is built complete in the Paige shops. It has been proved by years of use in Paige 6-44 models.

Now with the addition of high pressure oiling giving 20 pounds pressure at 20 miles per hour, it is finer and better than ever.

Such is the Six that is now yours at the new reduced price, $995 f. o. b. factory.

It is sold and serviced by Paige dealers everywhere

Keep Spare Tires Covered.

Two good rules to follow with regard to spare tires, says the United States Tire Co., are to keep them covered, so that they will not be subjected to sunlight, and to use each spare for a day or two every month. Sunlight has a most harmful effect on rubber, whether the weather be hot or cold. Using the spare occasionally lengthens its life for some reason that the scientists have considerable difficulty in explaining.

The Farm Journal says 2,366,476 passenger cars are owned by farmers.

Cheerful Road Courtesy

Let the other fellow have the other half of the road.

Swing out with safety to let the hurried driver pass.

When you hear a horn—it may be your brother's—give ground.

If a man's in trouble—be a good Samaritan.

Give the woman driver a chance.

Credit the other driver with business just as important as yours—until you know different.

Say—"The road wasn't wide enough" instead of — "Why didn't you keep over on your own side?"

Smile.

Make friends with every driver—they may help you some time.

The man who bumped you may feel worse than you do.

Smile—keep smiling.

On the highways—courtesy alone is king.

Advocated by Federal Motor Truck Co.

FEDERAL TRUCK ADDS "FAST EXPRESS" TO LINE

The Federal Motor Truck Co. announces a new "Fast Express," designed to meet the requirements of the rapidly expanding light delivery truck market. Federal officials say that the limit to the loads this new truck will carry is the capacity of its tires and that it is capable of a sustained speed of at least 35 miles per hour. The new truck is equipped with five-inch Royal cord tires.

The engine is a Continental truck type of four cylinders, with force-feed lubrication and centrifugal water pump, with a bore of 3¾ inches and a 5-inch stroke. The crankshaft is unusually heavy, mounted on three extra wide bearings. Drive is through Timken worm and worm wheel, the same as on all Federal models. Other standard units in this new Federal include Eisemann magneto, Zenith carburetor, Long radiator core with heavy pressed steel shell, Borg & Beck clutch, Detroit gear and machine transmission, Peters universal joints, Gemmer steering gear, Stewart-Warner vacuum tank, Remy starter and generator, chrome vanadium steel springs, Disteel wheels, Exide heavy truck service battery and Alemite chassis lubrication.

HUPMOBILE ANNOUNCES NEW PRICE SCHEDULE

A price reduction amounting to $100 on open models and from $150 to $200 on closed models has been announced through the local distributor, the Weber Implement and Automobile Co.

The new prices are as follows: Touring car, $1150; roadster, $1150; sedan, $1785; coupe, $1635, and roadster-coupe, $1335. In commenting on the reduction the local distributor says that these are the lowest prices at which Hupmobiles of the present design and quality have ever been offered.

SPEED WAGON SERVES AS PLUMBING SHOP

"One of the most unusual services which is being rendered by a Reo speed wagon is that of a traveling plumbing shop," according to Mr. H. F. Fahrenkrog of the Kardell Motor Car Co., who has just received a description of the unique body which has been mounted on a speed wagon chassis by P. E. Cornell of Kansas City.

"Mr. Cornell's idea was to give the people the advantage of service without wasting time in going back and forth to his shop for material.

"It has been conclusively demonstrated by this speed wagon plumbing shop that better service can be given at cheaper rates and at the same time enable the owner to make more money for himself than the plumber who has a shop to contend with. Mr. Cornell claims he can go a week without returning to his storehouse for replacements. The interior of the speed wagon plumbing shop is arranged with shelving, drawers and a workbench and is fitted with all the modern devices and tools needed in the plumbing trade.

CLOSED CARS PRACTICAL FOR COUNTRY DRIVING

Among seasoned motorists the trend towards purchase of enclosed cars grows more marked as the sun swings farther south each day, says Frank Bishop, president of the Bishop Motor Co., Earl and Liberty distributers. Body and engineering advances is the major reason. The decreased weight and improved balance of sedan and other owner-driven types of enclosed cars has so increased their touring efficiency and economy that thousands of owners are now using their closed cars as freely and confidently as a short while back, they used their touring cars. The added comfort, convenience and protection against wind, dust and rain would seem to clinch the case for the closed car of demonstrated road ability.

One of the leading department stores in St. Louis, Mo., is planning to erect a four-story garage, in which the automobiles of its customers may be parked while they are shopping. The proposed garage will accommodate 400 cars.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL
HUDSON
The New Sedan is Here $2295

The De Luxe Car of the Year

It excels even those beautiful Hudsons which were counted matchless values at above $4,000—the Limousines, Town Cars and Landaulets, famed for their distinction.

No other Hudson so completely sums the body-builder's art. It blends richness and luxury with a simplicity that is the hallmark of Hudson enclosed car charm. And the promise of its beauty is borne out in the unusual personal comfort and serviceability this model affords.

It seats seven amply. The lustrous, lasting finish reveals the unhurried and painstaking-care given every detail by master workmen, who have always specialized on the finest, costliest cars.

Of course it has the new Hudson motor, which won such instantaneous admiration everywhere. It is the top step of seven years' development of the patented Super-Six principle. It is equally a revelation to Hudson owners.

OHMER AND RUTHENBURG VISIT TRAFFIC TRUCK

Mr. Will I. Ohmer, Chairman of the Board, and Louis Ruthenburg, President, of the Associated Motor Industries made their initial visit Friday to the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation since the local company was merged with the Associated Motor Industries.

Mr. Ohmer is in entire charge of the operations of Associated Motor Industries, and Mr. Ruthenburg has charge of all plant co-ordination and manufacturing.

The Traffic Truck will retain its name and individuality and the plant will be pushed to its full capacity of production and the prospects are that it will be greatly enlarged after the manufacturing program of Associated Motor Industries is under way. In addition, the Traffic Truck plant may be the location of one of the five assembling plants of Associated Motor Industries. This assembling plant will not only assemble Traffic Trucks but the other cars made by Associated Motor Industries.

On account of the central location of St. Louis and its great distribution facilities, the St. Louis assembling plant is expected to be one of the largest units of Associated Motor Industries. Mr. Guy Wilson, president, and Mr. T. C. Brandle, vice president, of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation, remain in office, and will act as directors of Associated Motor Industries. The Traffic Truck plant, it is expected will maintain its present organization with the advantage of having back of it all the financial resources of Associated Motor Industries.

Traffic Trucks will be assembled at the other assembling plants of Associated Motor Industries as well as at St. Louis. It is the plan of operations to turn out as many as possible of the parts and ship them in bulk to the various assembling units. These units are to be at Boston, Indianapolis, Louisville and Oakland, California, in addition to the St. Louis plant.

Associated Motor Industries, while putting forth its efforts to push Traffic Trucks to leadership, will continue to manufacture the other trucks now made by member companies. The Jackson four-wheel drive Truck and the Old Hickory Truck made by the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, will be continued. Passenger cars manufactured by Associated Motor Industries are the National, Jackson, and the Dixie Flyer.

France has 60 manufacturers of motor vehicles, with a production capacity of 53,000 cars per annum. Eighty thousand men are employed in the industry.

Our Used Car Policy

Every car priced in plain figures at absolutely the lowest figure for which we will sell it.

It would be foolish to ignore the fact that in the past there has been some "jockeying" in the price of used cars, resulting to the disadvantage of the average customer.

From now on our Used Car Department will be positively ONE PRICE, just as our New Car Department has always been one price. Also every used car, unless otherwise stated, will be sold under the guarantee that it may be returned at the end of seven days if unsatisfactory and money refunded.

The Result: 1st—Every customer is guaranteed satisfaction.
2d—Every customer knows he is making his purchase at the lowest price at which he or anyone else can buy the car.

We believe ours is the finest, cleanest and lowest-priced used car stock in the city. We believe we offer values far better than can be found in new cars at the same prices.

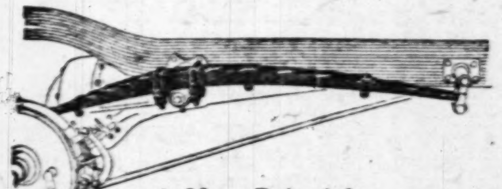
The Finest Model "45" Buick Ever Built



A New Principle
The new Buick six cylinder models are perhaps the easiest-riding cars of the day due to a distinctive development in cantilever spring construction

The 1923 Buick "45" has taken the country by storm. Always a favorite, this model reaches the highest pinnacle of value ever attained.

It is a beautiful car—it is luxurious—it is a mechanical masterpiece. Stand off and note the snappy lines, the higher hood, the full crown fenders, sturdy artillery wheels, drum type head and cowl lamps, the low khaki-lined top. Then sit in the car. Here is comfort equalled only in the costliest automobiles.

Look about you—the upholstery and trimming are of the finest quality, the instrument board is equipped with richly finished instruments, the control lever is at finger's end, the cowl ventilator control and windshield wiper are within easy reach.

And the chassis shows far-reaching improvements. Test the new rear cantilever springs—you will be amazed at the difference in riding comfort. Lock the handy transmission control and know that this feature, with others, gives Buick a low rating by insurance underwriters. Even the famous Buick Valve-in-Head motor shows important changes—higher cylinder block, larger connecting rods and pistons, larger crankshaft, with pressure feed to main bearings.

These are just a few of the sweeping improvements in the new Buick "45". From the newly designed radiator to the tail lamp with its novel Buick insignia the Buick "45" is a new and finer car—more than ever the standard of comparison.

The Buick Line for 1923 comprises fourteen models:

Fours—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1325. Sixes—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1935; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1985; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1895; 7 Pass. Touring, $1435; 7 Pass. Sedan, $2195; Sport Roadster, $1625; Sport Touring, $1675.

Necessary to Have Tire Kit.

A motorist's emergency kit need contain but a few items for tire trouble, but these are vital, and none should be omitted, says the United States Tire Co. These necessities are tire tape for tire or ignition trouble, a cold patch kit for punctures, a blow-out patch, a can of soapstone and a tire gauge. It is taken for granted that a good spare will always form a part of the car's equipment.

PEDESTRIANS SHOULD FACE ONCOMING TRAFFIC

Walking on Left Side of Road Will Assist in Reducing Accidents.

Pedestrians along country roads and those who walk in the streets at night in preference to using the sidewalks can contribute materially toward the reduction of automobile accidents by walking on the left side of the road, facing oncoming traffic, according to Dai H. Lewis, acting executive chairman of the American Automobile Association.

"Courtesy on the part of the automobile driver demands the use of dimmed lights at night," said Mr. Lewis, "and this factor, while it contributes to the safety of passing motorists, makes it exceedingly difficult for the automobile driver to see a pedestrian walking along the edge of the road in the same direction the car is traveling. This difficulty is increased if the pedestrian happens to be wearing dark clothing. The result is that the driver is practically on top of the pedestrian before the latter becomes visible.

"Walking on the left-hand side of the road is just as good for the pedestrian and enables him to see the approaching automobile in time to step aside if the motorist does not see him in time to swerve."

"The pedestrian should remember that the rules of the road require the autoist to keep to the right and should contribute to the factor of safety by keeping to that side of the road which best enables him to escape the oncoming car and especially the occasional speed fiend or 'flivverboob,' who cares nothing for consequences and speeds regardless of the rights of others, for it has been truly said that whether you were in the right or not does not matter after you are in the hands of the undertaker."

REFUSAL TO SELL SHIRT LEADS TO COURT FINE

Merchants Decline Trade of Railroad Worker and Are Charged With Court Contempt.

Judge English, in the Federal Court in East St. Louis, yesterday fined two Illinois merchants $25 and costs each after they had pleaded guilty of violation of an injunction granted to the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad by refusing to sell a shirt to a watchman employed by the road during the strike of shopmen.

This is the first case in the East St. Louis district of merchants being fined on a similar charge during the present strike. The defendants were John and Solomon Levin, brothers, who have a general store at Villa Grove, Ill. They were charged with refusing to sell a shirt to G. B. Anderson, railroad watchman, on Aug. 1, after strikers had threatened to boycott the store.

Men Say Road Is Not Entitled to Injunctive Relief.

Judge Joseph W. Woodrow of Omaha, sitting in Federal Court in St. Louis yesterday, in injunction and contempt cases growing out of the strike of railroad shopmen, ordered that in the injunction suit of the American Refrigertator Transit Co., the complaint be amended to set out fully the contract between the company and the men.

He did this because, he said, he wanted to be in possession of all the facts, the men having raised the point that the road was not entitled to injunctive relief as it had violated the terms of the contract provided for wages equivalent to the prevailing wage in railroad shops. The line, the men declare, began to pay the wage set by the Railroad Labor Board, which was not accepted by railroad shopmen and hence, it was argued, could not be the prevailing wage. Hearing will be tomorrow.

133 ARTICLES PLEDGED ON LOANS STOLEN IN HOLDUP

Pawnshop Owner Makes Check and Finds $15,000 in Jewels Missing.

A check being completed by Morris Blumenfeld, proprietor of a pawnshop at 800 Franklin avenue, which was held up and robbed July 24 last, has shown that 133 articles of jewelry left with him as pledges on loans were taken by the robbers. The robbery was the first of three holdups in the last three weeks, in which diamonds valued at more than $30,000 were taken.

Blumenfeld's check shows the robbers took diamonds, worth about $7500, from stock, and also diamonds and other jewelry upon which he had advanced $7500 when they were pledged.

Lawyers tell him, he says, that this money already paid out is his only legal loss in such instances. Insurance companies take the same attitude, he declares, for they refuse to insure pledged articles for more than they are pawned.

Blumenfeld, however, told a Post-Dispatch reporter he would replace the articles as nearly as possible with something of the same value in stock, if the owners want them and will repay the original loans.

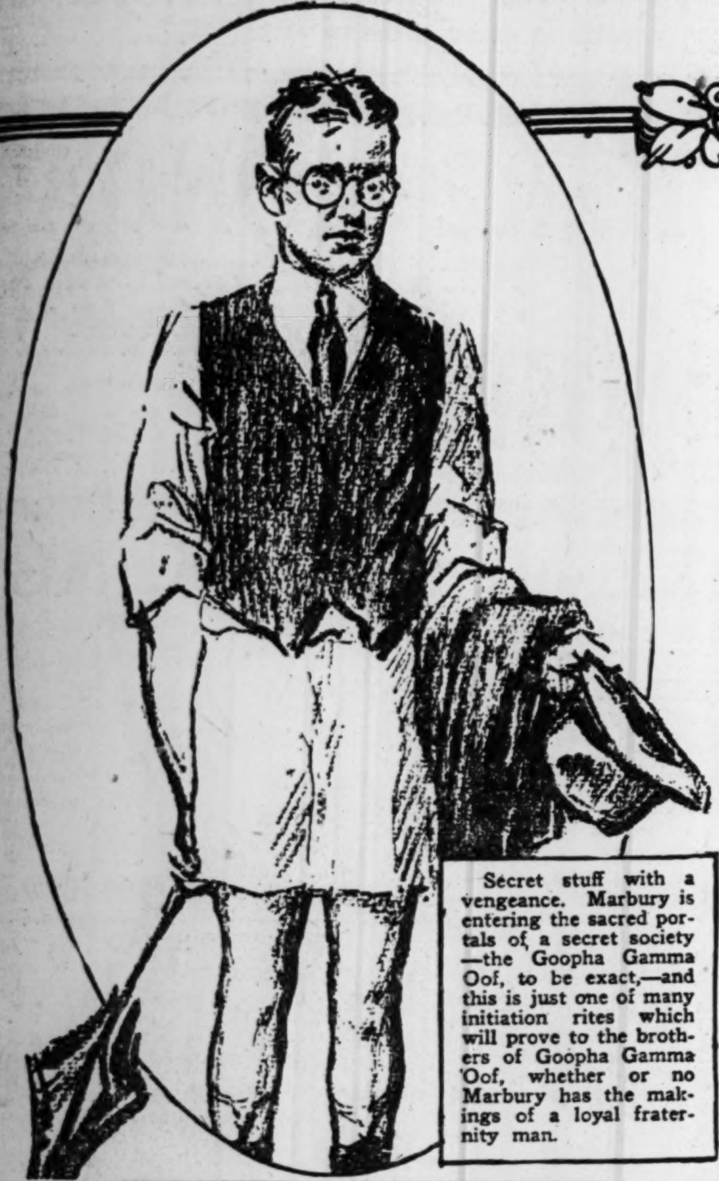
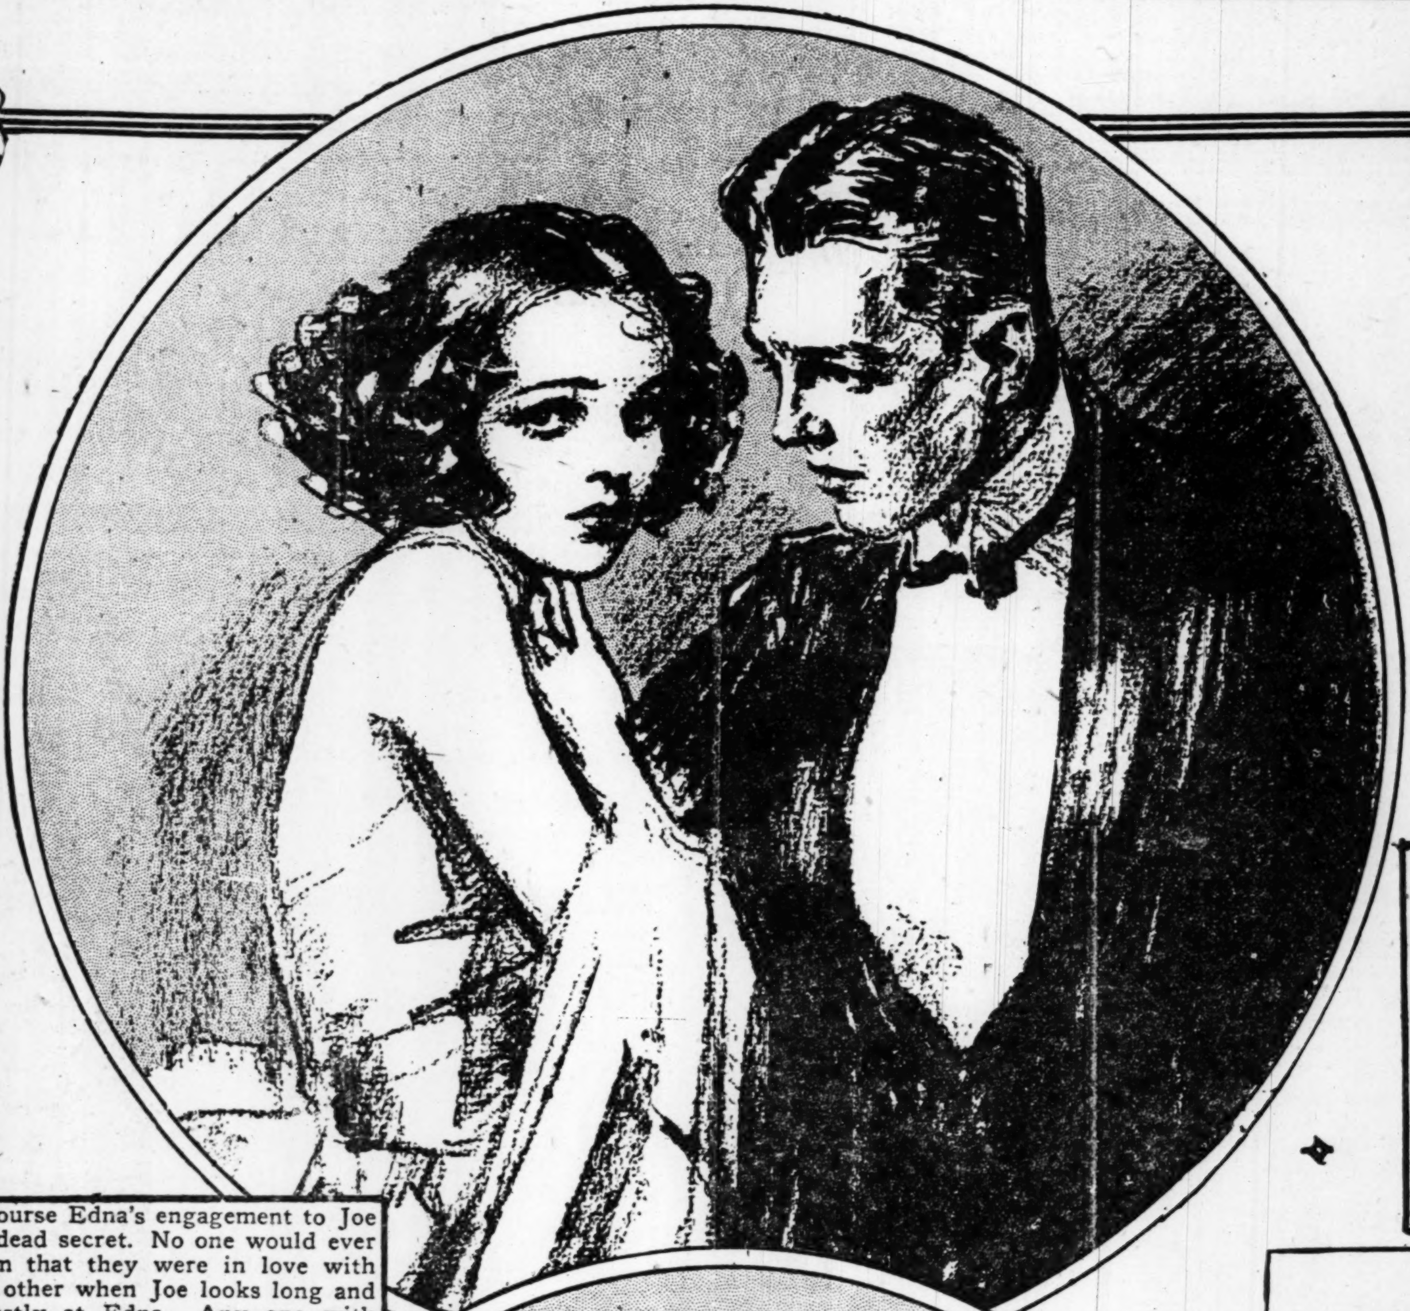
SECRET STUFF

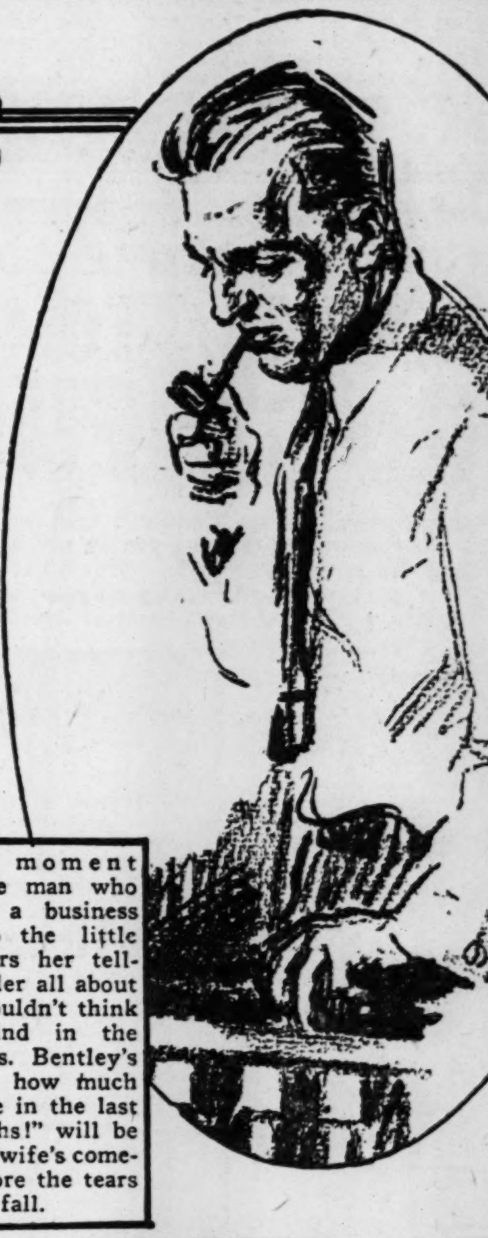
By W. E. Hill



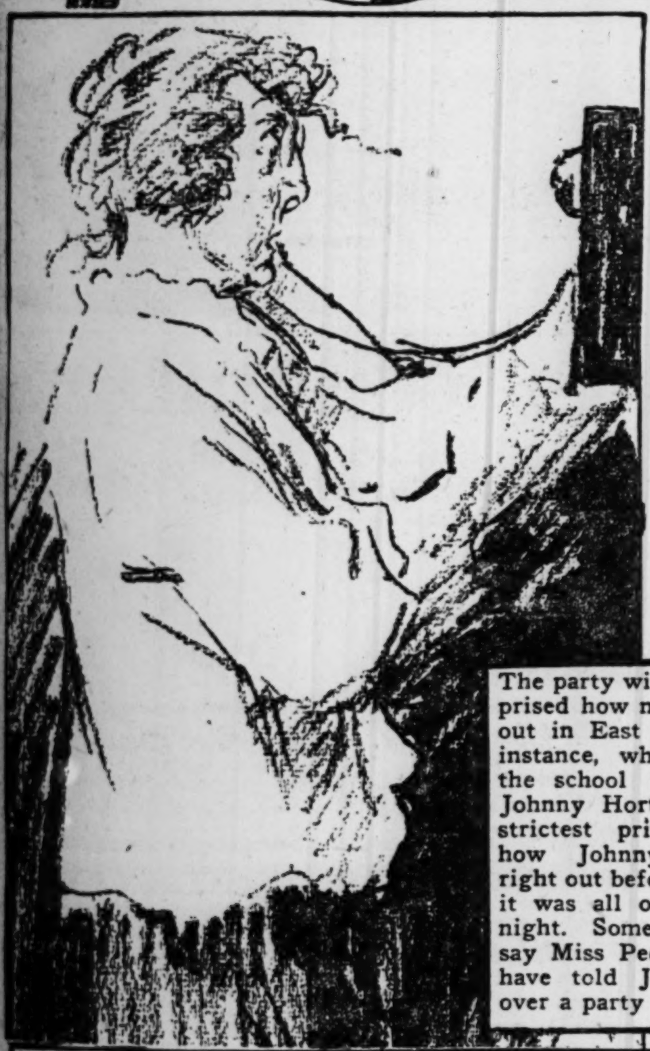
Secret stuff with a vengeance. Marbury is entering the sacred portals of a secret society—the Goopha Gamma Oof, to be exact,—and this is just one of many initiation rites which will prove to the brothers of Goopha Gamma Oof, whether or no Marbury has the makings of a loyal fraternity man.



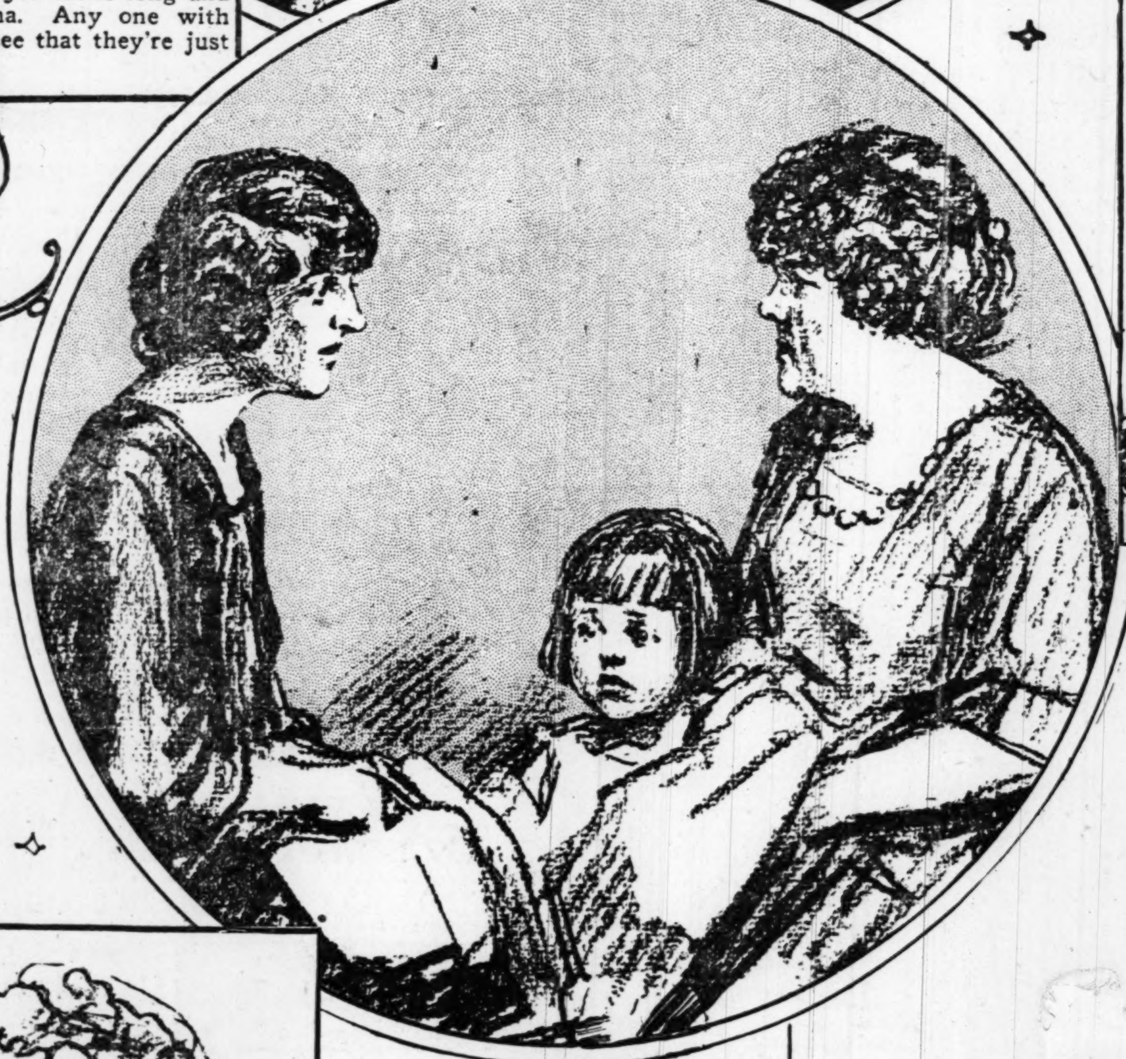
Of course Edna's engagement to Joe is a dead secret. No one would ever dream that they were in love with each other when Joe looks long and earnestly at Edna. Any one with half an eye can see that they're just good friends!



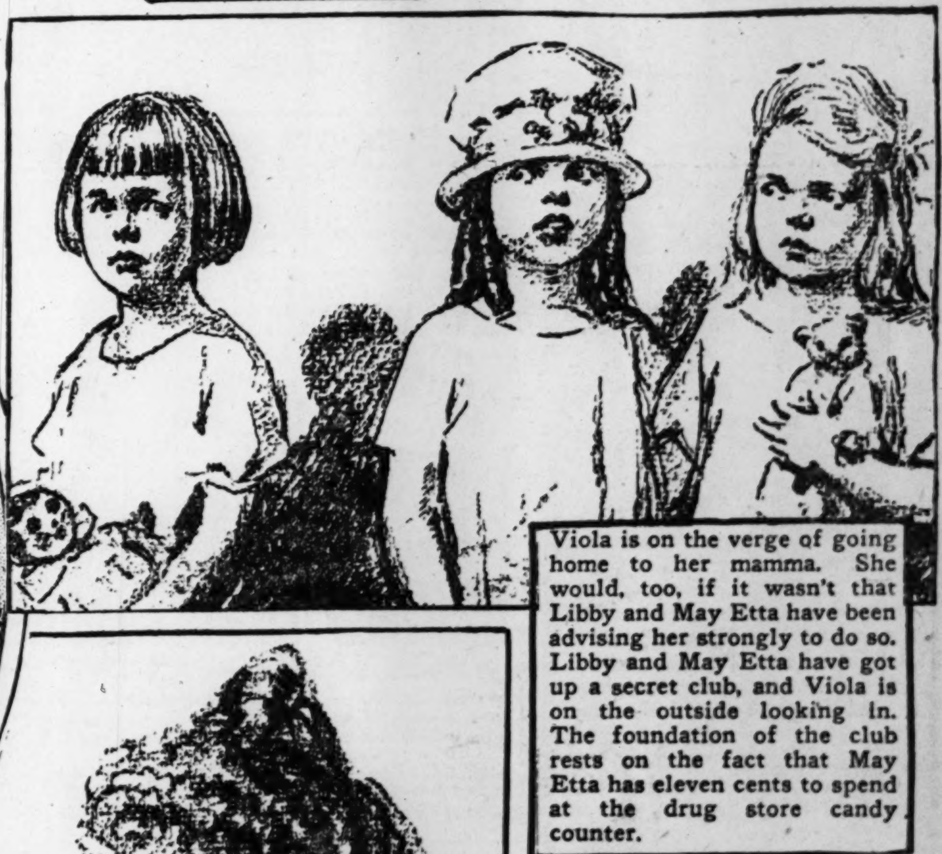
Terrible moment when the man who confided a business secret to the little wife, hears her telling a caller all about it. "I shouldn't think you'd mind in the least Mrs. Bentley's knowing how much you made in the last six months!" will be the little wife's comeback before the tears begin to fall.



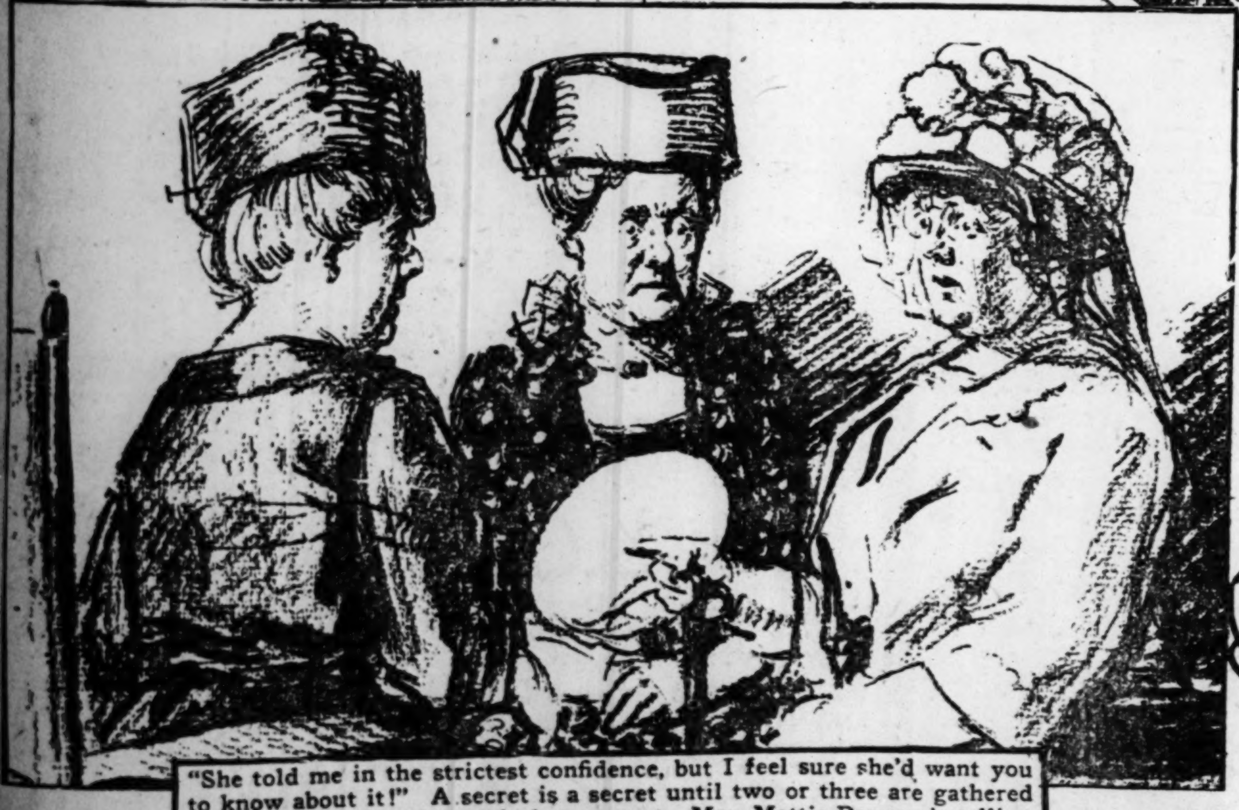
The party wire. You'd be surprised how many secrets leak out in East Turtleville. For instance, when Miss Pecan, the school teacher, phoned Johnny Horton's mamma, in strictest privacy, all about how Johnny said "damn" right out before the principal; it was all over town before night. Some there are who say Miss Pecan should never have told Johnny's mamma over a party wire.



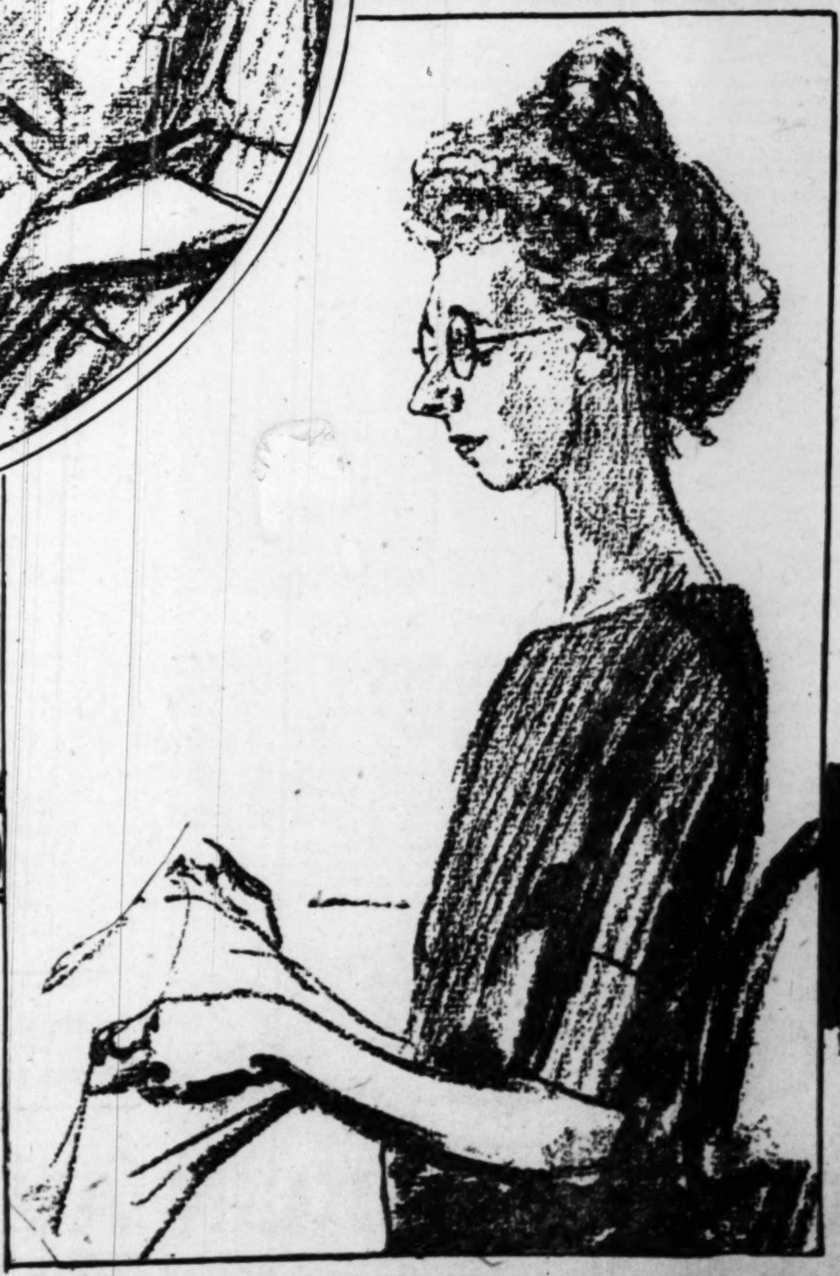
"I think I'll give her C-O-D-L-I-V-E-R O-I-L," spells Harriet's mamma, that being one way of keeping a secret from Harriet. Something in the air tells Harriet they are not telling about Santa Claus, or chocolate cake!



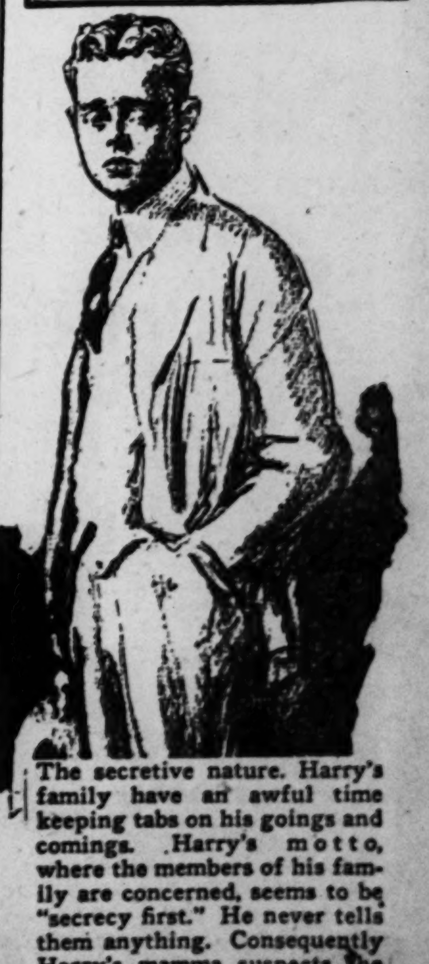
Viola is on the verge of going home to her mamma. She would, too, if it wasn't that Libby and May Etta have been advising her strongly to do so. Libby and May Etta have got up a secret club, and Viola is on the outside looking in. The foundation of the club rests on the fact that May Etta has eleven cents to spend at the drug store candy counter.



"She told me in the strictest confidence, but I feel sure she'd want you to know about it!" A secret is a secret until two or three are gathered together, and then the strain is too great. Mrs. Mattie Powers is telling verbatim, with maybe just a few little extra touches, the minister's wife's version of the latest parish scandal, for the benefit of two chosen members of the Ladies' Aid.



The most terrible person to approach with a secret is the lady who knew it all the time and says, "I really don't think we ought to discuss it."



The secretive nature. Harry's family have an awful time keeping tabs on his goings and comings. Harry's motto, where the members of his family are concerned, seems to be "secrecy first." He never tells them anything. Consequently Harry's mamma suspects the worst at all times.

TURKESTAN SOVIET SWINGING TOWARD PRIVATE CAPITAL

Concessions Far Greater Than Those in Russia Are Made by Government.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 12.—Far greater concessions toward a complete capitalistic state of affairs than prevail in Russia proper have just been made by the Soviet government in Turkestan.

The Turkestan Economic Council decided to remove all regulations and previous decrees which restrained trade and commerce and to retain control only of a very few "key industries." Turkestan is normally one of the largest cotton growing regions of the world.

The decision came as a result of two factors—first, the unprofitableness of government-controlled industries, and second, the unrest among the population due to the revolt against the Soviet regime which is being led in Bokhara by Enver Pasha, formerly commander-in-chief of the Turkish armies.

Cotton growing has increased greatly during the past few years. The pre-war area sown with cotton in Russian middle Asia was nearly 400,000 dessatines. In 1921 about 100,000 dessatines were sown, and this year, in Turkestan, without Bokhara and Khiva, where the Enver Pasha revolt is stronger than in Turkestan, only 63,000 dessatines were sown. This is expected to yield about 45,000 tons of cotton. To transport this to the Russian factories about 20 trillion Soviet rubles will be required by the Turkestan Cotton Committee. The state bank has assigned only one trillion, and though ten trillion more are to be forthcoming, much of this cotton will remain in Turkestan unless private enterprises moves it. The railway conditions are also unfavorable for its transport.

THERAPY DEMONSTRATION WEEK

Work Is Preliminary to the Opening of the Fall Term.

Demonstrations of occupational therapy as it is in force at Barnes Hospital will be given this week by Mrs. May Kribben to all women who are interested in taking up therapy as a profession. Mrs. Kribben has charge of the bedside work of patients of the hospital and she will explain the crafts taught the patients and also the work of men and women in the Junior League "workcure" shop at Barnes, where the handicapped are given employment.

The demonstration is preliminary to the opening of the fall term of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy Training School, which is conducted in the "workcure shop" at the city hospitay. A large class is desired as the demand is great for trained workers for hospitals and institutions all over the country.

Worker to Speak on Near East.

Mrs. Nettie Hall Austin of Hannibal, Mo., who has returned on a leave of absence from work with the Near East Relief organization in Turkey and Armenia, will speak on conditions in the Near East at the Piasa Chautauqua this evening. Mrs. Austin went overseas with the organization three years ago. She intends returning the latter part of October.

ADMIRAL TO ATTEND REUNION

Coontz Will Go to Hannibal for Missouri Legion Convention Aug. 21-22.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Aug. 12.—Admiral R. E. Coontz, chief of operations and active head of the U. S. Navy, will join with the comrades of his own legion post in the city of his nativity in welcoming the fourth annual convention of the Missouri department of the American Legion to Hannibal Aug. 21—22. The Admiral will arrive on the 20th and will remain through the convention. Election of State officers and delegates to the national meeting to be held in October in New Orleans will come on the second day.

HARD TIMES HAVE FALLEN UPON GERMAN STAGE WORLD

One Actor Has Taken Up Pick of Coal Miner Rather Than Stoop to Minor Stage Part.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—Unusually hard times have fallen upon the stage world of Germany. The economic difficulties which have been distressing theatrical managers ever since the revolution have thrown hundreds of actors and actresses into the streets and at the same time closed many theaters.

The artists have been so hard pressed for means of gaining a livelihood that they have been turning to every kind of other work. In one town in the occupied territory an actor, who once played in leading hero parts, has taken up the pick of a coal miner rather than stoop to a minor part on the stage. This instance is said to be typical.

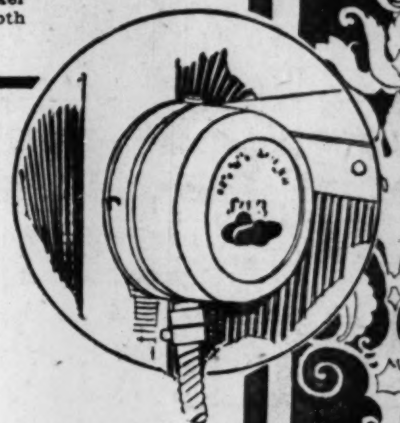
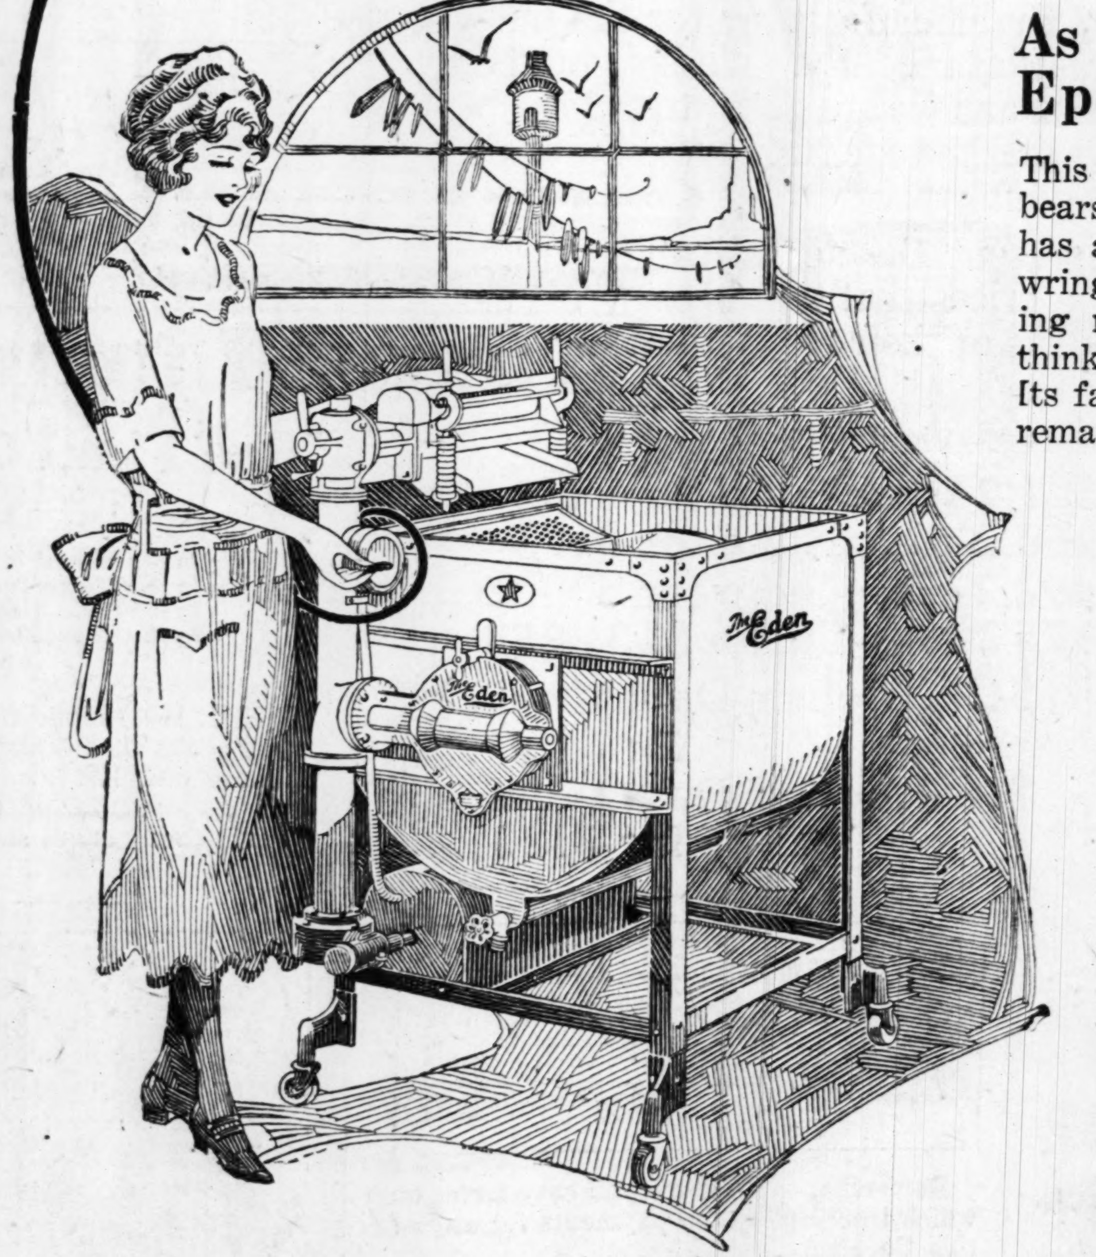
ANNOUNCEMENT!



This is the Minibreaker. The Eden's mechanical thinker that constantly protects both machine and operator.

The new Eden
with the Minibreaker, Its "Electrical Brain",
Is Now on Display

It is with great pride that we present the New Eden---a finished product which has been in the making for three years, and the perfection of which has been the goal of Eden engineers through fourteen years of successful washing machine building.



As Usual, the Eden Leads With Epoch-Making Improvements

This New Eden, illustrated here for the first time, bears slight resemblance to its earlier models. It has a streamline satin-finish aluminum swinging wringer and an entire new system of self-oiled driving mechanism, centering control in the quick-thinking Minibreaker, about which you have read. Its favored sanitary cylinder principle of washing remains unchanged.

Arrange for Your "Demonstration Without Obligation" Next Washday

The Eden factories are over 5000 behind in filling orders for the New Eden, due to its remarkable new features. This shortage is sufficient to indicate the wisdom of placing your order—or your request for "demonstration without obligation"—now. You will never know what a comfort it is to use a 100% electric washer, with electric control and automatic safeguard until you wash this New Eden way.

TERMS—12 Months to Pay
The New Eden will pay its way as it saves for you.

Note Carefully These Features Most of Which Are Found Exclusively on the New Eden!

To appreciate the importance of the Minibreaker, this remarkable little Washing-Machine Brain, it must be seen. It thinks for both washer and operator.

No matter what might go wrong, the Minibreaker would act instantly, shutting off the current, protecting the motor, the finely adjusted mechanism, and the operator.

The New Eden is attractive in appearance with its glistening gray enamel and its streamline satin-finish aluminum Swinging Wringer. The new Wringer locks in five positions and has an improved Safety Interlocking Device.

The New Eden's Sanitary Zinc Cylinder reverses silently. An automatic device stops the cylinder with the Hinged Doors on top, ready to be opened.

None of the lubricant can escape from the gear cases on the New Eden! It needs no oiling, except the motor twice a year, and the mechanism every two to three years.

The well-known Eden Sediment Zone has been deepened. This is the drain channel of quiet water in the bottom of the Eden tub where all the dirt is trapped as it is washed from the clothes.

The New Eden is built for long life. Friction has been greatly reduced. The few moving parts are enclosed and perfectly lubricated. When operating it is now silent and vibrationless.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

The daily use of these lozenges will Charcoal Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. Charcoal is also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and you get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

SIGHT OF 50,000 BLIND ONES MIGHT HAVE BEEN SAVED

Appeal to Educational Institutions by National Committee to Spread Knowledge is Made.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Fifty thousand Americans are blind who need never have lost their sight, asserts the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness in an appeal to normal schools, teachers' colleges and universities, asking their cooperation in spreading the doctrine of sight conservatism in their health and education courses.

There are 17 topics, all relating to the conservation of vision, which should be included in any course on general health education, the committee points out. This course, with study periods and practice classes, should have a recognized place in the curriculum of schools, and students who qualify should be accorded adequate credits, it is held.

In the proposed course of 17 topics are included: The structure of the eye and its methods of functioning; common diseases of the eyes of children and detection of obvious signs of communicable diseases; examinations by teachers to determine children's visual acuity; teaching of the necessity for refraction by competent eyesight specialists in cases of defective vision, and the necessity for glasses that "fit"; co-operation of teachers with school doctors and nurses; adequate school room lighting and seating arrangements and interior decorations to obviate eye hazards and straining, and consideration of type sizes and styles for textbooks which are best adapted to youthful eyes.

'BRITANNIA RULES AIR IF NOT THE WAVES'

Claims Best Equipment of Any Power—Capital Ship Discussion Continues.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26.—The question of the aircraft menace and the building of the two capital ships sanctioned by the Washington naval agreement has been raised in the House of Lords by the Marquis of Linlithgow.

Why, he asked, should it be thought that supremacy in the air would give to the belligerent that obtained it the military advantage belonging to command of the sea? He doubted the ability of aircraft to carry any appreciable quantity of the food supplies needed by Britain, or to protect her lines of commerce. Also he doubted that the bomb-dropping or torpedo-firing airplane would be able to neutralize the capital ship, against which a stream of "interested propaganda" was being directed.

Lord Lee replied that Britain's naval policy was unchanged and the capital ship was still regarded as indispensable.

"There have been no new developments in connection with either aerial or under-water attack," he said, "which necessitates a reversal of the decision of the Government to proceed with these capital ships, or, indeed, any modification in the constructional designs which have been already approved.

"It is the view of the Admiralty and its military advisers," he added, "fortified and based on the experience of the war and by a long series of experiments, that it is possible, both constructionally and financially, to build capital ships which shall be reasonably proof against any known or likely methods of attack. The necessary designs for that purpose already have been worked out and approved and are ready for the use of the builder.

"Unless these two capital ships are proceeded with," Lord Lee concluded, "we shall have to abandon the one-Power standard and fall to third place, as compared to the United States and Japan, in the most vital portion of a fleet. Such a course would be fatal to our prestige and incompatible with Government pledges."

Britannia still rules the air, though she may not quite rule the waves. So claims the Air Ministry in a statement. From this it appears that—

The British Navy is better equipped in regard to aircraft than that of any other Power.

The number of fighting aircraft available for the navy can be expanded at the briefest notice, and pilots supplied.

Important new types of machines for the use of the navy shortly will be adopted.

"Development of the naval wing of flying," said an official of the Air Ministry, "has been greater in England than in any other country. We claim that the naval side of the air service is the most efficient and up-to-date in the world.

"We have about 98 fighting machines in commission, equivalent to eight squadrons; another 48 are in use for training purposes, and over 300 are in reserve, apart from machines requiring reconditioning. These can all be manned. Only one squadron is abroad.

"At any moment we can put 700 or 800 machines into the air, and we have an aditional 3000 machines available."

Secret tests carried out by aircraft attacks on battleships are said to have proved the effectiveness of smoke screens thrown out by aircraft before attacking with torpedoes. The machines used were torpedo-planes and the torpedoes carried oil instead of the usual explosive charge. A part of the fleet was detailed to be prepared for a sudden attack from the air, but the time of attack was not given and anti-aircraft gunners were kept on the alert.

The planes appeared high up out of range and suddenly planted a smoke screen round the fleet by means of bombs. Behind it they twisted and turned until they had obtained broadside position. The torpedoes were discharged at short range and it is understood the umpire awarded 100 per cent hits. All the machines returned safely to their base and the operation is said to have lasted only 80 per seconds from the time the gunners sighted the planes to the time they got safely away.

ARCHBISHOP DEPLORES DRY LAW AMENDMENT

Says It Belittles the Constitution and Is Not in Keeping With Its Spirit.

Archbishop Glennon, on his return Friday from Atlantic City, where he attended the Knights of Columbus convention, elaborated on the interview he gave there, in which he said it had been unwise to adopt the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment to the Constitution.

The Archbishop gives two primary reasons for his attitude, first that the amendment is not in keeping with the spirit of the Constitution, because it forbids while the Constitution grants rights to the citizens of this country; and second that the matter of prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of one article, such as alcohol is a comparatively trivial affair which should be legislated against through the courts and not brought to the dignity of the Constitution which it belittles.

"Every other consideration in our Constitution is concerned with the granting of rights," Archbishop Glennon said. "The Constitution might be called a 'Bill of Rights.' It should not be weakened by the addition of an amendment which prohibits. In my opinion, the eighteenth amendment detracts from the dignity of this important document. Matters refererring to alcohol and drugs should be left to the courts."

He also said that that which is not a crime against society cannot be made a crime by law, stating that if the transportation of alcohol before the amendment was not a crime, it cannot now be criminal to transport it.

In connection with an alternative to the amendment, suggestions were made by the Archbishop concerning some such system as is now in use in other countries providing for Government control of the distribution of alcohol, mention being made of the regulated German saloon.

The alternative of court action and resulting punishment of the offending individual was offered as the most logical manner of handling the situation in the event the amendment were removed. There are laws, it was pointed out, for public safety and when any member of society acts in a fashion deserving punishment, that person is subject to such punishment as prescribed by law.

Though no definite comment was made on the Volstead act, Archbishop Glennon is rather of the opinion that this interpretation of the amendment is perhaps too strict.

"The pendulum has swung to its extreme," he said. "The present condition of prohibition is a result of the great competition some years ago among the liquor interests to sell the most liquor through the greatest number of their saloons. Thus the saloon was at its worst in its last few years, for this reason.

"This, and the challenge sensed if not received by the public, that the liquor interests were too strong to be set aside, together with the impulse added to the movement by fanatics, set the machinery in motion which ultimately resulted in the eighteenth amendment."

That excessive use of alcohol is injurious, Archbishop Glennon accepts and states as a fact. However his attitude thereupon may be said to be that the excess of other things also harms, and there is no Constitutional amendment prohibiting their distribution. "There is no amendment," he said, "prohibiting such drugs as cocaine, morphine and others."

In commenting upon the morality or immorality of Sunday baseball the Archbishop said it had no effect either way. "It is like asking whether the antics of a boy standing on his head in the front yard are moral or immoral," he said. "Baseball, also, is neither."

The fact that baseball is commercialized is so small compared with the enjoyment so many persons obtain from it as to make it of no importance in regard to the moral effect of playing on Sunday, he added.

Musician Out of Tune

"Gas pressure in my stomach sometimes distressed me so that I could hardly think. I played out of tune and twice lost my position. No medicine helped me, and I became disheartened. Another musician advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I am now enjoying the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. GIRL DENIES THREATENING MAN FOR NOT PROMISING MARRIAGE

Says She Carried Pistol to Frighten Companion She Heard Was Friendly With Another.

Miss Laura C. Baumann, 23 years old, of 3937 Cottage avenue, a seamstress, who was arrested Friday night at Vandeventer and Maffitt avenues on a technical charge of carrying a concealed weapon after her companion, Hugh McTigue, 25, of 1602 South Twelfth street, a clerk, complained that she had threatened him because he would not promise to marry her, yesterday denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter that she had made any threat.

Miss Baumann, who was released on bond, admitted that she had been carrying a revolver wrapped in a piece of newspaper in her hand. She said she had intended to "frighten" McTigue because she had heard that he had been friendly with another woman. She said, however, that she had not mentioned the matter to McTigue prior to the time when he suddenly requested a policeman, whom they met on the street, to arrest her. She said she had known McTigue 10 years.

CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP IS HALF OVER

Officers Say Men Show Remarkable Aptness; Kansas City Leads Cities With 57 Men in Uniform.

With the half-way mark reached in the Citizens' Military Training Camp, in progress at Jefferson Barracks since Aug. 1, officers in command say that the men have made remarkable progress in learning the rudiments of army life.

The strenuous program which has been carried out since the camp's opening has disclosed numerous physical defects in 56 young men in training, with the result that they have been discharged.

Although it was announced on the opening day that there were 1287 men in camp, exceeding by 37 the allotted quota, 972 men, whose average age is 19, are in training now. Some of the men expected did not come to camp.

Kansas City, with 57 men in training, leads all other cities of Missouri and Arkansas, which comprise the territory from which the men are entered. St. Louis has 14 men there as follows: E. J. Layton, 4350 Natural Bridge avenue; F. C. Ryan, 29 Windermere place; H. R. Davis, 3424 Lafayette avenue; J. A. Hardy, Parkhurst Hotel; G. H. Hoffman, 5124 Maple avenue; C. E. King, 5504A Idaho avenue; B. C. Kludas, 2111 Cherokee street; O. H. Schwalt, 3424 Osage street; M. J. Sullivan, 4565 St. Ferdinand avenue; S. W. Greaves, 1808 Compton avenue; P. C. Antoine, 6744 Marmaduke avenue; Bob Pelegrin, 1040 South Taylor avenue; G. E. Pendleton, 1716 Wagoner place; H. A. Traffert Jr., 4151 Westminster place and H. F. Nickolaus, 3534 Illinois avenue.

Scenic Sites of Camp.

More than 200 pyramidal wall tents of khaki, companies engaged in drill duty, squads learning to set up pup tents and guards thrown around the camp give it an appearance somewhat similar to the Jefferson Barracks of 1917, where thousands of men received their first training for active army duty.

A dance last night, to which about 200 young women were invited, was one of the diversions from routine military duty enjoyed by the boys in camp. Approximately 700 men took advantage of the leave of absence granted to visit the city last Sunday and a large number is expected to leave quarters today.

Church services are conducted each Sunday by Chaplain Horace R. Fell of the Sixth Infantry. Passes to many local parks and entertainments have been obtained for the men and three open-air motion picture shows are given at camp each week. Company baseball games were started yesterday and will be continued on each Saturday and Sunday until the camp closes. The swimming pool at the barracks is open to the men each afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock, and numerous other games are played between drill periods during the day.

The men were paid Friday afternoon for their expenses incurred in reaching camp, and expenses for the return trip will be paid the day before the closing of the camp. Ticket agents will be stationed at the barracks to sell the men return trip tickets.

Practice for Rifle Match.

Fifty youths are practicing daily on the rifle range in preparation for the national matches at Camp Perry, O., the latter part of the month. The 12 best marksmen will be selected the first of this week and will go at once to Fort Des Moines, Ia., for a short intensive course of training. From there 12 men from the three camps (Jefferson Barracks, Fort Snelling and Fort Des Moines), a team of 12 to represent the Seventh Corps Area, will be selected and sent to Camp Perry.

Reveille at 5:45, assembly for breakfast at 7:45, two drill periods of one hour each in the morning, the lunch hour, two drills in the afternoon, dinner at 6 p. m. and taps at 10 is the daily routine of the camp at the Barracks. Officers say the appetites of the students have greatly increased since their arrival, and the men do not deny it. The food, the men say, is excellent. Ice cream and cake are on the menu at least three times a week and meat is served twice a day.

"We are not given time to be homesick," one youth said.

There have been few responses to sick call each day. Most of the youths in camp have never attended similar camps before, but the difference between the first year men and those with one or more years of previous experienec is not so apparent as it was the first few days they were in camp.

Thirty-six non-commissioned officers of the Sixth Infantry are on duty, three with each of the 12 companies. These men, with the regular or reserve officers in command, instruct the recruits. Some minor company offices also are filled by the "Whites," or second year men, and the "blues," men in the advanced course. The "reds," or first year men, far outnumber other branches.

St. Louis Woman Hurt in Oregon.

Mrs. William R. Lageman of 3910 Arsenal street, suffered body bruises and possible internal injuries Tuesday when she was struck by a street car in Portland, Ore., where she is visiting, accordng to a message received by her husband, who is secretary-treasurer of the Model Laundry Co. The message said that Mrs. Lagema was trying to avoid being hit by an automobile at the time and adds that she is not believed seriously hurt.

QUIET OPTIMISM IN FINANCIAL MARKETS DESPITE UNSETTLED CONDITIONS

RAILROAD SHARES FEATURE OF WEEK ON STOCK MARKET

Undertone of Quiet Optimism Reflected—Rally in Foreign Exchange Rates—Signs Point to Continuance of Easy Money.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Notwithstanding the lack of direct evidence early in the week of progress towards an adjustment of the labor controversies at home and of the reparations difficulties overseas, the financial markets exhibited an undertone of quiet optimism, and the upward movement in the prices of securities was evidently in anticipation of an early settlement of the troubles on this side of the Atlantic. This view of the situation was justified to some extent by the news of the latter part of the week which, though lacking in concreteness, became more reassuring. That rail shares should have led the advance in the stock market, at the very time that the coal miners' and the shopmen's strikes had reached the most critical stage, was not without its significance.

"The situation overseas offers less immediate promise of a satisfactory solution. The conference on reparations in London has led once more to an impasse between the British and French Premiers and has served further to emphasize the divergent viewpoints of the two governments with regard to the policy to be pursued toward Germany. The end of the week, however, brought a pronounced change in the sentiment on the other side and a growing belief that this conference, unlike its predecessors, would not prove fruitless, but that some compromise would eventually be effected. Such a feeling was reflected in this country in the sharp rally in the foreign exchanges, though the German mark failed to register the same degree of improvement noted in the French and Italian currencies, and still remains close to its record low price. It is evident that only a radical departure from the previous policy of drift, as followed by the allied nations with respect to Central Europe, can prevent the further depreciation of German and Austrian currencies.

"The retarding effect of the strikes upon the output of basic industries in this country has become more pronounced during the week. Steel production has now dropped to an average in the second quarter of 1922 of over 35,000,000 tons. Lack of fuel was caused a large number of blast furnaces to suspend operation and car shortages and embargoes have interfered with the movement of freight. The larger producers of lumber also report a substantial reduction in shipments. Nevertheless, the orders for materials have been holding up beyond expectations, and producers have been compelled to reject business on account of their inability to make deliveries. Where buyers have been slow in anticipating their needs, their demands for immediate shipment have become insistent, and owing to the present temporary restrictions on production and transportation these stocks in many cases are abnormally low. This points to a sudden increase in traffic when the existing obstacles are removed, and a congestion of freight and a shortage of cars during the coming weeks appear to be inevitable.

Easy Money Continues.

"Although the movement of goods has been somewhat retarded, active demand is still in evidence, as is attested by the gain of over 140,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation during July. A further promise of better business during the fall is indicated by the Government's latest crop estimates, which point to bumper yields of a number of staple farm products. This presages a gain in the purchasing power of farmers in spite of the recent tendency of grain prices to soften, for the reason that these crops have been produced at the lowest cost since the end of the war. Ample supplies of foodstuffs also will tend to prevent a rise in living costs that might prove conducive to further unrest on the part of wage earneres. Large crops, moreover, mean more business for the railroads, with consequent improvement in their earning position and further progress in the liquidation of rural debts, which remain as a hangover from the period of precipitous deflation during 1920-1921.

"All signs point to a continuation of easy money in the immediate future. The Federal Reserve Banks ratio of reserves to note and deposit liabilities touched a high point in the present upward movement during the current week, while their bill holdings showed a further decline and now amount to only a third of what they were a year ago. In spite of the large supply of funds, however, the past two weeks have witnessed a sharp decline in the amount of new capital issues placed on the New York market. For each of these weeks the whole amount has been approximately $33,000,000, which may be compared with the maximum of $335,000,000 for the week ending April 28. The dwindling volume of new securities may itself be a factor contributing to the present cheapness of money. A vast amount of new domestic financing has already been done, and some slackening in the demand should naturally be expected. Meanwhile, the situation overseas does not for the time being encourage the offering of new foreign issues in this market in any great volume."

Industrials Up Saturday.

"The stock market this morning was the sluggish affair normal on a midsummer Saturday morning. The railroad shares showed a somewhat reactionary tendency, but the declines were for the most part confined to fractions. Many of the industrial issues continued their advance. The independent steel issues were [illegible] under the leadership of Bethlehem and Lackawanna and Sears Roebuck and a number of the industrial specialties were bid up although the turn over was limited. The bond market was firm. Czecho-Slovak 8s were offered rather freely, but were absorbed at prices only fractionally lower. The railroad convertible issues received a considerable share of attention.

"Commodity markets exhibited no special feature and trading was confined to the usual small volume of an August Saturday short session. Some buying appeared in wheat, following a weaker opening, but the rally failed to hold and a recession to $1.04 brought the price of September down to a low record for the year. Some improvement followed. Cotton, meanwhile, after an early show of strength on reports of rain in Texas and Oklahoma, where it was much needed, continued heavy. October futures advanced to 21.28 cents for a gain of 11 points, but profit-taking and lack of support at this level brought a reaction."

"Further improvement in French francs and German marks was a feature of the day's foreign exchange market. Local buying was unusually brisk for a Saturday session and yesterday's gains were extended all along the line. More favorable news from the London conference was the chief factor. Sterling at $4.46¼ showed an advance of ⅛. British trade returns for July showing a good improvement in the balance of trade help to explain the strong position which sterling has maintained in the face of weakness in many of the leading continental currencies. French francs moved up from yesterday's closing of 8.13½ cents to 8.20 cents and Italian lire and Belgian francs followed with lesser gains. German marks were a half point higher at .13¾ cents.

"A decrease of $32,000,000 in loans and discounts shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House further emphasizes the restraint which the strikes have exercised on business. Along with a decrease of $69,000,000 in net demand deposits surplus declined $11,000,030 to a total of $11,000,000. Cash and circulation increased slightly while reserve in Federal Reserve Bank of member banks decreased $12,000,000."

Firmness of Sterling a Feature of Market — French Franc and German Mark Rally From Early Week Depression.

Regular Weekly Foreign Financial Review Delayed

The regular weekly foreign financial review did not arrive from London in time for publication in this issue. Cable service was badly interrupted during the week by interference with cable lines in Ireland.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today, says:

"The market for sterling and continental exchange moved in an irregular manner in the past week, the most important being attached to the persistent buying of sterling without regard to the course or position of other European exchanges. During the week demand sterling ranged from $4.45¼ to $4.46⅝, and there was a general excess of inquiries in spite of the fact that early in the week commodity markets, including that for cash wheat, declined to such an extent as to invite heavy export buying. It was assumed that export purchases had been made, especially of wheat, but there was a good market on which to sell bills without concessions being required.

"Continental exchange, however, especially French, Italian and German, were sensitive to political and financial developments and to increase in supply, such as came at intervals during the week. On one of these occasions checks on Paris sold down from 8.14c to 7.92½c, and lire checks ranged from 4.57c to 4.40c. German was heavy at times, but seemed to strike a hard level after declining to the new low record of .11¼ of a cent to the mark. A splendid feature of other exchanges was the strength in Canadian dollars, which rose to the new high record of 99.81c. Rumanian exchange and currency were so strong as to demand special attention, leu selling as high as 1.25c, against .62¼c, the low price the preceding week. South American exchanges were irregular, Argentina and Brazil being heavy during the great part of the week.

"The interruption to cable service caused a marked contraction in business. Bankers were not disposed to trade in cable exchanges except for customers who had special reasons for requiring speedy remittances. The widest movements in continental rates came on Thursday, when the cable interference brought speculative business almost to a standstill.

"Yesterday, after resumption of cable service, the market developed increased strength and rates then moved up to new high levels."

Further improvement in French francs and German marks was the feature of the day's foreign exchange market. Local buying was unusually brisk for a Saturday session and yesterday's gains were extended all along the line. More favorable news from the London conference was the chief factor. Sterling at $4.46¼ showed an advance of ⅛. British trade returns for July showing a good improvement in the balance of trade help to explain the strong position which sterling has maintained in the face of weakness in many of the leading continental currencies. French francs moved up from yesterday's closing of 8.13½ cents to 8.20 cents, and Italian lire and Belgian francs followed with lesser gains. German marks were a half point higher at .13⅜ cents.

Following are Saturday's quotations:

LOW-PRICED MINING SHARES FEATURE OF CURB TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Trading on the curb market today continued fairly active with a large volume of business in the low-priced mining shares. Goldfield Development accompanied a new high for the present movement. There was a better inquiry also for Eureka Croesus, Lone Star and Gold Deep Mining—all of which moved upward. Tonopah mines sold up around 6 for the first time in quite awhile. An exception to the general tendency in this quarter was Canada Copper, which felt the effects of special selling and sank to a new low figure.

In the motor group Lincoln Motors was the feature, dropping on fairly large transactions from 1⅞ to 1¼. After its sharp upturn yesterday, trading in Goodyear Tire quieted down, but the stock held steady. Intercontinental Rubber did somewhat better. Glen Alden Coal was quite weak, losing at one time a full point. Stutz Motors held around 24 most of the session. Hayes Wheel was fairly active between 29⅜ and 29½.

Declaration of the regular dividend of Imperial Oil of Canada was followed by a drop of 2 points in the stock. Cities Service old stock gained another point at the start, but lost this later. Standard Oil of Indiana fluctuated within a range of a half point between 108½ and 109. Other oil shares were comparatively neglected.

WHEAT WEAK NEAR CLOSE AND NEW LOWS RECORDED

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 12.—Burdensome receipts, slackness of demand, both domestic and foreign, and bearish aspects of the Government crop report, led to lower prices the past week for all grain.

Notwithstanding transportation difficulties, arrivals of wheat at primary centers were in excess of the movement a year ago, and before as well as after the Government crop reports were accompanied by new low price records for the season. Confidence on the part of domest buyers gave evidence of having been checked by disturbed industrial conditions, with foreign purchasers apparently holding back because of uncertainties related more or less to the inter-allied conference at London.

The big yield of corn forecast in the Government crop report more than offset as a bearish factor in all the grain markets the counter influence of a somewhat diminished estimate regarding wheat. Government figures as to oats proved also a handicap on efforts to uphold grain values. Talk of a probable increase of the movement of wheat to Chicago was current as the week drew to a close, with arrivals in the Northwest from the new spring corn reported as gradually becoming liberal.

Corn and oats shared the descent of wheat to new low prices for 1922. Need of rain in the corn belt was given but little notice.

Provisions were depressed with hogs and grain.

With the exception of September corn all grain futures closed lower at the week-end session on the Merchants' Exchange. Lack of support rather than selling was responsible for the lower range.

In the local cash grain market Saturday the best grades of red wheat were 2c lower and No. 4s 3c to 4c lower. Demand was slow, yet there was a fair clearance. Only the choicest No. 2 and No. 3 were wanted. Local mills and buyers for outside mills were main buyers. Hard wheat was 1c [illegible] export demand. Milling demand was quiet. Some hard 13 per cent protein was offered at $1.19. There was fair business in yellow corn, but mixed and white were dull, a few cars of the former selling at 1½c to 2c decline. The buying represented scattered local and shipping [illegible] grades of oats were ½c higher, but the general run of offerings [illegible] ¾c lower. Demand was fairly active, shippers, accumulators and local trade buying.

The early range of prices, though lower, was not very wide. The weight of supplies was ascribed as prime factor in the wheat market. Liverpool closed 1d lower after ⅛d lower start.

September wheat opened at $1.03¼. December wheat $1.02⅞, May wheat $1.07¾. September corn 57¾c. December corn 52c and May corn 55¾c.

The three Northwestern markets combined Saturday had 206 cars of wheat, compared with 271 a week ago and 533 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 144 cars, Duluth 25, Winnipeg 27.

Local wheat receipts, which were 234,880 bushels, compared with 343,021 a week ago and 207,950 last year, included 145 cars local and 48 through. Corn receipts, which were 65,000 bushels, compared with 70,200 a week ago and 55,900 last year, included 31 cars local and 19 through. Oats receipts, which were 90,000 bushels, compared with 92,000 a week ago and 92,000 last year, included 28 cars local and 17 through. Hay receipts, which were 253 tons local and 89 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 1,117,127 bushels of wheat, 62,315 bushels of corn, 193,556 bushels of oats. Grain stocks compared: 185,261 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat; 33,385 bushels of No. 1 hard winter; 181,555 boushels of No. 2 hard winter; 13,668 bushels of No. 2 corn; 12,003 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn; 18,172 bushels of No. 2 white corn; 2118 bushels of No. 2 oats; 35,767 bushels of No. 2 white oats; 103,247 bushels of No. 3 white oats; 6336 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Wheat was at its weakest during the late trading and another new low record for the crop was established. There was a break at the start under scattered selling, but support was uncovered on the break and the market rallied to the best price of the session and a fraction better than the previous close. Wheat came out on the top, but the buying power was sufficient to maintain prices at the advanced level for a time. At midsession a report that the railway executives had accepted President Harding's plan of strike settlement, all of which was published in the morning papers, became noised about and this caused a fresh burst of selling which carried prices lower than before. Seaboard house bought a little wheat on the break. Export demand was quiet and St. Louis reported export bids 6c out of line. Receipts continue of good volume and primary arrivals were nearly 2,000,000 bushels. Canadian crop advices continue favorable. Market closed ⅝c to 1⅛c lower, September $1.04¼ to $1.04⅜, December $1.03¾ to $1.03⅞, May $1.08⅝ to $1.08¾.

Corn was featured by good buying of September, largely by shorts and the nearby future held well. Deferred futures were weak and sold at new low levels on the crop. Trade was broader than of late. Shipping demand was reported only fair. Country offerings were light, but a little increase was noted over the day before. Crop news was favorable. Market closed ⅛c higher to 1⅛c lower, September 58½c, December 52⅛c to 52c, May 55½c to 55⅝c.

Oats continued their downward trend making new low records. Support is poor. Hedging pressure is increasing. Cash demand was good. Market closed ⅜c to ⅝c lower, September 30⅝c, December 33c and May 36⅝c to 36¾c.

Provisions were weaker with grain. Lard closed 5c to 10c lower and ribs 12½c lower.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Overnight developments in the railway strike—the reported expansion of the trainmen's walkout in the West, the indecisive reply of the rail executives to the Harding proposal for arbitration and the report that the shopmen would refuse the administration's program altogether—brought some selling into the railway list today, but had no effect upon the general market. While railway shares were dropping off a half point to a point, the better part of the industrial list moved ahead, and so did the recent leaders in the public utility group.

The encouraging word from London that after all the conference of Premiers was likely to accomplish definite results toward solving European problems was promptly reflected in the exchanges. French francs got back nearly all of the loss sustained during the early part of the week when financial sentiment was pessimistic on the subject. Other continental rates joined in the recovery, even German marks taking part despite the further huge inflation—amounting to 9,000,000,000 marks shown in the latest statements of German note circulation.

The strength of industrial stocks was a more significant feature than was the moderate decline in the rails. These industrials nearly all represented manufacturing and distributive companies which would be severly hit if the transportation industry of the country were really crippled for any length of time. That there should have been no selling in this part of the market, but the contrary buying in numerous directions made clear apparently the feeling about the railway strike.

In preparation for anticipated formal announcement of the completion of the Lackawanna-Bethlehem steel merger, these stocks were actively bought and rose sharply. U. S. Steel common went along, but in its case the reported prospective settlement of the coal strike was the incentive. Sears-Roebuck, Wilson & Co., and Advance Rumely were prominent features of the group of stocks that have recently been reflecting the improvement in the agricultural outlook. Columbia Gas and North American, among the gas stocks again made new high records. And the strength in these quarters brought about active short covering in the motors as in others where there had been an attempt earlier in the week to force down prices.

The stock market closed strong, with the selected industrial leaders of the day like Sears-Roebuck and the steel merger shares right at their top. The rails also did better in the final trading.

The Bond Market.

European Government bonds were not responsive to the better news from the London conference. French 7½s were only lightly dealt in around 99¼, which was yesterday's closing price, and the 8s sold at 100 likewise unchanged. Denmark 8s were strong, selling up from 110⅛ to 111. City of Greater Prague 7½s were upwardly dealt in around 83. The rising tendency of Dominion of Canada 5s continued. They sold at 99 as against 98¾, the Friday's close. United Kingdom 5½s of 1937 were a trifle higher at 105. Kansas City Southern 5s were the feature of the railway list, with a jump of nearly 2 points to 91⅛, the highest they have reached this year. Kansas City Terminal 4s were up ⅜ to 85, St. Paul 4s of 1925 were up a half point to 84, and Atchison adjustments a half point to 86.

Among the industrials Consolidated Coal of Maryland 5s reached a new high of 92, up nearly 2 points from the last previous sale. Reflecting the reported change in the paper situation, Union Bag and Paper 6s sold at par, a gain of nearly a point; Wilson & Co. 7½s, which carry the convertible privilege, naturally followed the rise in the stock. They were up nearly 2 points. Also in sympathy with the new high record for the stock, Columbia Gas and Electric 5s rose more than a point to 96½.

The market for Canadian Provincial bonds this week was firm, wit. less activity than recently.

Lackawanna Steel.

Lackawanna Steel and the Bethlehem Steel shares were the leaders in the industrial section of the market today. The buying was believed to be in anticipation of the pending merger which was held up during investigation by the authorities at Washington, but which has now been approved. It was said that statement declaring the confirmation of the merger has been prepared to be mailed soon to shareholders.

The continued advance of American Radiator into new high ground reflects the benefits which are considered to have been derived by the company from the building boom. Directors in the past have paid extra dividends in addition to the regular $4 payments on the stock. American Radiator's par value is $25.

CATTLE RUN FOR WEEK LARGEST OF THE YEAR

Liberal Receipts and Declining Markets Feature Trade at the Yards.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	39,992	22,010	25,867
Hogs	55,300	50,973	41,227
Sheep	25,109	19,312	23,308
Totals	120,401	92,295	90,402

Liberal receipts and declining markets featured the trade in livestock at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week. The cattle run at approximately 40,000 head was the largest so far this year, and included more than 250 cars of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas grass steers. Dull and lower markets prevailed virtually throughout the session and all of the preceding weeks' advance was wiped out. For the week medium and common killing steers, both natives and westerns, average 50c down, with well-finished natives off 25c and a few choice kinds barely steady. Best butcher yearlings depreciated 25c to 50c, grass yearlings and medium and common butcher cows 50c to $1. Best beef cows, beef and bologna bulls and canners and cutters ruled off 25c to 50c, while the general run of stocker and feeder steers suffered a like drop. Veal calves opened lower Monday, but regained the loss later, closing about steady with the high time the preceding week, top $10.50. The high point for cattle during the week was $10.40 per cwt. paid for 12 cars of choice Nebraska steers that averaged 1169 lbs. to the head. The best yearling steers available brought $10, while heifers topped for this class at $9.60. The bulk of all native killing steers sold from $7.50 to $9.25, with $5 to $6.65 taking most Western steers. Much of the plainer run of grass yearlings sold from $5 to $7.50, butcher cows ranged largely from $3.75 to $5.50; cutter cows, $2.75 to $3; canner cows, $2.25 to $2.65; beef bulls, $4 to $4.50; bologna bulls, $3.25 to $4, and stocker and feeder steers, $4 to $6.75.

Hog Market Irregular.

Receipts in the swine division were liberal, aggregating 55,300 head, against 50,973 the preceding week and 41,227 the corresponding period a year ago. This fact, coupled with the rail and coal strikes, made buyers bearish and the fore part of the week saw a sharp recession in prices, the market breaking all the way from 50c to $1, strong weight swine, that is, 200-lb. stock and up, bearing the brunt of the loss. From Wednesday on the market displayed a better tone and on Thursday and Friday advancing prices were the rule, a large part of the previous losses being regained. On Saturday prices again came down 15@25c, top, $10.10. Packers were extremely bearish all week and the order demand during the early sessions was greatly restricted. Later, however, Eastern buyers set the pace from day to day and took the cream of the offering. Demand centered mainly on choice pigs and lights, 130 to 170 lb. stock being picked up with avidity. Medium-weight butcher and heavy finished swine were generally trailing all the way from 50c to $1.25 under the current daily top for lighter stuff. Several droves of in-bred Southern hogs fed in the corn belt were very difficult to move, clearing at $8.50 to $8.75 and being draggy sale from day to day. For the week the general market closed a flat 50c lower. At the finish choice pigs and lights, 130 to 170 lbs., were quotable at $9.75@10; pigs under 120 lbs., $8.50@9.50; hogs, 180 to 200 lbs., $9.60@9.80; 200 to 220 lbs., $9.40@9.60; 220 to 240 lbs., $9.20@9.40; 250 lbs. and up, $8.90@9.15; packing sows, $6.50@7.25; stags, $5@6.

Lamb Prices Lower.

A good run of lambs arrived during the week, but sheep were rather scarce each day. The market was on a full, steady basis at all time for sheep of all kinds, but lambs were on the decline the first half of the week, followed by a slight improvement the latter part of the session. However, the close of the week found them on a much lower basis than the close of the preceding week. One lot of good lambs sold Friday at $11.75, but most of the good ones went at $11.50, while the latter part of the previous week they were bringing $12.50 or better in a few places. This shows a loss of 75c and in places the loss amounts to as much as $1. Many good lambs the latter part of the past week sold at $11@11.50, fair grades $10@10.75, culls $5@6 as a rule, but common ones $3.50@5. Mutton sheep all week sold at $5.50@6, largely at $6 if of handy weight and heavy ones $3.50@4.50, breeding ewes $7@7.50, stockers $3.50@5, choppers $2@3, canners 50c@$1 and bucks $2@3.

Receipts of horses were comparatively light and a fairly active market prevailed at steady to strong prices. The run was all native and Southern horses predominated. Demand was equal to the supply, Southern operators being here in good number. There was also ample outlet for the few work and Eastern horses represented. The commission offering approximated 150 head. Mules were in larger supply, the offering out of first hands exceeding 300 head. Demand was about equal to the supply and values held steady. The principal call was for cotton mules, miners, pitters and big mules. The Spanish Commission will be in the market for supplies the coming week.

Late Weakness Credited to Possibility of Shower or Rain in Texas.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of four to 13 points on rather a more hopeful view of European conditions and further covering. Some trade buying was also reported on the advance which extended to 21.28c for December contracts right after the call, or about 12 to 13 points net higher, but there was considerable realizing for over the week-end and the selling became a little more active on private reports that it looked more like rain or showers in the Southwest. December soon eased off to 21.12 points, or three points net lower, but the offerers were not aggressive and the market showed a fairly steady undertone at the decline.

The market was weak later on a possibility of showers or rains in Texas over Sunday, liquidation and southern selling. December broke to 20.75c, with the closing barely steady at a new decline of 35 to 48 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady. October, 20.80c; December, 20.75c; January, 20.62c; March, 20.68c; May, 20.57c.

CONDEMNED BRITISH SHIPS NOW TARGETS

Admiralty Testing Means of Preventing Direct Hits From Exploding Magazines.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26.—Having found no buyers for the great group of battleships which the Washington conference decreed should be scrapped, Great Britain is using the monsters as targets for the gunners of the Royal Navy and the bombers of the Royal Air Force. Like the United States and France, this country has a dozen or more especially fine cruisers and one-time dreadnoughts which must be relegated to the junk pile.

The Thunderer, Monarch, Conqueror, Colossus, Lion, Ajax, Centurion King George V, Princess Royal, Erin and Orion, monsters of 20,000 or more tons, once the pride of the seven seas, are all doomed. Costing more than $15,000,000 originally, junk dealers have offered the Government only $20,000 apiece for them.

Used in Target Tests.

The navy is now engaged in a series of target tests on the famous battleships Agamemnon and Superb, which, like their sister ships, are to find their graves in the ocean at the hands of the gunners and jack tars that once manned them. The Admiralty is trying by these tests to determine how a direct hit can be prevented from passing the turret down the ammunition tube.

In the Battle of Jutland, the Invincible, Indefatigable and Queen Mary blew up because of a flash passing from the ammunition tube to the magazines below. The Superb is now in the English Channel and is being shelled at punishing ranges to see whether the flash of explosions passes down to the powder and shell magazines under given conditions.

A Moving Target.

The Agememnon, too, soon may need a successor. She is a moving target, more difficult to hit than the Superb, which is stationary. She is propelled by oil. The supply of oil is turned on, her engines are started, and the engineers flee from her before she gathers too much headway. Her speed as well as her steering apparatus are controlled by wireless in another ship.

The most exciting part of these tests is that played by the sloop Snapdragon. She is responsible for the taking of accurate motion pictures of what happens to the target as the result of the shots. At times she runs the risk of being hit by the monster armor-piercing projectiles as well as of being rammed by the 20,000-ton Agememnon.

FAVUZZA CHARGED BY JURY WITH DEATH OF MISS MEYER

Fatally Wounded Young Woman and Shot Male Companion in Arm on Street.

Fred Favuzza—also known as Fields, 24 years old, of 1308 North Thirteenth street, was named in a Coroner's verdict yesterday, as the man who on Wednesday night shot and fatally wounded Miss Emma Louise Meyer, 21, of 2755 Shenandoah avenue, when she was walking along the street. Miss Meyer died at the city hospital Friday.

Albert Turner, 22, of 2603 Shenandoah avenue, a butcher, who was walking with Miss Meyer when she was shot, and who was himself slightly wounded in the arm, was the principal witness at the inquest.

He said there had been a party at the Meyer home and he and Miss Meyer had walked home with some of the guests and were returning when they met Favuzza on the street.

Miss Meyer introduced the two men, Turner testified, and asked Favuzza to accompany them back to the house. Favuzza at first declined, but later accepted the invitation. He lagged back a little, Turner said, and began shooting after cursing Turner and saying, "You can't go with her." Turner was hit by one of the first of several bullets fired and jumped behind a tree, after which Favuzza started to shoot at Miss Meyer, he testified.

Turner said an automobile containing three men drove up as the shooting started, and that Favuzza got into the machine and escaped. He has not been arrested.

Type 61 Achieves Greatest Success in Cadillac History

IT was almost inevitable that Type 61 should bear out its reputation as the greatest Cadillac by establishing a remarkable sales record.

That much was apparent immediately following its introduction, when Type 61 enjoyed a reception such as is seldom accorded an automobile.

But in the last few months this initial enthusiasm for the new Cadillac quickened to a demand that was little short of phenomenal.

Seemingly the entire public had become intensely aware of Type 61 superiority, and sales attained a volume which promised to surpass all previous Cadillac records.

As month followed month, and the unprecedented demand for Type 61 increased, that promise became a fact and a certainty.

Now with the figures compiled, it is possible to announce that Cadillac in 1922 has achieved the greatest success in all its history.

We believe that this unparalleled advance in Cadillac business, and the continuing vogue of Type 61 among buyers of high grade cars, can mean but one thing:

It signifies that the public considers Type 61 the greatest motor car value in the world.

Hop Flavored Malt Extract Is Only As Rich As the Hops and the Malt

A SUIT of clothes is only as good as the cloth that goes into it. If the wool isn't there, the cloth isn't there. The cloth depends upon the wool and the tailor depends upon the cloth.

A Hop Flavored Malt extract is only as rich as the malt and the hops that go into it. And the malt is only as rich as the barley it is made out of. If the barley isn't there, the malt isn't there. And the hops must have been pressed when they were harvested or the hop flavor isn't there.

Puritan Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup is the richest malt extract made anywhere in the world. This is so because it is made out of the choicest barley grown anywhere in the world and is flavored with fresh pressed Bohemian Hops. It is absolutely pure because it is not filled with moisture nor adulterated with cheap corn.

In buying Hop Flavored malt extract, it actually doesn't pay in either time or labor to use any but the best. So ask for and demand

Soubrettish Moments For Frances Starr in Comedy 'Shore Leave'

Actress Cries Even Better Than in Tragedy—Wilton Lackaye Maddest of Madmen in "The Monster."

By Heywood Broun,
Dramatic Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.

AT the Lyceum Theater Tuesday night was produced "Shore Leave," a play by Hubert Osborne, with Frances Starr as leading woman and a cast including James Rennie, Reginald Barlow, Schuyler Ladd, Stanley Jessup, Samuel Hynes, Thomas E. Jackson, John F. Hamilton and H. P. Woodley. This is a comedy about a Sheik sailor; and most of it is decidedly entertaining. A good many of the values of the play have come from David Belasco. He has put in a very serviceable surf, arranged nicely for off-stage music, and insinuated a searchlight. Most of all, he has provided two actors to play the principal role almost perfectly.

It has always seemed to us that the drama burdened Miss Starr with too much trouble. She has had more than her share of the responsibility of being plaintive. Tuesday night she was not quite dry-eyed, but she had her soubrettish moments and made the most of them. Indeed, it seems that she cries more effectively for light comedy than for high tragedy.

Opposite her is James Rennie satirizing the masterful man in wholly delightful fashion. His is a voice fully as hoarse as that of Ethel Barrymore, and he upholds our faith in huskiness. Clear and bell-like tones fall pleasantly upon the ear, but they always suggest to us that life has fled and elocution rushed in to replace it. Visually, also, Rennie is constantly and persuasively right. He moves through "Shore Leave" like a panther with a heavy cold.

Borrows O'Neill's Ocean.

THE author has taken the liberty of borrowing Eugene O'Neill's ocean. Yet there is no hint of plagiarism. Where O'Neill has sown the sea with salt, Osborne has served it with sugar and cream. Fortunately, he has added a little lemon. At its best the play has the tang of true humor. Indeed, the first act is comedy of absolutely first-rate rank. After that the piece becomes more farcical.

The play is generally at its best when the atmosphere and effects are hushed and things are entrusted wholly to Miss Starr and Mr. Rennie. These scenes are not only amusing, but there is more than a flash of credible sentiment. The spectator can accept it without being ashamed of his generosity. There is not a whole lot of it, of course, but a little is enough to make "Shore Leave" a welcome addition to the season. At least we know now that the year is not going to be thrown away.

The story concerns the not too smooth course of love which sweeps along Connie Martin, a sea-going seamstress, and Bilge Smith, gob. It is tolerably plausible and constantly amusing.

This Is Funny—Ha! Ha!

THE electric lights over at the Thirty-ninth Street Theater describe "The Monster"—a play in three acts by Crane Wilbur, which was presented Wednesday night—as a merry melodrama. It all depends on your sense of humor. The last act finds Dr. Gustav Ziska standing beside Julie Cartier, the heroine, with a scalpal in his hand. She is tied to the operating table in the doctor's subterranean laboratory. He announces that he is about to vivisect her.

The hero, although present, is powerless to help Julie, because he is strapped in a replica of an electric chair. At this point the fun becomes more furious. A legless man creeps from behind the cabinet and liberates the hero. After that nothing remains to be done except turn out the lights and subdue Caliban, the giant Nubian servant of Dr. Ziska. He is mute because the doctor has cut out his tongue.

We can tesitfy that "The Monster" is not unbearably exciting. The only factor that disturbed us at all was that the legless man was really legless. Even when Ziska was promising with all the sincerity of homicidal mania to vivisect the heroine, we were able to remember that he was actually Wilton Lackaye, who makes a most amusing after-dinner speech. We were conscious, also, that the Nubian-ness of Caliban was no deeper than grease paint.

Mr. Lackaye has a lot of fun with the role of Ziska, and twitched and blinked and rumbled. He was much the maddest madman seen on the stage in seasons. Anybody's Lear would seem shockingly lucid before Lackaye's Ziska. McKay Morris contributes the most thrilling moment of the performance by executing a magnificent backward fall after standing in front of an open fire built of logs soaked in opium.

There is a generous amount of comic relief, carried out by Frank McCormack, who is genuinely amusing. Marguerite Risser is an attractive heroine. The story concerns

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

IN a banquet scene in the court of King James I, which is a part of the new Paramount picture produced by George Fitzmaurice, "To Have and to Hold," several historical personages have been reproduced. These are William Shakspeare, Ben Johnson and the Duke of Buckingham. The cast includes Betty Compson, Bert Lytell, Theodore Kosloff

"Choppie," the pedigreed chow dog in "Burning Sands," was treated with great respect by members of the company while the filming of the picture was in progress. He is the property of Jacqueline Logan, who has the role of Lizette, the Egyptian dancer, in this picture. One night a burglar entered Miss Logan's room during her absence, but departed through the window leaving a large section of his trousers in possession of the dog, and members of the cast couldn't tell whether he was trained to fight burglars or whether he had a naturally pugnacious disposition.

Arnica and iodine were popular with Wanda Hawley after one of the days she put in in the new Paramount picture, "Burning Sands," produced by George Melford. She spent nearly an entire day in a rough-and-tumble fight with the "heavy" of the piece, Robert Cain. It wasn't a continuous battle, but the scene had to be photographed several times before it suited the director.

In one of the thrilling scenes of "The Siren Call," in which Dorothy Dalton is featured, the reform element in the Alaska town sets fire to Gore's Casino, herds all the inmates and forces them to get on boats and starts them down a swiftly moving river. The burning of the dance hall had to be staged on the studio lot, but the river scenes were taken in the Yosemite Valley with striking scenic backgrounds.

In a spectacular storm scene which has been made a part of the Paramount version of "The Old Homestead," houses topple over and one drops from nowhere right into the middle of a street. Ann, attempting suicide in the storm, goes to a high cliff and leaps off. The storm carries her across a chasm into a tree, where Reuben goes to rescue her, saving her just as the tree is swept away.

Oliver Morosco plans to produce a film with Morvich as the central figure, if he can persuade the horse's owner to consent.

A wedding dress that weighs 50 pounds is worn by Marion Davies in the Cosmopolitan production "When Knighthood Was in Flower," in which Miss Davies plays the part of Princess Mary Tudor. The dress is made of silver cloth trimmed with ermine and pearls.

Bercovici, a Rumanian author, has written a special screen story for Bebe Daniels, who, he declares, is ideally fitted to portray the finest types of Rumanian gypsy.

Two Crook Films Are Movie Offerings for Current Week

Thomas Meighan in "If You Believe It, It's So" and Jack Holt in "While Satan Sleeps."

THOMAS MEIGHAN in "If You Believe It, It's So," is the week's principal attraction at the New Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol theaters. This is a story by Perley Poore Sheehan that links the underworld and country lane. Theodore Roberts, Pauline Stark, Joseph Dowling and Charles Ogle appear in Meighan's support.

Meighan is seen as "Chick," a New York "slicker" who decides to desert his pals and live a clean life in the country. One of his cronies is "Sky Blue," a notorious old swindler. Roberts has this role. "Chick" becomes a soap salesman, but decides to settle down in the first town he strikes, when an insurance man offers him work and a girl offers him love.

As he goes serenely about his business two things are happening. His employer is planning to dupe him in a crooked scheme and his old friend, "Sky Blue" is planning to visit the town under the billing of Rev. Dr. Culbertson of London, England, ostensibly bent on raising funds for the Society of the Bleeding Heart. A tense situation results when the former pals see each other in their new roles—Chick really living clean and Sky Blue up to another new game.

Jack Holt, lately elevated to stardom, heads the bill at the Missouri this week in a melodrama called "While Satan Sleeps," which tells a story of a crook who, disguised as a minister to escape the law, lands in a wide-open town where he cleans things up to the complete satisfaction of every one.

Walter Hiers, fat comedian of many Paramount pictures, is also on the bill, appearing in a short monologue in person. There is a new Snub Pollard comedy, "The Stone Age," and a short feature picture known as "Musical Moments," which shows something from the lives of famous musicians from George Cohan back to Beethoven, accompanied by an appropriate musical setting. Crossman and Ridge in songs, Stuart Barrie in an organ solo and Officer Neary, the singing policeman, complete the program.

Orpheum to Start New Bills on Sundays

THE Orpheum Theater will reopen for its sixth season on the afternoon of Aug. 27, with a change of policy to the extent that its new bill each week will begin on Sunday afternoon instead of Monday, as heretofore. The same scale of prices will continue.

Among the more prominent personages engaged are Raymond Hitchcock, who will make his first appearance at the Orpheum in "Bits From the Follies"; Lou Tellegen, in scenes from his successful play, "Blind Youth"; Irene Franklin, St. Louis comedienne, in a new act, "All by Herself"; Fritzi Scheff, Gus Edwards, Trixie Friganza and Emma Carus. The Morgan Dancers and Singer's Midgets will play return engagements.

A. W. Gillis, formerly with the Pantages Circuit, and for several years manager of the Palace Theater in Minneapolis, has been appointed manager of the Grand Opera House. Its bill this week includes L. Wolfe Gilbert, composer of song hits; the Seven Brown Girls in "A Symphony of Tone and Color"; Bob and Peggy Valentine in a comedy concert, "Vital Statistics"; Cameron and O'Connor, Zeck and Randolph, Degnon and Clifton, Moore and Shy, Belle and Wood, dancers, and Lucien Lucca, vocalist.

The Gayety will reopen next Saturday night, and Sam Howe, Hebrew impersonator, will christen the season with his own company in an extravaganza called "Joys of Life."

Municipal Theater Will Essay Free Piano Recital

THE interesting experiment of an open-air piano recital at the Municipal Theater is being arranged for the evening of Aug. 21, at 8:15 o'clock. Admission will be free. The artist is Basil Gauntlett, director of the Conservatory of Music at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. He was soloist at a pair of the regular Symphony Orchestra concerts, under the late Max Zach, about nine years ago.

His program will be selected from the following compositions: MacDowell's "Novelette"; Fantasy from Tschaikowsky's opera, "Eugene Onegin," arranged by Paul Pabst of Moscow; Chopin's A-flat Major Ballade, Mendelssohn's "On the Wings of Song," Schumann's "Traumerei"; John Alden Carpenter's "American Polonaise," the first movement, Moderato e risoluto, from Tschaikowsky's sonata for piano, in G; "La Campanella," Liszt-Paganini; Liszt's Ballade in B Minor, on the subject of the Prisoner of Chillon; Grieg's "Ode to Spring"; the "Liebestod" music from "Tristan and Isolde," Rosenthal's "Butterflies," and "Country Gardens," an old English dance arranged by Percy Grainger.

This will be the first attempt at a piano recital at the Municipal Theater. A concert grand pianoforte will be placed at the front center of the stage, and will be reinforced by a sounding board. Gauntlett is a graduate of the Paris Conservatoire, and has concertized extensively, particularly at various universities.

Machinery Hero of Play; Its Author Is in Prison

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
Staff Correspondent of Post-Dispatch

BERLIN, July 15.

ERNEST TOLLER is in a Bavarian fortress. Ernest Toller's class-war drama, "Die Machinenstuermer," is the sensation of Berlin. It is a sensation thanks to the genius of Reinhardt, but the fact that Toller cannot come to Berlin to see his own play because he played a role in a real class war in Bavaria has given the production an added dramatic interest, perhaps more than it deserves.

At any rate the Grosses Schauspielhaus, which really is an enormous theater, is playing to packed and enthusiastic houses every night, while Toller, in his fortress prison, is only able to read about his success. He wrote the play in prison, which is of interest in itself, and the first night the audience had the thrill of calling for the author and having the management announce that the author was unfortunately not present, due to a slight misunderstanding between him and the Bavarian government.

It was no proletarian audience. The proletariat cannot afford to pay the prices at the theater Reinhardt developed after the revolution with the purpose of bringing culture to the masses. The Grosses Schauspielhaus, which was originally built for a market, was turned into a circus and finally was transformed into the doings of a maniacal doctor who traps people along a country road and lures them into his house in order to cut them up. It is as you might say a Sadist version of "The Dover Road."

SOUBRETTISH MOMENTS FOR FRANCES STARR

Not Another "The Bat."

THE program at the Forty-ninth Street Theater, where "Whispering Wives," another melodrama by Kate L. McLaurin, opened Monday night, makes the following appeal: "That future audiences may be kept in suspense, you are requested not to divulge the finish of the play." The piece is founded on a story by Henry Leverage, which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, so a certain number of people must be in on the secret already. Still, a confidence is a confidence, and we are above gossp.

Montgomery Stockbridge was a cold, hard man. "I can cope with treachery," he said proudly in the first act. That's all we had better say about him. It would be unfair for us to begin hinting as to what happened to him after receiving the note which said his grave was ready. Anyhow, Ben Johnson, who plays the role in most conventionally heavy manner, is all through work about 9 o'clock every evening. Due regard for journalistic ethics prevents us from even suggesting the manner in which the character who gets (deleted) in the library meets his (deleted). Possibly the pledge of secrecy is imposed in order to spare the feelings of the dramatist who had a character killed a season or so ago by a revolver concealed in a phonograph.

Of course the present device is not exactly the same. By the way, don't you find the telephone a nuisance?

With due regard for our oath, we do want to tell just a little. There's no good causing unnecessary worry among spectators. We ought to be allowed to say that Olive Tell, who plays Doris, the daughter of the man who gets—(there, now, we almost gave it away). Anyhow, don't worry about Doris.

Of course nobody but a chucklehead would expect a beautiful heroine to get killed in a melodrama. Riddles and things always fool us. Invariably we are the first to cry "Give up," and yet we managed to guess the man in "Whispering Wires" who did it long before he made his public confession in the third act.

Good Acting in Minor Roles.

THE play, then, is not particularly ingenious. It begins slowly and ineptly, but does manage to contrive some excitement during the last half of the first act. After that it runs down hill. There are several good performances, particularly in the lesser roles. Willard Robinson as a detective, Gaby Fleury as a French maid and Malcolm Duncan as a telephone expert seemed to us to do the best work.

"Whispering Wires" is not a successor to "The Bat."

Two of the most successful of last season's musical plays, "Blossom Time," at the Ambassador, and "Tangerine," at the Casino, reopened at their respective playhouses Monday night, after more than a month's recess.

"Blossom Time," an operetta which the Shuberts presented early last season with Bertram Peacock, Olga Cook and others widely known on the New York stage in the cast, is seen now with the original players, as also is "Tangerine," which presents Julia Sanderson as the star.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The calonite powder and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.

MACHINERY HERO OF PLAY; ITS AUTHOR IS IN PRISON

a theater full of marvellous mechanical devices. It cost Reinhardt and his backers so much money that it bankrupted the old Deutsches Theater and the Kammerspiel as well.

Leader's Eyes Torn Out.

SO now Felix Hollaender, Reinhardt's pupil, is trying to pull the whole concern out of the hole by carrying on the tradition of Reinhardt on a less expensive scale. He had such a success with Hauptmann's "Die Weber" that he took up Toller's play of the English weavers and their struggle against the introduction of machinery. But Toller is not Hauptmann, and after seeing the way he sends his hungry weavers raving through from one end of the play to the other, one wishes he had been Gorki.

Gorki would never have dehumanized his laborers struggling for economic freedom as Toller does, and as even Hauptmann does to a degree. They are mere epic characters stalking across the large quantity of boards that go to make up the stage of the Grosses Schauspielhaus. They don't even die human deaths. They die class deaths.

As a matter of fact the characters in Germany's social upheavals have, as it were, died impersonally. I have seen them die and it has always seemed to be as if it were a purpose rather than a man lying before me, but I doubt if men ever died that way in England for any cause. Jimmy Cobbet, the betrayed leader of the weavers, has his eyes torn from his head on the stage, but even the illusion of Reinhardt's setting could not make it seem personal.

"Down With Machinery!"

THE big scene is the storming of the newly built factory and the destruction of the "machine." Here Reinhardt had his chance, or, rather, the complicated stage machinery he put into the theater at great expense had its chance. The scene is the inside of a weaving room filled with a great loom, and the dominating figure is a new one to the play, a man in blue denim tending the machine. The workers, unemployed on account of the labor-saving device, come to smash it, but they find themselves unable to approach it on account of the figure in blue denim, which is now illuminated.

Their leaders urge them on; one dares and is flung on the fly-wheel; and then the figure in blue denim, which is the Spirit of the Machine, warns them they cannot destroy and had better master the machine and be carried by it to economic freedom.

The weavers end by smashing the machine and by killing their leader who gave them the same advice, but the lesson, the propaganda, which Toller, the revolutionist, had in mind was the power that lies in the hands that master the machines.

Toller is a Communist who helped Kurt Eisner carry through the Bavarian Bolshevik revolution in the spring of 1919, and when it failed he was imprisoned, and there he has been ever since, though the conditions of imprisonment have been relaxed sufficiently so that he has been removed to a fortress where he has what freedom is to be found within its walls. He could not, however, come to see his first successful play, to which thousands of people who ordinarily regard Communists as devils come crowding every night.

"Lord Byron" Appears.

THEY learn some strange things about England, as all German theater-goers do every time an English play is staged. As far as the proletariat end is considered, the scenes are mostly of mobs, and the international qualities of mobs are much alike, but the prologue is in the House of Lords in the year 1815, where their noble lordships appear in white wigs, and Lord Byron, who is over six feet, jumps to attention like a Prussian grenadier when the Lord Chancellor says, "Lord Byron has the floor."

But the Berlin audience has its own conception of England. The plays of Oscar Wilde are very popular and run perhaps 200 nights a year. So the Berlin stage has had a chance to develop its own conception of what a British lord looks like, just how he frisks about the tails of his dress coat, and the lively though stilted chatter that fills London drawing-rooms. Visiting English people find it difficult to recognize their countrymen on the Berlin stage, but Americans take their friends to show them how a lord would act if he were only German.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

der the Skin" and "Broken Chains" pleased the producers so much they have signed her to a long contract.

For the right to use the four words "The World Is Mine" in "The Count of Monte Cristo," $50,000 was paid to the estate of James O'Neill, the actor, who made the stage play a famous success. Although the line is associated in the minds of most people with Dumas' novel, Dumas did not write the line, which does not appear in any French edition. The authorship of the line is credited to James O'Neill, who appeared in the play for over a quarter of a century in all the large centers of the world. The words were used by O'Neill as the climax of the second act.

Norma and Constance Talmadge have never appeared on the speaking stage.

Reginald Denny has appealed to a group of sporting men of Los Angeles as a logical contender for Dempsey's crown. Denny is over 6 feet tall and weighs 190 pounds, and is a good boxer. In "The Leather Pushers," a boxing series, Denny went through round after round of fighting, slugging real fighters like Sam McVey.

"The Bird of Paradise," which made a fortune for its producer and its author, is to be screened.

In the serial, "The Radio King," the latest advances in radio work will be shown.

What was the result of a two weeks' search in New England for new screen possibilities by a movie scout?

DR. W. O. COFFEE

Relieving Deafness, Head Noises, Catarrh With New Treatment Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, says that catarrh is a constitutional condition, must be treated through the system as well as the nose, head and throat. He says 90% of the cases of deafness, head noises and ulcers of the ears are caused from catarrh. If the hearing is getting better and worse with each cold, or noises gradually getting worse, or one ear is getting real bad and the other just getting started with crackling or other noises, most cases can be helped or completely relieved by his new non-surgical treatment. He treats diseased tonsils, diseased turbinated bones. He treats 50 patients a day here and is making many wonderful cures. J. R. Meyer of East St. Louis, Ill., had catarrh, deafness and head noises 20 years; completely relieved. Mrs. Minnie Schierer, 3210 Pestalozzi st., almost totally deaf, suffered 48 years; hearing being rapidly restored. J. W. Proctor, 3120 Whittier st., almost totally deaf in one ear 26 years; hearing restored almost normal. J. C. Patterson, Elmer, Mo., 86 years old, suffered with catarrh, deafness and head noises 8 years; completely relieved. If you suffer with deafness, head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system, he wants to examine and explain his new method of treatment to you free of charge. If you cannot come to St. Louis write him for his book on catarrh, deafness, head noises, eye diseases, cross-eyes. He will send it free. He says catarrh often causes stomach trouble, rheumatism, etc. He is in his St. Louis offices, room 409 Odd Fellows' Bldg., 816 Olive st., every Wednesday and Thursday. Hours, 8:30 to 4:30. He will make a special 20% discount on glasses fitted and all operations this month. Don't submit to an operation until you get his opinion.

1000 Eggs in Every Hen

New System of Poultry Keeping—Get Dollar a Dozen Eggs—Famous Poultryman

TELLS HOW

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system—and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production; make slacker hens hustle; $5.00 profit from every hen in six winter months. These and many other money-making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. Eggs should go to a dollar or more a dozen this winter. This means big profit to the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 128N Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "THE 1000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

PIMPLES ON FACE FOR FIVE MONTHS

Hard, Large and Festered. Itched and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble was caused by eating too much sweet food. My face broke out with hard, large, red pimples that festered over. They were scattered all over my face and itched and burned a great deal. The trouble lasted four or five months before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After a few days they afforded relief, and when I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Arthur E. Sandmann, 3916 Denison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 8, 1922.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health often when all else fails.

LEGION'S MILK FUND SHOW TICKETS ON SALE

Original and Diverting Production to Be Given at Orpheum Evening of Aug. 26.

An original and unusually diverting sketch entitled "A Scene in the Studio of the Legion School of Allied Arts" will be one of the numbers in the elaborate vaudeville review which members of the Fred W. Stockman Post No. 245, American Legion, will present at the Orpheum Theater, Saturday evening, Aug. 26, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund.

Tickets for the production, which will be given in true Orpheum style, are now on sale at the establishment of the Baldwin Piano Co., 1111 Olive street, and the entire proceeds will swell the fund for the babies.

Included in the cast of the artists' scene are the following members of Stockham Post: F. E. Turin, Murle Stack, R. A. McAdams, Dudley Dutton, Louis Conant, Charles Downs, R. D. Turner, A. K. Nushan, J. E. Murphy Jr., Arthur Joraschky, H. C. Goodwin, Edgar Smith, Charles Fox, M. Guy Hardin, Leo Ferrenbach, Henry Rhotehamel, Thomas H. Heller, Nelso Pope, J. H. Bell, M. F. Maune, C. S. Tobias, Charles Bonroe and Dr. C. W. Koeh.

Eager Co-operation.

Daily new additions are being made to the already extensive list of individuals and firms who are eager to co-operate with Stockham Post in making the show a big success. The Banner Sign Co., 1101 Pine street has donated a large poster advertising the affair. It has been placed in front of the Orpheum Theater. Charles V. Robinson, stage manager of the Orpheum Theater, is working with Thomas H. Heller, general chairman of the production, and Hal C. Goodwin, stage director, in the arrangement of the program, and the public needs no better assurance that all the "professional" touches of scenery and setting will be on hand the evening of Aug. 26.

No Charge for Theater.

As has been stated before, the use of the Orpheum Theater with attaches has been given entirey without cost by courtesy of the Orpheum Circuit Inc., through its St. Louis representative, E. J. Sullivan. The Musicians Mutual Benefit Association is permitting its members to furnish the music gratis.

A rehearsal of two of the sketches in the show—the artists' scene and the cabaret number, the personnel of which will be printed later, is called for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Rehearsals are being held in the auditorium of the Elks' Club, 3619 Lindell boulevard, through the courtesy of Jules Bertero, secretary of B. P. O. E. No. 9.

FIRE IN TOP OF 95-FOOT FIR TREE TROUBLED FOREST RANGERS

Flames Burned for More Than a Week Before Extinguished by Fighters.

MOSSYROCK, Wash. — A fire burning for more than a week in the top of a huge fir tree 95 feet above the ground presented one of the difficult problems forest rangers in this district have tried to solve.

Lightning started the blaze in the tree tops which nearly burned itself out until the pitchy bark of the big fir ignited. The fire by night and the smoke by day from this lofty eminence attracted attention for miles around.

Rangers arriving on the spot at once began to fell smaller trees in the vicinity causing them to tumble directly against the burning giant. At last one leaned to the living torch in such a manner as to permit a fireman to throw water into the hole the fire was constantly eating out of the huge bark-encrusted trunk.

Using climbing hooks the ranger shinned up the tall sapling and with a rope hauled up bucket after bucket of water before the superheated wood was cooled sufficiently to satisfy the fighters.

Sea and War Is O'Neill's Play of London Hit.

LONDON, July 18.

EUGENE O'Neill's "In the Zone" overshadows the plays which accompany it at the Everyman Theater. It stands third in order of the program. Before it is a monologue, "Bontsie Schweig," translated from the Yiddish and spoken by Michael Sherbrooke—a tale of a Jew whose supreme virtue was silence in adversity, of his arrival in heaven and of his reward. Sherbrooke does all that can be done with it, but he cannot prevent our feeling that Bontsie's life of silence is not best praised on the stage in a quarter of an hour's uninterrupted speech.

"Daily Bread," a translation from the French of Jules Renard, is a lively flirtation of which the point is its harmlessness, and Miss Isabel Jeans, though she and Kendall have been given by the dramatist, or the translator, passages of dialogue which suddenly stiffen the play's easy movement, acts with a light assurance which is given distinction by the instant in which she makes you believe that the outcome may not be harmless after all.

The Submarine Zone.

AT this point we reach the fo'c's'le of O'Neill's tramp steamer in the submarine danger zone to watch Smitty creep out of his bunk, take from his bag a tin box that contains his love letters, and put it in a place where he may quickly find it if the ship is struck. And we watch his shipmates, who are persuaded that this box is a bomb and Smitty a spy, gag and bind him, and read his letters one by one in search of some code, only to discover at last that they have been prying into a personal tragedy.

The play is written with remarkable simplicity and restraint and an admirable control over the mechanism of the tale. It has at once fierceness and tenderness, and, when its opening is a little quickened, it will be very worthily played at the Everyman. The sailors are sailors indeed, waking to their watch with the sailor's steady reluctance, facing the discovery of their fault with the sailor's curious shyness.

The last play, "Suppressed Desires," rather an obvious skit on psycho-analysis, comes a little hardly after O'Neill, but Miss Jeans, Kendall and Miss Nadine March act it well.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

How One Woman Regained The Radiant Health and Youthful Charm She Thought Gone Forever

A Precious Secret Every Woman Should Know.

ROSY CHEEKS

CLEAR SKIN

RED LIPS

FIRM FLESH

WELL ROUNDED NECK

Clear Skin, Firm Flesh, Bright Eyes and a Body Tingling with Vitality are what win in love, business or social life. Just watch the Difference in How You Look and Feel After a Short Course of MASTIN'S VITAMON Tablets with your meals.

"Only a woman who has tried as I have the many different kinds of so-called 'instant beauty treatments' of clay, creams, skin-peeling, etc., without deriving scarcely any benefit can fully appreciate what joy I felt when first I realized that I had actually regained the fascinating charm of my girlish face and figure.

"When I became thin, nervous, with flat chest, mottled, blotchy skin and a haggard-looking face I was fully convinced that my youth and beauty had gone forever. So when a friend told me of the amazing and almost miraculous results that women were daily obtaining simply from the use of MASTIN'S VITAMON I decided to give them a trial.

"From day to day my mirror and the scales told the story of returning health, vitality, shapeliness and youthful beauty. What pastes and clays had failed to do for my skin and complexion MASTIN'S VITAMON had accomplished through aiding Nature to restore the vigor of internal health.

"My own experience with MASTIN'S has been so amazing and truly remarkable that I wish every woman in the land to possess this precious secret which is bound to mean so much to her happiness.

If you want a graceful, shapely figure, beautiful complexion and the "pep" and glow of perfect health such as so many other women have gained, go to any drug store today and get a package of MASTIN'S VITAMON. Simply take two tablets with each meal for a short time and watch results.

If after using MASTIN'S VITAMON you are not entirely satisfied and are not convinced that it has been worth to you far more than you paid for it your druggist will gladly refund your money and the trial will cost you nothing. You can get MASTIN'S at all good druggists such as all Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Pauley's, Wolff-Wilson and Hager's.

WARM SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN CLOSES IN MISSISSIPPI

Three Seek Seat of John Sharp Williams in Democratic Primary Tuesday.

ONE WOMAN IS IN THE CONTEST

Each Expected to Poll Large Vote—Interest in Other Races—Nomination Equivalent to Election.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 12.—Mississippi's Democratic primary next Tuesday brings to a close one of the most interesting and sharply contested campaigns of recent years among three candidates seeking nomination for the seat being vacated by John Sharp Williams in the United States Senate. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Former Congressman Hubert Stephens of New Albany, former United States Senator James K. Vardaman of Jackson, and Miss Belle Kearney of Flora, as candidates for the senatorial toga, each have contributed largely to the interest that usually attends such a campaign. According to well posted political observers, each will poll a large vote in Tuesday's contest, and while headquarters of all three candidates express entire confidence in the outcome in last minute announcements, it is generally conceded that none of the three will have a walkaway.

160,000 to 180,000 Votes Expected.

Forecasts of the probable vote to be polled vary from 160,000 to 180,000. It is estimated that from 30,- to 40,000 women will vote for the first time. Veteran political observers declare that the women's vote will be a deciding factor in the contest.

The uncertainty as to the trend of the feminine vote closely coincides with the uncertainty that prevails as to the probable outcome of the candidacy of Miss Kearney. If she should poll as many as 25,000 votes a second primary will be necessary.

Stephens has been making an active campaign for the past several weeks, while Miss Kearney has been campaigning for about 20 months. Vardaman personally has taken no active part in the campaign.

Former President Woodrow Wilson's letter declaring Vardaman to be "wholly false and untrustworthy," and expressing the hope that he will not be again sent to the United States Senate has not been used by Stephens in his campaign speeches, although he vigorously denounced Vardaman for his alleged desertion of the Democratic party during the World War and for his attacks upon the Wilson administration during and following the war.

For Democrats Only.

The determination of the Democratic State Executive Committee to prevent Republicans and Socialists from participating in the Democratic primary, as they have done in considerable numbers in former years, has caused murmurings of discontent in the Vardaman ranks, because, according to Democratic officials, they had counted on receiving approximately 20,000 votes from these elements. In former years it has been the custom to allow all white men duly qualified for suffrage to participate in the Democratic primary regardless of political affiliations, but this year all Republicans and Socialists will be challenged.

Second only to the senatorial contest in general interest are the contests in several congressional districts. There were eleventh hour sensations in the Fifth and Eighth districts caused by new entries, and there is much speculation as to what will happen in these two districts.

Congressional Entries.

Congressman J. W. Collier, who has served the Eighth District for 12 consecutive years, is opposed by J. H. Howie of Jackson, District Attorney for the Seventh Judicial District.

In the Fifth District, where Congressman Ross Collins, a first-termer, had been striving for honors in a contest with Mrs. J. E. Arnold of Union, the voters were given a profound surprise by the last-minute announcement that United States Marshal Floyd Loper had entered the contest.

In the Fourth District, Congressman T. U. Sisson is battling with three opponents—B. S. Semmelman and S. A. Miller of West Point and Jeff Busby of Houston. It is generally conceded that a second primary will be necessary to settle this contest.

Personalities became so pointed in the Seventh District between Congressman Quin and his single opponent, Hugh V. Wall of Brookhaven, that they early abandoned all plans for a joint debate. This is Wall's second effort to win over Quin.

In the Sixth District, T. Webber Wilson, District Attorney, claims he will win by a majority of 7000 votes over his opponent, Jeff Collins of Laurel, but this is disputed by the other side. Congressman Paul Johnson is not seeking re-election.

Congressman B. G. Lowrey of the Second District has a lively opponent in A. C. Anderson, a defeated candidate of two years ago, but the race has attracted little attention.

Congressman J. E. Rankin of the First District and Congressman Benjamin Humphries of the Third District have been declared nominees of the party, neither having opposition.

A THREE-TIME AD COSTS LESS, PRODUCES MORE.

RENEWED BUYING PROMISES TO BE OF RECORD SIZE

Preponderance of Demand Is for Seven and Eight Room Houses and Bungalows.

PRICES SAID TO BE LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

Rentals, However, Remain at Same Level—Plans Are Completed for Many Large Buildings.

By BERRY MOORE.

The renewed buying movement on the part of homeseekers and investors promises to approach that following the World War, when the number of transactions in houses, flats and apartments exceeded all records. As at that time, the preponderance of the demand is for seven and eight room houses, and for bungalows and cottages, while apartments and flats are sought more or less, both as homes and as investments.

The readjustment during the last year or two has brought prices of houses and flats, down somewhat in many instances to attractive levels. This, together with the fact that the prices of building material have risen again, as a result of the resumption of construction, has precipitated the greater demand. In fact, the demand is so keen that flats and houses in course of construction are being purchased from the plans, agents declared. The number of houses and flats being erected by professionals is large, and their disposition at good profits is virtually assured through the advance cost of building materials.

The suggestion is ventured that rentals may work lower with the completion of houses and flats, as well as apartments, now under construction and which were started before the advance in building costs began. At least, the outlook is more favorable for renters with an increased supply of buildings of these types in sight, but no notable reduction in rentals for some time as yet is anticipated.

May Renew Leases.

Several agencies have sent notices to tenants of apartments to the effect that they may renew their leases at the same rental provided that they execute their leases now. Of course, any marked increase in the population of the city, due to industrial revival might, on the other hand, quickly absorb all the new buildings, it is pointed out.

Plans have been completed for an imposing number of large buildings, several on an extensive scale, for the business, manufacturing and amusement centers of the city, involving in cost, it is estimated, from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, but most of these projects are being held in abeyance, owing to the uplift in the prices of building material. In many instances, these projects contemplate buildings of a character of which the city is in urgent need. This refers especially to office, commercial, manufacturing and hotel structures.

Plans are going forward for the erection of the announced annex to the Jefferson Hotel for which a site at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets was purchased a year or so ago through the Mercantile Trust Co. Arrangements have been completed with the Mercantile Trust Co. for a loan for this project to be secured by a first mortgage on the entire holdings of the Jefferson Hotel Co. in this block.

Error Was Made.

Through a typographical error, $160,000, instead of $1,760,000 was given in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, as the purchase price of the present site of the Jefferson Hotel, which occupies the entire east half of this block facing Twelfth Street, and which was recently purchased by the Jefferson Hotel Co. through the Mercantile Trust Co. The Jefferson Hotel Co. now owns both the hotel building and site in addition to the large plot on the Thirteenth street corner, acquired a year or so ago through the Mercantile Trust Co. as a site for the annex, which is to cost $2,500,000.

The demand for subdivision property continues unabated. This is taken to mean that there will be no cessation in construction in this field. In the majority of cases the restrictions are light and construction cost can be reduced in accordance with the means of the builders.

Sale on Delmar to Motor Concern.

R. J. Dyas & Co. report the sale of 4634-36 Delmar boulevard to the [illegible] Motor Co., for S. L. Kopman. The property was sold to Kopman 30 days ago.

SEVERAL FLATS AND RESIDENCES IN SCOTT'S SALES REPORT

Oreon E. & R. G. Scott report having closed a number of sales recently, the principal one being the sale of the apartment building on the northeast corner of Lafayette and Spring avenue, containing 12 apartments of four and five rooms each, bringing an annual rental of $10,800 per year. It was sold for Francis X. English.

DEPARTMENT STORE GARAGE FOR CUSTOMERS OPENS TOMORROW

A garage to afford free parking space for customers for three hours, with a small charge for overtime, will be opened by the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney store tomorrow on St. Charles street near Eleventh street.

The capacity of the four floors, with the roof, is 500 machines, and there is space in a basement for automobiles of the company. The cnstruction of the building is such that four additional stories may be added. The construction is of concrete and iron, and there is a sprinkler system.

Each floor is divided into two sections, one a half story higher, and three half steps and each floor above are reached by ramps. The grades are less than the ordinary grade at the entrance from the curb. By this system a car may be driven direct to the top floor by following a spiral.

Garage checks, to be presented to attendants at the garage, will be issued at the Tenth street entrance of the store. A chauffeur may be called from the garage by presenting an owner's check to the doorman at that entrance. If there is no chauffeur the owner will have to take his check to the garage to get his automobile.

Waiting rooms for drivers are provided on each floor. The first floor is reserved for women drivers and their machines and is equipped with waiting and rest rooms. Free air will be obtainable on each floor.

COUNTRY CLUB ADDITION IS ATTRACTING MANY

Many Transactions Being Made for Investment and Speculation as Well as for Homestead.

The Country Club addition to Normandy Park on the Natural Bridge road is attracting many buyers, principally those with plans for the erection of homes. As a result, indications are that this addition soon will be one of the most active centers of building in the subdivision field adjacent to the city.

Numerous purchases in this addition have also been made as an investment, not to say speculation. The widening of the Natural Bridge road from Twelfth street to the city limits, will be of decided advantage to Normandy Park, which thus will have a boulevard for automobiles direct to the heart of the business center of the city.

UNIVERSITY PARK LOTS BEING SOLD FAST

Many Who Bought as Speculation Said to Have Cleared Handsomely on Re-Sale.

The demand for lots in University Park is fast absorbing that beautiful and ideally situated residential addition. The tract is more than half sold and all the purchasers are of a substantial class.

The demand for the lots is so great that many of those who purchased in the addition as a speculation have resold at good profits. Plans are being made for the erection of scores of homes in University Park and construction in the majority of instances will be started without delay. All will be of a class that will enhance land values in this district.

The grading of the tract is practically completed and marked progress is being made in the construction of streets, sidewalks, sewers, water and gas mains, all of which will be of the finest type. The tract lies on the north side of Delmar boulevard, just west of University Heights of University City. It is being sold by the Cyrus Crane Willmore organization.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

HUSBAND RENTS BUNGALOW—WIFE FINDS THAT THEY OWN IT!

A tired husband in his continuous chasing around looking for lower rent was sent out to Princeton Place, a Subdivision, to rent a bungalow advertised by Weiss-Meyerricks R. & L. Co., who are advertising Bungalows at monthly payments lower than rent.

Upon investigation he found everything entirely satisfactory and immediately purchased one on that plan. Returning home immediately, he brought out his wife, who came out to see their new place. Thinking they were renting it, after looking over everything, she said to hubby, "Why, we sure were lucky this time—low rent, wonderful location, fine yard, new screens and everything handy. Why not ask the agent for a long lease at this rent so we won't have to move again and worry about a rent raise?"

He then told her, "Why, Jeanette, this Bungalow now belongs to us!" Happy! Well, it took about a half an hour to explain it to her—it was hard to believe.

Overhearing them, many other owners smiled upon them as they overheard her say, "Why, George, those were the happiest words I have heard you say since you asked me to be your wife."

"Jeanette, this Bungalow belongs to us."

ARE YOU RENTING? DOES IT PAY?

If you are planning on owning your own home and paying for it like rent, or owning a single or double flat, don't fail to come to and see the building now under construction, so you will see just what you are buying. You cannot afford to overlook our proposition.

A small cash payment and the balance monthly—less than what you pay rent.

Our prices on Flats and Bungalows are from $500 to $2500 less than you can have the same buildings built for. Don't take our word. Ask anyone who has bought Bungalows or Flats in PRINCETON PLACE, or have your contractor give you a bid on the same kind of a building, and then you will be satisfied.

We are building about 40 Bungalows and Flats in PRINCETON PLACE and for this reason we can give you a better price than we, or anyone else could, on one or two buildings.

Our lots are 35x125 with a 20-ft. alley. SEWERS, WATER, GAS AND ELECTRIC has been installed and the sidewalk and street will be made at once.

Churches, schools, stores, City Park, and street cars at your door. CHEROKEE car brings you to our office, 6901 Gravois Avenue.

"DEUTSCHLAND UEBER ALLES" BACK AS NATIONAL SONG

Return of Anthem Staged by Ebert as He Reviews Troops Before Reichstag Yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—"Deutschland Ueber Alles" has come back as Germany's national song after three years of disrepute, during which it was looked on by the supporters of the Republican Government as an anthem fitted only for Imperialists.

In his proclamation on the observance of the third anniversary of the ratification of the republican constitution, President Ebert termed the song "a rallying cry for all defenders of the new Germany," and its rendition by the band while he reviewed the troops before the Reichstag building yesterday was greeted with applause. The newspapers say the President's proclamation has restored the anthem to the meaning originally intended for it, and freed it from the stigma of party politics.

NATIONAL CONTROL OF LEVEES SOUGHT

Delegates From Lower Valley States to Ask Congress for Necessary Laws.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 12.—Congress will be asked to adopt legislation providing for complete and permanent control of the Mississippi River levee system, by a delegation representing 19 of the major levee districts of the lower valley states, which will appear before the House Committee on Flood Control at a special hearing in Washington on Sept. 5, it was announced tonight by the Mississippi River Flood Control Association.

These 19 boards, controlling the levees protecting millions of acres of land in Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana, have rejected any other plan for the control works along the Mississippi River and will ask the Government to take over the entire project and complete it.

The committee which will go to Washington will insist that the flood protection question is essentially nation, and one of which the Federal Government should take complete control, a statement issued by the Flood Control Association declared.

The levee boards of the lower valley states have gone on record as opposing a long term loan from the Government for the completion of teh levee system, this loan to be secured by bonds issued by the several levee districts. These districts declare that they have already bonded their probale incomes to a limit. A Government loan, they have stated, merely will add to the burdens borne by a few countries in the various states bordering the river.

A program similar to that adopted in the completion of the Panama Canal will be urged on the House Committee by the deelgation which will go to Washington for the hearing.

IRELAND AS SWAP FOR THRACE

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26.—Meeting Lloyd George at a banquet recently, Dimitrof Staciof, Bulgarian Minister to London, expressed concern over the welfare of Bulgarians in Thrace, and begged the British Prime Minister to place that troubled part of the Balkans under British protection.

"Well," replied the Premier with characteristic Welsh wit, "if you'll take over Ireland we'll take Thrace off your hands. You have had so much experience with Comitadjes and rebels and you'll feel right at home in Ireland. Its a fair bargain."

AIR RACE DECISION AWAITS DEMUYTER'S RETURN TO GENEVA

Bennett Cup Then to Be Awarded Either to Belgian or to Capt. Honeywell.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Aug. 12.—Word was received today that Demuyter, the Belgian contestant in the James Gordon Bennett Balloon race, was in Ducharest, preparing to return to Geneva. The race committee will await his return before deciding whether he or Capt. H. E. Honeywell, the American pilot, shall be declared winner.

Many returning pilots today expressed hope that the Belgian would be given the famous cup, and that he would not be disqualified because his balloon, after landing once, escaped minus its pilot and soared away for a much greater distance.

Returning pilots were exchanging stories about the difficulties they experienced with ignorant and sometimes hostile peasants. The Italian pilot, Gugliemetti, was especially harassed in Bavaria, where he said he was forced to threaten the use of his revolver on a number of peasants who stole sacks of ballast in the belief that they contained sugar. The Italian was obliged to throw overboard several valuable instruments and articles and extra clothing in resuming flight.

CROWN PREPARED FOR MADONNA

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 12.—Pope Pius has had a diamond and gold crown prepared for the reproduction of the famous Madonna of Loretto. The statue, to take the place of the original which was burned last year together with the altar on which it stood in the Holy House at Loretto, was completed recently. After the statue is blessed by the Pope on Sept. 6, the occasion of the Feast of the Transfiguration, it will be taken to Loretto, Cardinal Gasparil as papal legatee for the occasion, accompanying it.

The completion of the Madonna has revived interest in the investigation into the fire which destroyed the original Madonna. It has been suspected that it was of criminal origin. It has been said that all of the most precious jewels in the shrine disappeared before the fire.

Quake 5500 Miles from Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—An earthquake of "moderate intensity" was registered tonight on the seismograph instruments at Georgetown University.

The shocks began at 7:32 p. m. and continued for 48 minutes. It was estimated that the distance was centered about 5500 miles from Washington.

BIGGEST EVER

During July the POST-DISPATCH established a New Circulation Record, exceeding the best previous July circulation by many thousands.

The Circulation of the
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
for July, 1922:

DAILY AVERAGE:
182,355
84% in St. Louis

SUNDAY AVERAGE:
366,607
The Largest Circulation of any Newspaper West of Chicago

The above figures indicate an increase of 31,134 in Daily Circulation and 39,428 in Sunday circulation over the corresponding month of last year.

The tremendous circulation of the Daily Post-Dispatch in St. Louis is many thousands greater than that of any other St. Louis newspaper—morning or evening.

The city circulation of the Daily Post-Dispatch is greater than the COMBINED circulation of the morning paper and one evening paper, and is more than 40,000 in excess of the COMBINED St. Louis circulation of the two other evening newspapers.

The reason for this overwhelming leadership and consistent growth of the Post-Dispatch is found in its general excellence as a newspaper.

RADIO K S D MAKES NEW SUMMER RECORD

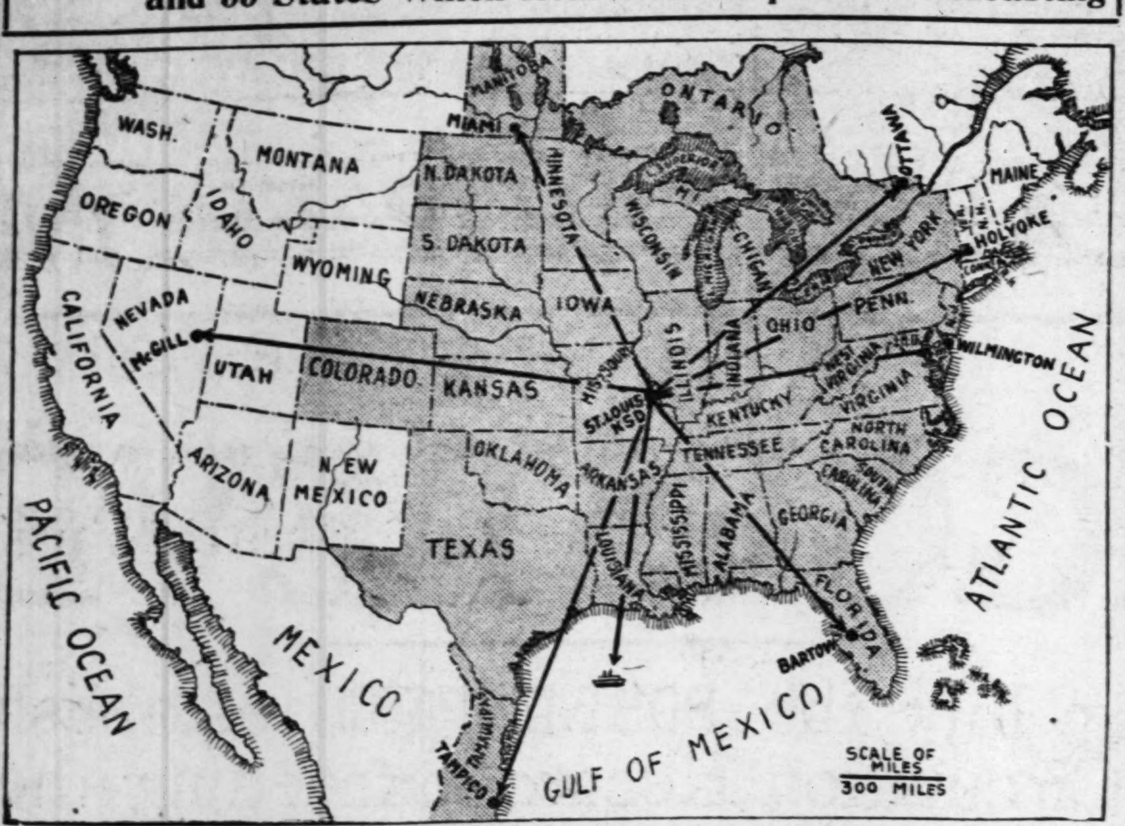
Interesting Facts Reported by Listeners in 33 States, Canada and Mexico.

Although in operation only about seven weeks, Post-Dispatch radio broadcasting station K S D has made records which were not anticipated during the summer months of July and August, when wireless transmission is most difficult.

Programs sent out from the Post-Dispatch radio studio have been heard in 33 States, in a number of cities in Canada, and in the Republic of Mexico. K S D has been picked up clearly as far East as Holyoke, Mass., along the Atlantic Coast all the way to Florida, and by ships in the Gulf. One day's mail brought an appreciative letter from a little town in Texas, 16 miles from Brownsville, the most southern city in the United States, and another almost 2000 miles directly north of him, written in the town of Miami, Manitoba, Canada.

To the westward K S D has been heard in the State of Nevada, but only in one town—McGill. The map shows the extreme ranges, to the different compass points, since the last record was printed. It is impossible to indicate all the cities and towns in the 33 States from which reports have been received. The list has grown now into the thousands. A few of the recent letters follow:

Farthest Distances Reached by Radio K S D in August, and 33 States Which Hear Post-Dispatch Broadcasting



Shaded states are those from which numerous reports have been received by K S D. Nevada has been reported by but one station, and so is not shaded. The list of cities, towns and hamlets has now grown into the thousands and it is not possible, of course, to show these on a drawing in a newspaper page. The few which are listed, however, represent the furthest points in different directions which have heard Post-Dispatch programs.

This Letter Traveled on Trains for Six Days to Reach Radio Station K S D

Station K S D receives many interesting letters but none quite so out of the ordinary as the one which follows. It was written in Northern Ontario and mailed August 5 from the nearest postoffice, Timmins. It arrived Saturday, August 12, in the Post-Dispatch office after the map above had been etched. The letter follows:

SANDY FALLS, Northern Ontario, Aug. 5.

Radio Editor, Post-Dispatch:

I wonder if it will interest you to know that you are very Q S A up here. Am located in the Temagami Forest Reserve, Porcupine mining area of Northern Canada, about latitude 48, longitude 81, more or less on the outer edge of things. Nothing much between this camp and Hudson Bay—wilderness clear through, with the gold running to cover down through the rock worn smooth by glaciers of untold ages.

I have an aerial slung between two spruce poles here in the bush, nothing elaborate in the way of equipment, home-made tuner and one-step, but I would not sell it for a kingdom. Have built many sets within the last two years, each a little better than the last, but in this neck of the woods 500 miles from the nearest radio supply house, building a set has its disadvantages. For instance, imagine mushing a 12-mile trail, at 30 degrees below zero, in order to buy a money order to mail away for a vacuum tube. Then wait six weeks, and breaking the trail every week to see if the bulb has arrived at the postoffice, sometimes hitting a head-on blizzard that would slow you down to a mile an hour. You folks in the cities with radio store on almost every corner sure have it handy.

This is Aug. 5, and as I write it is freezing outdoors and I can hear a bear rustling my old garbage can at the back of the shack. This is his third visit in two weeks—the berries are late this season. Pretty soon he will neglect me for the berries, and my household duties will have to be increased.

Oh, let's get back to radio. This tuner I located you on was built a month ago. I logged you first on Aug. 3, and again tonight. Possibly I have heard you before but did not stay with you to hear you sign off. You came in very well on detector alone—in fact, the one-step is a nuisance when the Northern lights take a notion to give us a real ghost dance across the sky.

I suppose the city man, with his battery of phones on his desk, is unable to fully appreciate the blessings of radio. It is appreciated back here, and in a thousand other isolated places all over this twirling globe where the more or less city novelty is becoming a vital necessity to the "hitherto lost." When you have often gazed longingly at a distant black speck on the curving bosoms of the snows, hoping it would be a human being, or turned expectantly in summer at each snapping twig, believe me, old man, the sweet voice of some woman lilting through the phones will sometimes leave me mute—with head drooping on my arms, wondrous sad!

Best 73s O M.

M. J. CAVENEY.

From the Steamship Catherwood, Gulf of Mexico.

After listening steadily to your concert last night (Aug. 2) can truthfully say that the piano selections were splendid. Our present position is 160 miles southwest of Sabine Pass, Texas. Yours is the first northern station I've heard for over three months. Static conditions on the gulf render radiophone reception impossible during the summer; that is, most of the time. Hope I may get more K S D concerts.

W. W. TRAVLAND,
Radio Operator SS. Catherwood, in the Gulf of Mexico.

From San Benito, Tex.

I heard you last night QSA with one tube. In fact I could put the cans on each temple and still hear the vocal selection. Your modulations left nothing to be desired. We are in the absolute southern tip of Texas, 16 miles from Brownsville.

ROY E. DANIELS,
San Benito, Tex.

From Miami, Manitoba, Canada. (1900 Miles Airline From San Benito, Tex.)

I am located 40 miles north of the international boundary and am using but one lamp, yet I heard your transmission plainly on Aug. 5. You closed your program with "Ave Maria."

HOWARD UMPHREY,
Miami, Manitoba, Canada.

From Bethalto, Ill.

A large audience assembled on my lawn last Saturday night to hear a radio demonstration and the program from the Post-Dispatch was picked up and greatly enjoyed.

IRBY WILLIAMS,

The concert given Friday evening (Aug. 3) came in loud and clear. Please extend our thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who took part.

L. E. BEERS,

I picked you up on two different nights last week and wish to thank you for your program. Thought I had Omaha and was quite surprised to hear the announcer say that it was the Post-Dispatch.

From Ridgway, Ontario, Canada.

Thursday night I heard several piano selections from your station K S D. I was using one bulb with single current tuning and feed-back regenerator. You came through very well.

WM. E. DANFORTH JR.,

From Lyons, Ia.

I thank you for your splendid programs during the week. I wish K S D a lasting success. It seems to be the most efficient broadcasting station of the many I hear.

E. F. DIETZ, Lyons, Ia.

From Great Neck, Long Island.

It may interest you to know that on Aug. 3 I heard a number of piano selections played from your station very clearly while W J Z (Newark, N. J.), only 25 miles away, was going all the time. This I think is pretty good. I am over 1000 miles away and August is not the perfect month for radio.

HOYT MILLER,
Great Neck, L. I.

From Casselton, N. D.

Heard your program last night, Monday, very distinctly, especially your last two numbers and sign off.

E. D. RAYBURN,

From Buffalo, N. Y.

The programs from your radiophone station have been heard here nearly every night. I use a detector and one-step amplifier, but your signals are very loud on detector alone.

Enjoyed your concert Monday night very much. You came in with unusual clarity and no fading. The piano was perfect. This is the first time I ever received a piano without "blasting," or a distant station that did not fade.

Your concerts received here with great intensity, being audible every evening four blocks away. The violin music last night was practically 10 times lounder than if it had been played here before an audience. Am using regenerative receiver with loud speaker. Atmospheric disturbance disagreeable.

I have been giving some lectures on radio here and in and about Bloomington. Last night I gave a demonstration before about 250 people and your program came in very loud and clear. Your transmission is almost perfect. All tones came in with remarkable clearness and purity. Your selection, "Home Sweet Home," last night was especially enjoyed. Let us have more of the old melodies. Your station is far superior to any that we get.

When MARCONI heard the AERIOLA GRAND

© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

"IT comes closest to the dream I had when I first caught the vision of radio's vast possibilities. It brings the world of music, news and education into the home, fresh from the human voice. It solves the problem of loneliness and isolation.

"The Aeriola Grand is at present the supreme achievement in designing and constructing receiving sets for the home—a product of the research systematically conducted by scientists in the laboratories that constitute part of the R C A organization."

G Marconi

In tone quality, in simplicity of manipulation the Aeriola Grand is unrivaled. A child can snap the switch and move the single lever that tunes the Aeriola Grand and floods a room with song and speech from the local broadcasting station.

The Importance of the Symbol R C A

RADIO has taken such hold of the public that it quite naturally has attracted the attention of a host of inventors and manufacturers.

Crude radio apparatus of a kind can be made even by embryonic organizations. But the vitally important inventions that have made radio the possession of every man, woman and child are those developed as the result of costly research conducted in the engineering laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America.

The name-plate of a Radio Set is all-important in the purchase of radio apparatus. If it bears the letters "RCA" the public and the dealer are assured that at the time of its introduction it is the highest expression of the advancing art of radio.

No other organization has manufacturing facilities equal to those of the Radio Corporation of America, and capable of meeting the demands of the public and the dealer.

Before purchasing any Radio Set, be sure to buy the book "Radio Enters the Home" at your dealer—Price 35c or write direct to

Radio Corporation of America

Sales Department, 233 Broadway, New York City

MRS. S. M.—Inquire among the furniture stores and gas companies for the gas range mentioned.

J. G.—Names of coin dealers are listed in the city and telephone directories.

MAURINE.—We do not undertake to answer or prepare examination papers.

X. Y. Z.—We have no information regarding the home life of the baseball players mentioned.

FRANK.—Woodrow Wilson is not a member of the Masonic order. James B. Cox is a Mason.

MRS. E.—Inquire among the photographers for those doing work on post cards.

CLEVELAND.—You can travel on the interurban cars from Indianapolis, Ind., to Cleveland, O. This is not a direct route, but involves several changes.

J. J.—The David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades has a course in applied electricity. The price of auto licenses has not been cut.

WOOD RIVER.—Cleanliness and careful attention are the principal means of keeping beds and houses free of fleas; but where they are insufficient, a free use of kerosene is recommended.

ARKANSAS.—The State of Arkansas has not passed a soldiers' bonus law and there is none pending. A Land Settlement Commission has been established for the soldiers.

DAN.—It will require the following materials to construct a cement garage floor 20x20 feet: 18 cubic yards sand, 35 yards gravel, 200 sacks cement and 4 cubic yards cinders. 1, 2, 4 mixture. The foundation should be 2 feet 6 inches in the ground.

FARMER.—Following are the approximate figures on the grain industry in the United States during 1920, over 3,216,000,000 bushels of Indian corn; 750,000,000 bushels of wheat, 1,444,000,000 of oats, 191,000,000 bushels of barley, 77,000,000 bushels of rye and 19,000,000 bushels of buckwheat.

Chase, Ohio, Secretary of Treasury; Simon Cameron, Pennsylvania, Secretary of War; Gideon Welles, Connecticut, Secretary of Navy; Caleb B. Smith, Indiana, Secretary of the Interior; Edward Bates, Missouri, Attorney-General; Montgomery Blair, Maryland, Postmaster-General. Douglas' influence in the country was strong even though he failed in his presidential campaign and he rendered Lincoln invaluable aid after the outbreak of the Civil War.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

E. D. F.—The landlord can collect the rent up to Nov. 22, 1920, because you occupied the flat up till that time.

NINETEEN.—The laws of Kentucky provide that both males and females are minors until they reach the age of 21.

A READER.—You will have to give your tenant notice to vacate in the usual way. You cannot expect him to vacate whenever you say.

W. E. J.—If the man was legally adopted he became an American citizen automatically, when his adopted father was naturalized, as he was still a minor at that time.

RENTER.—The notice to vacate need not be read to the tenant, but must be served on him not later than the day before the rent is due.

ST. CHARLES.—The voter at the presidental election is permitted to scratch the names of the electors on the Republican ticket and fill in the names of Democratic electors.

KATE.—If you were registered for the last Presidential election, and have not moved, you are still on the registration books. New books have been issued because of the changes in precincts, but your name was probably transferred.

M. SEDALIA.—1. You can register your form in the Patent Office at Washington. You need not file any statements to comply with the Pure Food and Drugs Act, if you are sure that the product contains no harmful matter, but should state on the label the contents. 2. You can obtain from the Patent Office a circular or pamphlet regarding registration of formulas.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

ROL.—The condition you describe is peculiar. It would seem that it might be accounted for by some change in footwear, but it would be well to have the heart and urine examined. The swelling occurring only on a certain day is strongly suggestive of a local cause.

O. K.—A certain amount of dandruff in the hair is normal, it is the natural exfoliation of the upper layer of the skin of the scalp. If it has become excessive it indicates some disturbance in the scalp and very often precedes falling of the hair. Disorders of the general health often are reflected in the loss of the hair and this should be considered in such cases; and departure from the normal health should be sought for and corrected. Locally the treatment may be summed up in one word. "stimulation." Weekly, semi-weekly or even daily cleansing of the scalp should be practiced. This is best done with the following wash: Saponis viridis, 4 ounces; alcohol, 2 ounces. Dissolve with heat and filter. After shampooing with this the hair is thoroughly rinsed in clear water and dried as thoroughly as possible and the following applied: Carbolic acid, 15 grains; glycerin, 2 drams; cologne water enough to make 1 ounce. Mix thoroughly and apply as follows: Make a part in the hair and drop the mixture on the scalp at intervals, then rub in with soft brush, a tooth brush serves well. Cover the scalp by this method, making one part after another. After treating in this manner for some time, the shampooing may be done less often, but the mixture should be applied faithfully and persistently until the hair ceases to fall or the case must be abandoned as hopeless. 2. Blackheads which are mainly caused by a sluggish performance of the skin may be eliminated by the following stimulating ointment: 1 dram precipitated sulphur and 1 ounce of rose water made into an ointment, and rubbed into the face at night. Another splendid application is as follows: 2 drams of vinegar, 3 drams of glycerin, 4 drams of kaolini. This forms a soft paste to be spread over the face at night and if possible in the morning. When the paste is applied the eyes should be kept shut on account of the pungency of the vinegar. It dissolves the plugs, so they can be gently expressed. Care should be taken not to use too much force for fear of inflaming the skin.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our dearly beloved sister, Katherine Enright, who departed from us one year ago, Aug. 10, 1921:

A precious one from us is gone.
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

We miss your pleasant greetings.
We miss your smiling face;
Our home is sad without you,
When we see your vacant place.

You are gone, but not forgotten,
And your memory shall never fade.
And lonely hearts shall always linger
Where our dear good sister is laid.

WE WANT SALESMEN Who Have Not Been Spoiled by Previous Crystallized Methods

We want men who will be proud to participate, when they comprehend it, in the greatest growth St. Louis has ever had.

We want men who can see the vision we see when we develop a property, who can believe in it with all their heart and whose very honesty of purpose will enable them to impart the vision and belief to others.

That is why we especially desire to interview men of high intelligence and good personality, even though they have had no previous selling experience.

The "revolution" in well-located suburban real estate is at hand.

"It will rival the good roads movement, the automobile, the radio," says Babson. Our company is proud of its record of development. A drive through our Maryland terraces, or City View, or the Vinitas, or the other West End properties we have sold, is a drive of real satisfaction.

There are no hackneyed methods here. We will not tolerate the unchangeable presentation of our properties as simply real estate deals.

We are in and a part of the "greater St. Louis" movement. Come, join us. It is a great opening. Your opportunities here for making money are wonderful. Like other great movements, the revolution in real estate is sweeping the country. It is a real opening!

YAHLEM GOT A LETTER—READ IT!

Dear Mr. Yahlem:

Enclosed please find check for $25.00 as final payment on my car. Just came back on a trip from Denver. My car is running better than ever.

I was prejudiced somewhat against buying a used car, but my eight months' use of my car has convinced me that a good used car is a better buy than a cheap new car.

I have sent you no less than ten customers. Kindly mail me my canceled note.

Yours truly,
(Name and address on request.)

We receive many such letters from our satisfied customers. Our records show that 75 per cent of all our sales for the past six months were to friends of our satisfied customers. We have always been satisfied with a little profit and the good will of our customers. Stop and think—we sold eighty-four used cars in July and forty-five cars during the first twelve days of this month.

THESE PRICES GIVE OTHER DEALERS THE BLUES.

FOUR KILLED AND SCORE INJURED IN WRECK

Passenger Train Hits Truck, Opening Switch and Causing Collision With Freight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANNANDALE, Minn., Aug. 12.—Four men are dead and a score of persons are injured, several seriously, as a result of a three-cornered collision here tonight in which the Canadian Pacific flyer, bound for Vancouver, Canada, from Minneapolis, a freight train that had stopped on the side track and an oil truck figured. The flyer struck the oil truck on the grade crossing, hurling it against the switch stand. The impact opened the switch, causing the baggage car and smoking coach of the fast train to leave the rails and crash into the engine of the freight. The smoking coach, in which 25 passengers were riding, was demolished and many of the occupants were buried under the wreckage, which caught fire.

The dead included Fred Lehmer of Maplelake, Minn., the driver of the truck; an unidentified man who was riding on the machine with him and was beheaded in the crash; C. Wallace, engineer of the freight locomotive, who was scalded to death, and a baggageman, who succumbed to his injuries a short time after the wreck.

A baby girl was hurled through the window of a day coach, but escaped injury, although the doll she carried in her arms was shattered. The mother of the child was severely cut.

Lehmer, who had failed to see the passenger train, which was approaching at a speed of 45 miles an hour, had also ignored the signals of the freight brakeman to stop.

The train consisted of 10 Pullman coaches and three day coaches besides the baggage and mail car. Pullman porters did considerable rescue work among the women and children. The occupants of the day coaches were on their way to spend the week-end at a lake resort near Annandale.

NEBRASKA'S ACTING GOVERNOR SERVES AS STRIKE GUARD

Executive's Lieutenant Took Job Because He Had "Only $5 in the World."

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 12.—Pelham A. Barrows, Lieutenant-Governor of Nebraska, and for the past week acting chief executive during the absence of Gov. McKelvie, also is working as a $5 a day strike guard for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. "Being Lieutenant-Governor has honor, but no remuneration," he said, adding that he took the new work when he and Mrs. Barrows found "we had $3.40 in the bank and I had $1.60 in my pocket, with not another cent in the world."

Under Nebraska law, the office of Lieutenant-Governor as such is not remunerative, although that official draws $120 as presiding officer of the State Assembly in its biennial sessions. Under the constitution the Lieutenant when acting in the absence of the Governor, should receive "the emoluments of that office," but because the last Legislature rejected an appropriation bill providing for that there is no fund available to meet Barrows' claim for $1800 for serving as chief executive.

Barrows returned here late last night from Alliance where he had "piloted" a crew of nonunion workers. He told a representative of the Associated Press that he had prepared his resignation as an employe of the railroad if Gov. McKelvie thought it advisable, but that the Governor did not object to Barrows' being employed by the Burlington. He then withdrew his resignation, he said. As Lieutenant-Governor he draws no pay.

EAST ST. LOUISAN PROBABLY FATALLY INJURED IN RACE

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 12.—Edward Burgett of East St. Louis, Ill., was probably fatally injured today when his automobile crashed into a fence during the automobile races at Maple Heights race track. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians say his chances of living through the night are very slight. Burgett is believed to have been blinded by dust raised by two machines leading him in the race.

Burgett is 30 years old and proprietor of the Burgett Auto Repair Co. in East St. Louis. For the last two years he has toured county and state fairs with a team of racing automobile drivers assembled by J. Alec Sloan. He departed to join the team last Tuesday.

He has a wife and two children, with whom he lived at 1230½ Illinois avenue, East St. Louis.

MAN AND ANOTHER'S WIFE, ELOPING, ARRESTED AT HOTEL

Oscar French, 21 years old, of Goodwin, Ark., and Mrs. Ila Pagen, 18, wife of Joseph Pagen, a newspaper photographer at Houston, Tex., last night were arrested at the Plaza Hotel, Fifteenth and Chestnut streets, where they were registered as J. Pagen and wife. The arrest was made on complaint of her father, who lives near Goodwin.

Mrs. Pagen, a pretty bobbed-haired blonde, stylishly dressed, in the matron's room at headquarters, said that she had furnished the money with which the couple came here by way of Little Rock and Memphis.

She said she and French were engaged before the war. While he was away, she said, her father induced her to marry Pagen. They were unhappy together, she said, and when she met French while visiting her parents in July they decided to elope.

French then had only 50 cents, so she paid the railroad fare, she said. French obtained a job here this week and has worked several days. Police are holding the couple for further advice from her father.

FALLS DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Dairy Plant Employe Suffers Possible Fracture of Skull.

George Herzog, 42 years old, of 2725 Washington avenue, employed as a milk cooler at the Pevely Dairy Co. plant at Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue, was found at the bottom of the elevator shaft of the plant at 7:30 last night suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, jaw fractures in two places, right thigh fractured and right wrist fracture. His condition was said to be very serious by city hospital attaches. Herzog was unable to talk.

C. A. Cox, watchman at the plant, said he thought Herzog fell from the first floor, where he was working, 11 feet to the bottom of the shaft while trying to operate ropes controlling the automatic elevator, then at the fourth floor.

Oil Burner Distributor Wanted

A St. Louis concern, established 12 years, the oldest and largest manufacturer of oil-gas burners in the world, is looking for a St. Louis distributor. We also have openings in a few other cities.

Our business is national in scope but because of the unusual fuel situation we find ourselves unable to take advantage of the situation locally without interfering with our national business. Our factory can take care of any production demand but we need a man to sell to the waiting market.

We manufacture 16 different Oil-Gas Burners that do away with dirty and expensive coal in furnaces, boilers, heating stoves, ranges, etc. Oliver Burners make a gas from distillate or kerosene (coal oil). No dirt, ashes, smoke, soot. Absolutely safe. They sell for one-fifth the price asked for other burners on the market.

This is a real opportunity for a man with ability and initiative. No investment is required—we want a man, not money. Write at once, or telephone Bomont 2912 for an appointment.

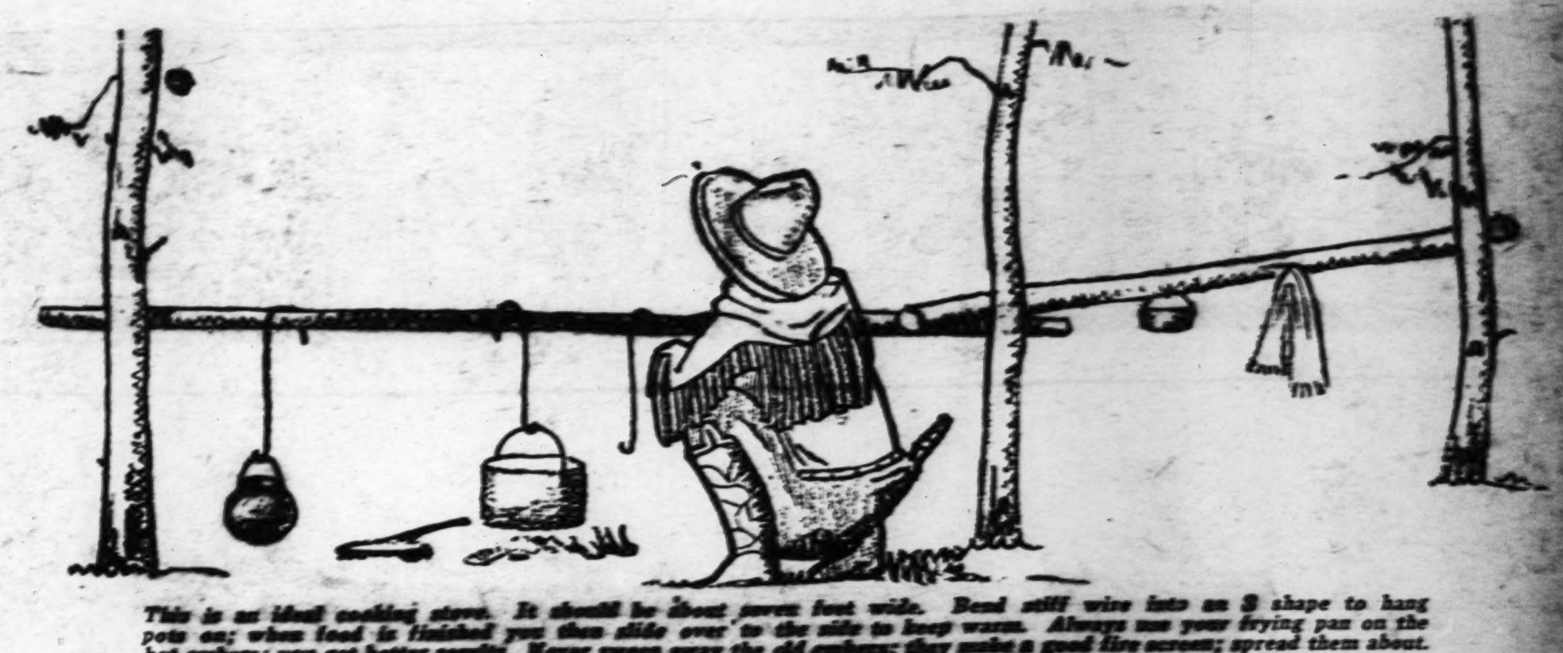
A NEW BIT OF SKYLINE IN CENTRAL ST. LOUIS



This is an ideal cooking stove. It should be about seven feet wide. Bend stiff wire into an S shape to hang pots on; when food is finished you then slide over to the side to keep warm. Always use your frying pan on the hot embers; you get better results. Never sweep away the old embers; they make a good fire screen; spread them about.

Bill Potts' Rules for Campers

Most celebrated guide in the Canadian Rockies tells how to make a comfortable camp—The first requisite of a successful hunting expedition

BILL POTTS.

"A CAMP ain't no camp when it ain't comfortable!" That's the philosophy of Bill Potts.

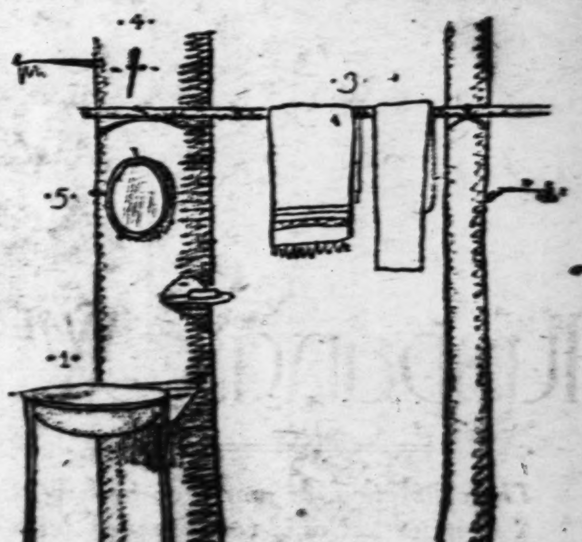
If you don't happen to know Bill, he is the most celebrated guide in the Canadian Rockies. For twenty years he "packed" Earls, Dukes, millionaires, doctors, lawyers, artists and authors—more of them than all the other guides put together, and no one in those Northwestern parts knows the whereabouts of grizzly or black bear, mountain sheep or goat, lynx, moose, elk, trout, bass and pickerel quite so well as Bill does. Now you would expect to find the secret of such a stalwart's success in some such brave matter as the secret of how properly to cut a grizzly bear's throat or how to climb the side of an unclimbable mountain. But Bill gives other reasons.

"I lay most of my success to comfortable camps," he related. "Your city man coming up here for shooting or fishing likes to take a bit of roughing in the way of a long day's hike or hard work stalking elk, but if he gets back to camp, radiant and tired out, and finds that he can't put in a comfortable night—well, that sort of thing saps his vitality in short order. The theory of a camp should be this: Days in the wilds should be strenuous and rough; nights in camp should be periods of recovery from the aches and fatigues of the day. Most people, and many guides even, do not understand this. They take little or no care to make their camps comfortable. The result is a loss of interest in the hunting or fishing trip."

Bill Potts maintains that much of bad camping is due to ignorance, to a lack of knowledge of the simplest principles. He, himself, is never tired of preaching certain elementary principles of camping—principles which, he holds, are seldom observed.

On this page are explained and illustrated rules for good camping. They are presented by Bill to Post-Dispatch readers as a set of the most useful and most frequently violated of camping rules.

"And you tell the readers," Bill remarked in conclusion of his discourse, "that when they go camping they had better do as I told 'em."



No. 1—Find two small trees near the camp, cut a notch in one three feet from the ground and place the rim of the wash basin in same. Under rim, about eight inches apart, place two sticks. This makes a good stand. No. 2 is the top of any can bent and nailed to tree; this holds the soap. No. 3 is a stick nailed across the two trees to hold the wash cloths and towels. No. 4 is a series of nails between which you place the tooth brushes, razors, etc. No. 5 is a mirror for shaving.

DON'TS.

Don't throw lighted cigarettes in the woods; 50 per cent of the forest fires start from them.

Don't leave the camp for any length of time without putting out all fires.

Don't leave a box of matches in the sun.

Don't cut green wood to burn; it sputters too much.

Don't destroy green timber needlessly.

Don't forget to bring a pocket knife and can opener.

Don't forget emergency kit.

Don't forget ax, nails, wire and cord.

Never pitch a tent facing up or down a valley; in case of rain or strong wind it will be very unpleasant; always face it crossways, toward a hill preferably.

Always locate near water or a spring.

If it is too dark to pitch tent, don't sleep in a hollow; they usually are waterways. Find a nice, soft hill.

Always split wood on another piece; it saves the ax.

EQUIPMENT.

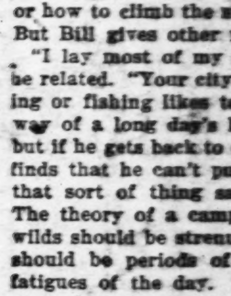
Tent, 2 frying pans, nest of pots, cups, knives and forks, butcher knife, mixing spoon, mixing bowl, wash basin, towels, collapsible oven for baking. Coffee is made in one of the pots.

GRUB STAKES FOR FOUR PERSONS PER WEEK.

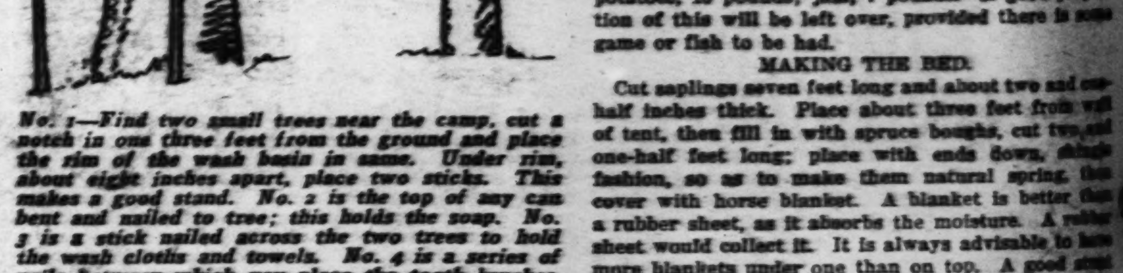
Flour, 10 pounds; tea, 1 pound; coffee, 3 pounds; bacon, 7 pounds; dried beans, 5 pounds; dried fruits, 7 pounds; sugar, 10 pounds; rice, 3 pounds; 7 cans of vegetables, 7 cans of meat; baking powder, 1 pound; potatoes, 15 pounds; jam, 7 pounds. A good proportion of this will be left over, provided there is some game or fish to be had.

MAKING THE BED.

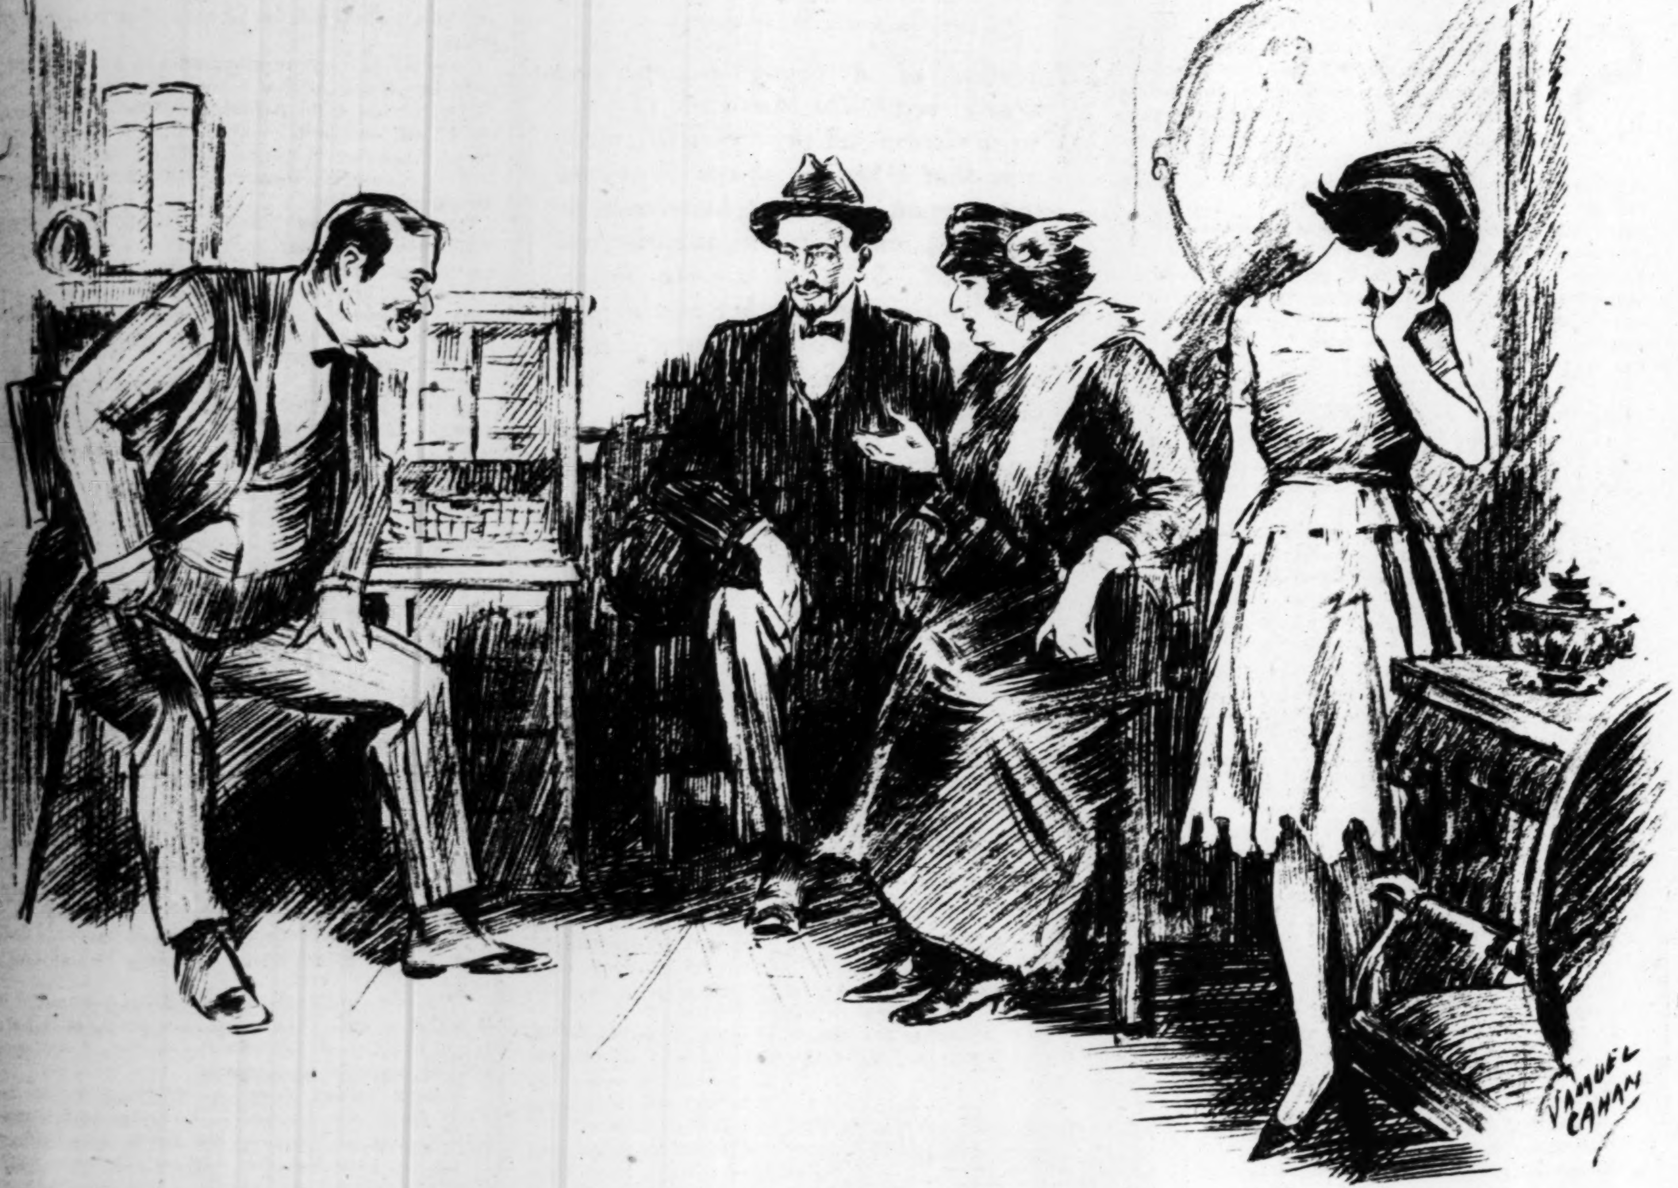
Cut saplings seven feet long and about two and one-half inches thick. Place about three feet from wall of tent, then fill in with spruce boughs, cut two and one-half feet long; place with ends down, shingle fashion, so as to make them natural spring, then cover with horse blanket. A blanket is better than a rubber sheet, as it absorbs the moisture. A rubber sheet would collect it. It is always advisable to have more blankets under one than on top. A good stunt is to sew the blankets so as to make a sleeping bag.



Cut a twig about two and a half feet long with a forked end, sharpen same and use to make the toast.



This is the outdoor dining room. By using small saplings six or seven feet long, you make your table, seats and a shelf for holding bread, cans, etc. With canvas stretched as shown in drawing you have your shade. You will notice a rack on the table; this is for holding the large knives.



Wives or Husbands While You Wait

The schatchen, or marriage broker, still first aid to Cupid for orthodox Jews—In New York he has offices, uses business stationery, makes matches by telephone, correspondence or personal interview—Fees for finding mates for maidens based on amount of dowry—Girl who paid $150 for a husband and did not get him complains to court, and this causes investigation. :: ::

By EMILY FRIEDKIN.

MISS AUGUSTA FRANKEL, a debutante of Sixth street—a neighborhood where debutantes mostly are engaged on skirts or waists, or perhaps suits—complained recently to a Magistrate that she had paid her schatchente for a husband and had been cheated. She did not mind the $150, she declared, but the husband had not been delivered.

Miss Augusta's visit to the courts has revealed the continued existence of the schatchen and, in the feminine form, the schatchente, is a very important detail of much of New York's romance. That is, Augusta has disclosed the schatchen, the marriage broker, anew. He—and she—has always been among us, but many have thought that in these days of the public dance hall and front-stoop freedoms he had been discarded.

The schatchen is just as active as ever, perhaps more so, because he now is part of a really well-organized industry. It used to be that the schatchen was itinerant—just bobbing up now and then. Now he has his office, his telephone, his index books and his advertising manager. The prosperous ones have, at any rate. They announce "marriages arranged by business methods," and a very busy schatchen declares, in his advertisement in a Yiddish newspaper, that he has "on hand a large supply of doctors, dentists and accountants."

The industry of providing mates is almost as standardized as that of the taxi companies; its conduct has become something of a science. The schatchen speaks of his occupation as his "line," just as another man may mention that he is in the shoe line or the silk line. One of them advertises, "Matchmaker arranges marriages through regular business methods" and mentions what his office hours are. Indeed, in addition to office hours, a "high-class schatchen" has a telephone, a card index system and a roll-top desk.

I knew a great deal of the schatchen and his ways, but this advertisement suggested a change in methods, revision of values in men. So I hurried to a schatchen for explanation.

"The quotations on doctors have fallen off 75 per cent," explained the "young Americanized marriage broker."

"The dentist is more of a business man and has more time for himself—and his wife, so he is holding his own in the market. The accountant—thanks to the income tax law—is booming. An ambitious accountant, particularly a 'certified' one, is much sought after and may demand a larger dowry than a physician, who is now a drug on the market."

Ten or even five years ago it was different. A rich Jew would not think of marrying his daughter to a business man. It was a professional man he must have, a doctor preferably. Since the war, young business men are wanted. If one has an automobile, so much the better.

So, in the marriage market, masculine values have changed. The "prices" and "rates" vary. A physician continues to ask more money with his bride than a dentist, but he does not get it so readily. The dentist has a "higher rating" than the druggist. The lawyer is listed midway between doctors and dentists. Chiropractors and chiropodists are rising. School teachers have little standing—just about as much as poets!

Fees vary. The applicant pays an initial registration fee of from $5 to $25; after the engagement both parties pay a percentage of the dowry—four or five per cent usually, with $100 as the minimum commission. Augusta's experience was with a schatchente who could claim only a semi-professional rating.

Circumstances, of course, alter all cases. What is the girl without a dowry to do? What, indeed? Flat rates are arranged in such cases. "Oh, yes, a matchmaker will look after her interests. He has a heart!" one of them explained, naively. "She may not have enough to give a man, but she will find enough to pay me."

The custom is, however, "no dowry, no service." One advertisement reads: "Arranges marriages with maidens and widows having from $500 to $10,000."

The schatchen is an enthusiastic believer in his calling. "How are these young people to meet each other—that is, properly?" they ask. "The girl can't go asking for eligible young men. The young man, he is busy. He must spend his time at work. How can he find out about a girl? He wants more than good looks, doesn't he?

"What is the shy, refined girl to do? Flirt? Never! What man wishes to marry a girl he meets by flirting? By us both parties are introduced after each has learned something of the pedigree of the other, don't you see? And it saves men from sirens."

Both the "schatchen" and the parents conspire to circumvent the objections to such procedures by the young American-born daughter. The "schatchen" visits the family as a friend and so learns what he needs to know about the young lady. The young man sent to court her is introduced as, perhaps, a business associate of her father. It must be done somehow, for there is no horror quite as dreadful in the mind of the orthodox Jew as an old maid in the family.

It has become the custom for rich Jews in the small towns of the South or West to send their marriageable daughter to stay with a distant relative in New York or some other large city for a few months in the winter or summer. Since almost every Jew has relatives, or "landsleute," in New York, this is managed easily. A "schatchen" reports that among his clients now in New York there are girls from Chattanooga, Tulsa and Peoria. His successes are reported in the home towns and other girls follow to the big city and appeal to the match broker, whose fame has traveled to the hinterland.

The girls seldom come alone, unless they are orphans. Parent or relative does the talking for the shy one.

It is seldom that a man marries the first girl he "looks over." The girl, too, usually is equally fastidious. I saw whole pages and card after card inked with appointments—and yet no "culmination." Some brokers drop clients after a year; others retain them for a decade or more in the hope of arranging a marriage eventually.

One should not be too harsh with the schatchen, for he sees everything in terms of providing a mate. Each of the six I interviewed for this article offered his services to me, gratuitously and solicitously.

"But," I exclaimed, "I have no money!"

"Oh, that is nothing—there are other things than money," I was hastily reassured. "I will remember you and look. Yes, I will write to you when I find the suitable man."

A Peter Ibbetson at Sing Sing

Narrative of a convict's experiences which recalls Du Maurier's character in fiction—Man serving life term says that when he sleeps he meets the woman whom he murdered in jealousy, and who forgave him ere she died—Story of a wife, home and children in another world told by inmate who doesn't want a pardon for fear he "would lose the way" to his present happiness ::

SOMEONE has said that "Fiction is made of truth half told." And as if to prove anew this bold assertion, Mr. Isaacson has found a tragic romance, hidden away in the soul of a prisoner at Sing Sing, a "lifer," whose story might well be that of a Peter Ibbetson living not between the covers of a novel, but in a very material existence of the flesh. Du Maurier won startled attention by his venture, in "Peter Ibbetson," into the fantasy of a blended reincarnation and spiritism. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has found a sober doctrine in what Du Maurier proposed as merely a novelist's invention. This living hero of Mr. Isaacson's story reveals a daily life experience which brings Ibbetson to Doyle, and far beyond.

By CHARLES D. ISAACSON,

Author of "Face to Face With Great Musicians."

MY PETER IBBETSON is a convict in Sing Sing Prison, a murderer by his own confession. His name, of course, is not Peter Ibbetson at all, but what it is doesn't matter—in Sing Sing he wears a gray uniform and is identified from his fellows only by a number.

I asked him if he had read Du Maurier's novel. He shook his head, "No." I wondered afterwards if he should not be told the story, since his own life was the materialization of Du Maurier's idea, outstripping even the imaginative fertility of the author's brain.

Perhaps, that I may better tell the story of this Sing Sing convict-murderer, I should begin with Du Maurier's tale—the fiction.

The Peter Ibbetson of the novel was a sensitive, tender boy, who loved a little girl. He was separated from her through the course of years and, when he found her again, she was a wife, caught in a grip of circumstances which involved the archfiend responsible for Peter's own mother's tragedy. A few brief moments of love are permitted Peter and his childhood sweetheart, when, to protect his mother's name, he kills the man. He is sentenced to prison. There his real life begins.

For as children, Peter and Mimi had learned to "dream true—just cross your feet and put your hands under your head, and you can dream whatever you like." So, nightly, through forty years, these two "dream true" and meet each other whenever and however they desire.

Always they are young and handsome, and are sweethearts. Each night the quiet old gentleman, Peter, goes to his prison bed to live in a pleasant dream land with his beloved.

A beautiful story, indeed, but fantastic, unreal, impossible!' Now let me tell the story of the real Peter Ibbetson—who is a convict in Sing Sing.

He was sentenced to die, but his sentence was commuted to "life." He had murdered his youthful sweetheart. His love affairs were more tragic than those Du Maurier conceived. His love was more "maddened."

The two were engaged to be married, but doubt of her entered his mind. His suspicions drove her to desperation. Wherever she went, she was questioned, cross-examined, charged with guilt. Weary of her fiance's suspicions, which, apparently, were unjust, the girl tried to leave him. At last, in a moment of blind rage, he shot her.

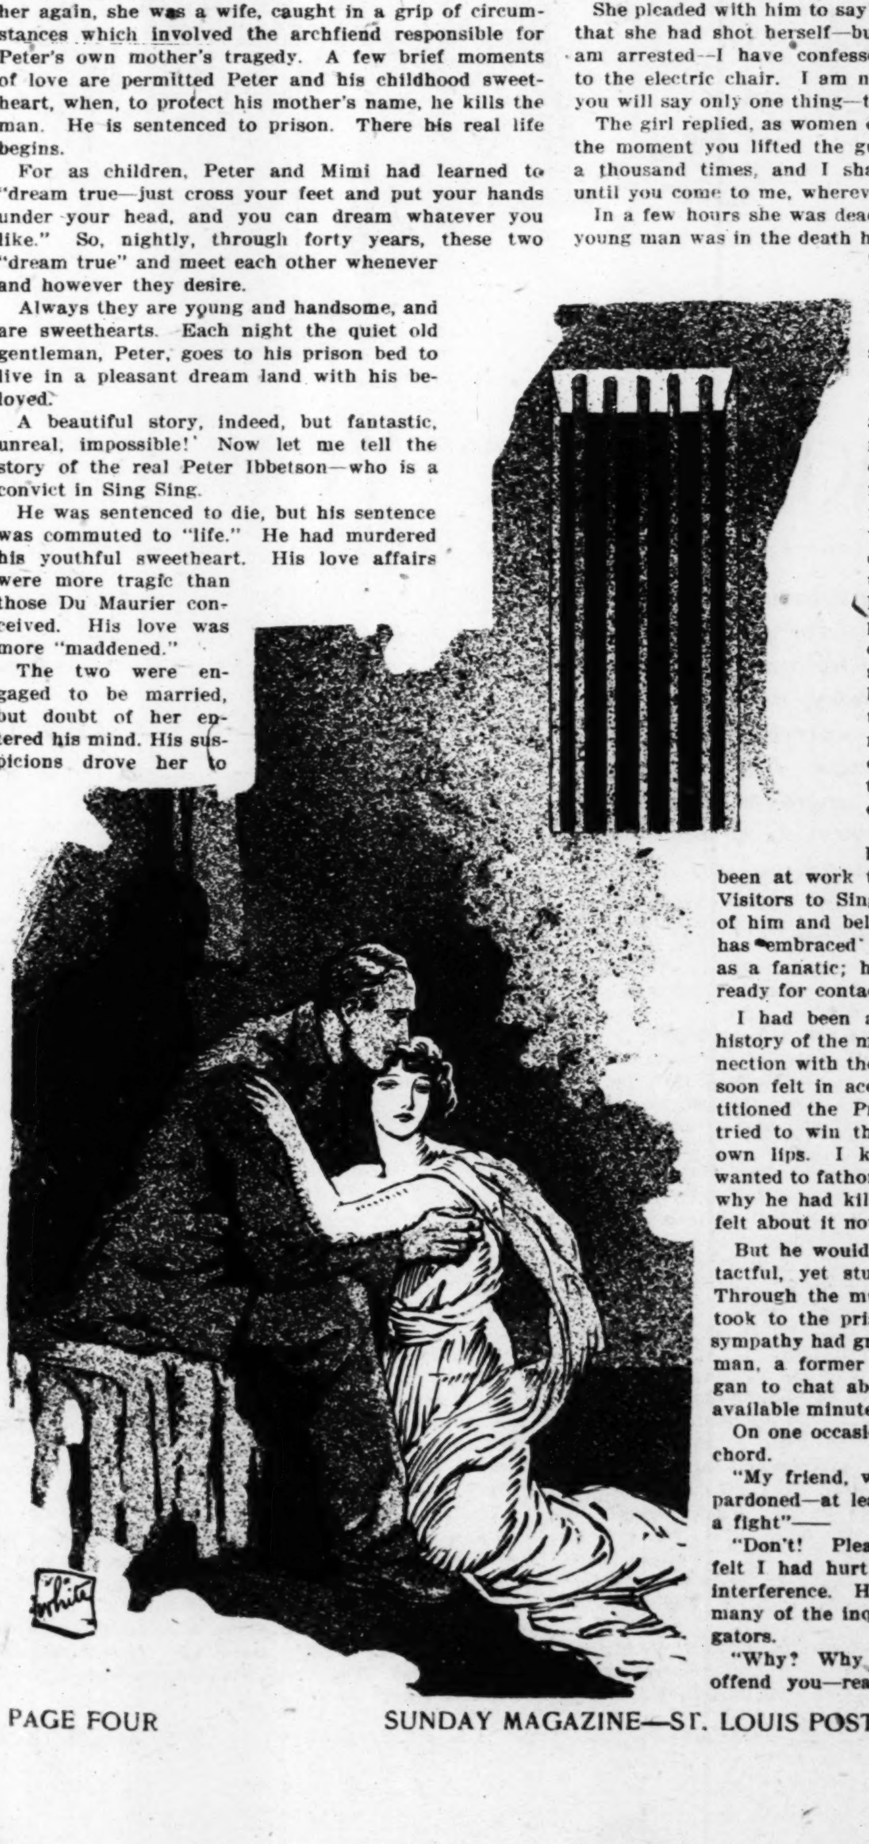
When he was arrested, he learned she was dying. He begged to be taken to the girl's bedside. The scene in the hospital was more poignant than any play's climax. Dying, scarcely able to breathe, the girl yet found strength to smile, happily content at the coming of her sweetheart, her assassin. He knelt at the side of the bed, sobbing.

He begged her to live—to live for him. She answered, softly, "There is little life left. But I still love you, and I shall always love you, and I shall always be with you."

She pleaded with him to say that he had not shot her; that she had shot herself—but he could only cry: "I am arrested—I have confessed—I shall be sentenced to the electric chair. I am not afraid now, though, if you will say only one thing—that you will forgive me!"

The girl replied, as women ever will: "I forgave you the moment you lifted the gun. I have forgiven you a thousand times, and I shall always forgive you—until you come to me, wherever I am."

In a few hours she was dead and in a few weeks the young man was in the death house at Sing Sing Prison. That was ten years ago. His sentence was commuted soon after.



A tall, handsome man, approaching his thirty-fifth birthday, he is a "trusty" at the prison and within the gray walls goes about dispensing cheer and hope to his fellow inmates. To him is intrusted much of the welfare activities. He is of a kindly, generous nature, and each new man has felt the power of his philosophical advice and encouragement. The possessor of a fine, quick brain, experienced in teaching, a voracious reader, he has organized classes in English, history, geography and general education.

Because of his good behavior, influences have been at work to secure him a pardon. Visitors to Sing Sing Prison take note of him and believe he has atoned. He has "embraced" religion freely, but not as a fanatic; he appears normal and ready for contact with society.

I had been asked to investigate the history of the man very carefully in connection with the matter of a pardon and soon felt in accord with those who petitioned the Prison Pardon Board. I tried to win the man's story from his own lips. I knew his history, but I wanted to fathom his own point of view; why he had killed the girl, and how he felt about it now.

But he would not talk. He was very tactful, yet stubborn in his reticence. Through the musical programs which I took to the prison, however, a bond of sympathy had grown between us, and the man, a former dilettante violinist, began to chat about music during every available minute we were together.

On one occasion I struck a responsive chord.

"My friend, we're going to have you pardoned—at least we're going to make a fight"——

"Don't! Please don't!" he said. I felt I had hurt him. He resented my interference. He thought I was like so many of the inquisitive, morbid investigators.

"Why? Why not? I did not mean to offend you—really, I'm sorry. I'd do anything to help you out of here. I'm not afraid of the effort."

"It's not that—your kindness and all that. No, it's not. But it is just that I don't want to be pardoned."

"Don't want to be pardoned! That is impossible."

"No, sir," he said, slowly. "I'm doing good work in here. Teaching the boys and helping them to their feet. I'm enjoying that work. Here I have a place of usefulness."

"Now, listen, my friend," I said, almost severely. "Look here, I've heard you tell your companions that outside the world will open again, and that what they've had here in the way of a lesson will keep them alert and awake. The sort of men you've told to brace up and work over their lives couldn't compare with you in brain and possibilities."

"I know, I know," and the prisoner hung his head. "It's not that. I'm a better man, more useful, more valuable to the world than I ever was before. But—it's not that, it's because I'm afraid I might lose"——

"Lose what?"

"Lose my power to get her back!"

He put his hand to his mouth, as if to stop the words, but too late. They had been spoken.

I put my arm around the fellow and we went into a corner of the chapel. At that moment a violinist was playing Mendelssohn's "On the Wings of Song." Peter Ibbetson looked at me. There was a filmy glance of the eyes, the faltering of the lips, the far-far-away voice.

"I said I don't want to be pardoned. . . . I don't want to leave here. Because it's here, it's in here we have our home. Maybe you will call it insanity, but I know better. I had to go through the damnation of the world to discover the truth."

"You know my story, don't you? There's nothing to say of how we used to be together—the girl and myself. There's nothing to say in explanation or extenuation of what I did. But all that's forgotten. She forgave me. Before she died, she gave me her word. And now, all the time, she's telling me—'I forgive, I forgive.' The crime is forgotten! I tore the flesh of her body, but it set her free.

"We—we are sweethearts now. I suppose you're laughing at me. You're not, are you? It is hard for me to explain—to tell how it happens. I suppose it is not for many to understand.

"During the day, when I'm working, and some melancholy mood comes upon me, I can see her. She's here all the time, or whenever she wants to be. Her hand is on my shoulder, her voice at my ear. She says, 'Courage! Don't give way! There's nothing wrong. You're my love and you know there's nothing now to doubt of me, is there?' That is what she says, over and over again. And I know that when I am especially happy—and I always am happy now, it is because she is near me, singing or smiling. This is during the day.

"But my nights are best—it is my nights in here I do not want to lose. It is because of them I do not want to go away. At night, we meet. When I go to sleep I seem to get rid of my body. I am just my old self, the real self of me; just spirit and soul.

"She comes. She is just as pretty as ever, more beautiful, even, and more alluring. She throws her arms about me and we talk a while, and then we say: 'Well, where shall we go tonight?'

"Sometimes we walk about the beaches and the parks, as up in the country where we spent a vacation, and we can see all the young folk who were there before—those we liked and those we didn't like. Sometimes we choose the old haunts—the rooms in her house or in mine. Or the little place where we used to dance together. Or perhaps we go to the library where we often read poems.

"She has brought many new poems to me during the nights. She recites them beautifully, while I listen. Then I get my violin and play to her. She never misses a night. She comes as soon as I throw myself on my cot. And we are married. Not only sweethearts, but married!"

He dropped his head now, and then looked up at me, half afraid to go on.

"There are two children. Our own. A little boy, the oldest, now eight years old, and the little girl, who's only three. They're named, and are 'getting along' beautifully. I never go into our little home, with the children, except when the day's work is finished, and no matter where we go for the evening, we always return to the children. At daylight I leave them for my daytimes here!

"It's all quite real, quite true to me. And if you should tell me it is only a 'lot of dreaming,' I would still know better. I know dreams do not hold together like that; dreams don't let you touch and feel. But I am afraid if I went into the world outside the prison and the affairs of its daily life were bothering me, I would lose the way to my wife, my sweetheart, my little mother. That is why I do not want to be pardoned.

"I've been doing a lot of reading about such things—about the soul, and spiritism and telepathy. It's given me ideas, but they don't seem to matter much."

He rose. The guard was coming and the prisoners were being summoned to their cell block. Down the long, cold, gray hall they passed, 2000 marked men, murderers, thieves, blackguards, criminals—men with souls. The great locks clanked and then closed tightly, shutting the prisoners behind their bars.

I moved to Peter Ibbetson's cell. He was tearing off his clothes, eager for his dream night.

Kalsomining Great Britain's National Shrine

Westminster Abbey from Dean's Yard

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, CENTRAL SHRINE OF GREAT BRITAIN

WESTMINSTER ABBEY is being whitewashed!

Great Britain's Gothic shrine, where lie buried her illustrious dead and where for ten centuries her Kings have been crowned, was disintegrating so rapidly that only an outer coating of a white lime compound could prevent further ravages of decay. So, up stepped the man with the bucket and brush. In his plea for a chance to put "a couple of coats" on the Abbey he was supported by many British technical writers, but opposed with equal vigor by others not so technical, but more sentimental.

Thus far the whitewashing of only a small surface at the rear of the Henry VII Chapel has been completed and those who pass the front of the Abbey do not see the kalsominers at their work. It is estimated that it will require several years to give the great structure the necessary preservative coatings of white.

Under the heading, "Limewash the Abbey," a writer in the recent issue of the London Builder, principal organ of the building trades in the United Kingdom, pointed out that "there has been extraordinary deterioration of the stone of which the minster is built, resulting from the noxious fumes of acids employed for various industrial purposes in the innumerable factories that virtually environ the metropolis and infest its suburbs."

The writer insisted that the only way to shield the walls from the acid fumes that are reducing them to powder is to cover the stonework of the entire exterior with whitewash. Many eminent architects agreed with him that unless some such measure was quickly taken the ancient edifice ran the risk of collapse.

English and American writers took part in the controversy aroused by this proposal. There was strongly expressed opposition on the part of those who denounced as "vandalism and desecration" any effort to tamper with the exterior of the Abbey.

Some, who, on the other hand, favored the preservative measures, quoted from Tennyson:

"Paint the mortal shame of Nature with the living hues of Art."

Others found a ready-made answer to this in the lines of the poet, Thompson:

> "But who can paint
> Like Nature? Can imagination boast,
> Amid its gay creations, hues like hers?"

Among those opposed to the project were some who stigmatized it as "American" and called attention to the prevalent practice in the United States of sand-scouring the outer surfaces of churches, public buildings and skyscrapers. They asserted that the grime of centuries has a softening and mellowing effect which would be destroyed by the application of whitewash. A few Americans who entered the controversy on the same side cited as an instance the Central Presbyterian Church in New York and said the beauty of this edifice was greatly marred when its external surface was cleaned.

Another American instance cited as an argument against the rejuvenation of the Abbey was the historic Jesuit mission of San Xavier, near Tucson, Ariz. This building was erected in the seventeenth century and time had wonderfully mellowed the coloring of its plastered exterior, giving it a softened yellowish brown effect most pleasing and soothing to the eye.

But age brought decay, and about ten years ago it was found necessary to recoat the walls to prevent further deterioration. It was planned to reproduce, if possible, the material used in the original coating. To this end pieces of the time-colored plaster were removed from the walls and sent to chemists for analysis. The chemists were asked to furnish a formula for a preparation which would exactly duplicate the one originally used.

The analysis was faithfully made and the preparation was carefully mixed according to the formula. Then it was put on the walls. Now those walls are a gleaming, dazzling white, as they probably were when first coated, and only the passage of time can restore the mellow tint of other days.

So it may be with Westminster Abbey, which, now that the whitewashing is under way, is being referred to as "the whited sepulcher." Two or three hundred years are as nothing in the life of a nation with age-old traditions, and it is possible that the mellowing influence of time will tone down the now garish white of the great cathedral and give a coloring more beautiful than any it has ever had.

But those who object to the whitewashing are not so optimistic. An editorial writer has this to say in the London Daily Express:

"Soon the great grey Gothic pile will resemble an exhibition masterpiece made of plaster of paris. A little later, its virgin white streaked with London soot, it will look like an exhibition building abandoned for years to the elements. At first thought such treatment for the Abbey seems an incredible, senseless outrage. There is, of course, a reason: it only looks exactly like whitewash. It is a preservative fluid warranted to shield the stones from the ravages of London weather. Without the preservative $200,000 a year must be expended in restoring stones, and the money is not forthcoming. That is the reason for the vandalism now in progress, and the reason is not good enough. If we are to make England's most hallowed edifice ridiculous for the sake of saving money on stones, will it be long before we are told that the Abbey must be pulled down to save the cost of the whitewash?"

Some of the critics, not content with condemning the whitewashing project as "American," have cited instances of similar "vandalism" in other countries. Writing for the New York Times, Frederick Cunliffe-Owen said:

"A year or so before the great war ex-Emperor William, whose pretensions to artistic taste have always been most peculiar, inaugurated a mania for scrubbing ancient monuments and buildings, both ecclesiastical and secular, by instituting a series of prizes and by the bestowal of knighthood upon the authorities of the cleanest cities, towns and villages in his dominions, with the result that all Germany set to work to clean up, to the detriment of archeology and of art.

"The craze spread to Austria and to Italy, and one fine morning the Florentines who happened to be up early were horrified to see a municipal watering man turning his hose upon the so-called Loggia dei Lanzai, where are sheltered some of the greatest masterpieces of the sculptural art of Italy. One after the other the waterman douched the "Perseus" of Benvenuto Cellini, the "Sabine" of John di Bologna and the "Judith" of Donatello; and in response to the angry denunciations with which he was overwhelmed declared that he had received orders to rid all the statuary of the Loggia of dirt and grime.

"It was only in response to a vigorous protest, signed by all the leading citizens and foreign residents of Florence, that the municipal authorities finally consented to direct that there should be no further attempt to water those wonderful chefs d'oeuvres of statuary which people came to Florence from all parts of the world in order to see.

"But before the pernicious activity of the municipality of the city on the Arne could be thus arrested, the wonderful Battistero of San Giovanni, covered with precious marbles, by Arnolfo di Lapo toward the end of the thirteenth century, under the very eyes of Dante, and to which age and grime had given a rich, velvety color, was subjected to a scouring, scraping and cleansting, transforming its entire appearance into something glaringly brilliant and luridly new.

"The monochrome of grime produced in time artistic effects undreamed of by architects. Some of the greatest painters have raved about the exquisite tints of orange and of russet-brown, that end by dimming the glare of originally white, or light-gray stonework. Turner was keenly alive to the esthetic value of dirt, and would, when painting out of doors, sometimes impatiently snatch a handful of earth from the ground, and smudge the canvas, to get the effect he desired.

"Sir David Wilkie, too, understood the artistic importance of grime and dirt, and on one occasion, when Clarkson Stanfield, the Royal Academician, was showing some work that he had done, work characterized by the fastidiousness for which he was so noted, Wilkie remarked, as he looked at the picture: 'Mr. Stanfield, ye have yet to learn, sir, that durtt is a capital thing. A capital thing is durtt."

"One of the most impressive features of Westminster Abbey is the grime with which it is now covered, on the outside, and in the inside. Not only does it soften and mellow the entire aspect of the historic church, but it likewise conveys to every visitor the sense of extreme age of the venerable edifice, the now dusty but once light-colored stones of which have witnessed so many wonderful changes, so many dramatic and tragic events, recorded in the annals of England, since the reign of the canonized King Edward the Confessor."

It has been pointed out by British writers that the whitewashing of Westminster Abbey may set a precedent which will be followed in respect of other noted buildings and monuments, such, for instance, as the cathedrals of Lincoln and York and will set a fashion which may lead to the scrubbing and scouring of such buildings as the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris, the Cathedral of Rouen, St. Peter's at Rome and the Cathedral of St. Stephens in Vienna, all of which are laden with the grime and dust of ages.

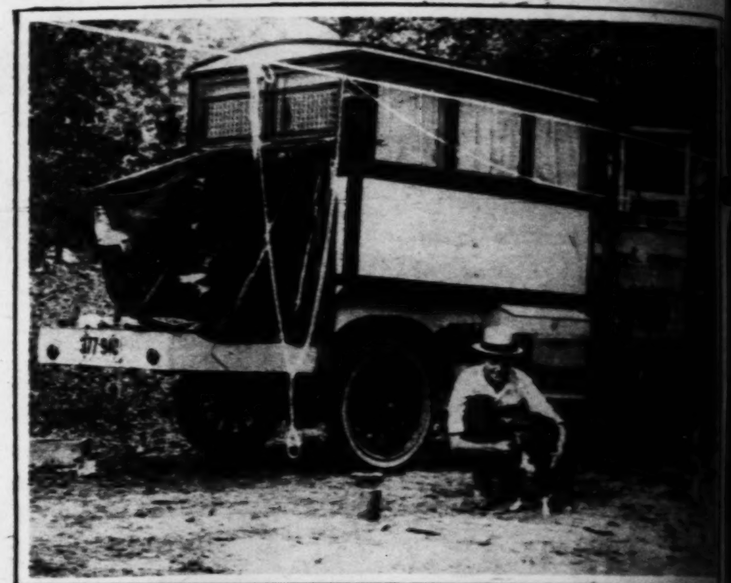
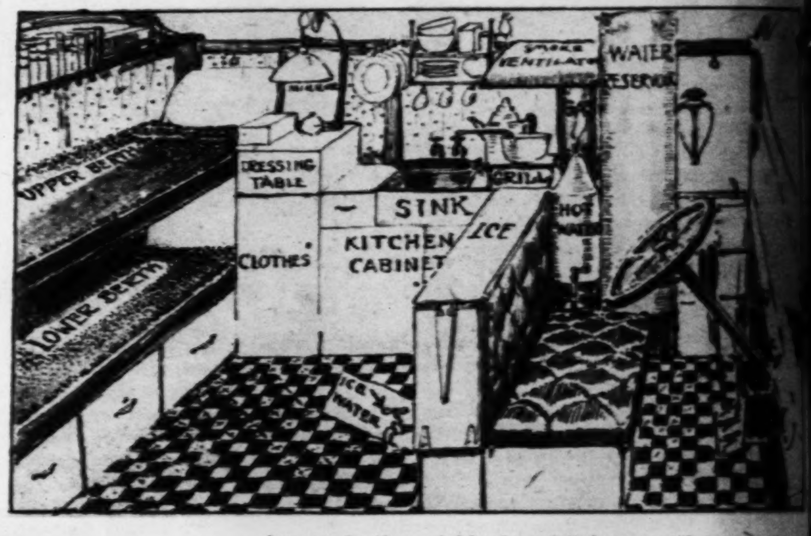
Tourists' camp, provided by the city, is a model community where nobody is a resident more than six days—Some machines have all apartment house conveniences, including kitchenettes—Hot and cold water in a house on wheels—Contortionists at home in cramped quarters—Women exchange cooking recipes and true democracy prevails—Some tourists are rich, others are hunting jobs, but all thrive on life in the open :: :: ::



The permanent home of the Polleys. Below, an interior view.



By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THERE is one community within the confines of our city where distinction, social and otherwise, is conferred upon the basis of genius, solely. It isn't a highbrow community, either.

It is what we know as the tourists' camp, really a village in its isolation and autonomy, hidden away on a grove-screened hilltop in Forest Park. It is a village whose population changes almost daily. By official edict its inhabitants are not permitted to linger longer than three days save by special permit from the city hall, when the stay may be extended to six days. Its residents come from the four quarters of this broad land, and yet it sets an example to other longer established villages, to Main Street in general, not only in its method of making distinctions, but in the quickness with which the community, neighborly atmosphere is developed.

License tags on the cars serve as well as cards sent in on a silver salver, by way of introduction.

"Hello, Pennsylvania," calls a man, coatless and collarless, returning from the shower baths with shaving kit, towels and soiled raiment hanging upon his arm.

"Why, hello, Idaho," returns the new neighbor, who has arrived and staked out his homesite in the other's absence. "How were the roads west of here yesterday?"

Almost immediately both are sitting on their heels drawing road maps in the dust, which at once become as much a magnet as a hot stove in a crossroads store to other villagers, with discussion and argument rising high on the regular order of those other localities.

The women of the families, meanwhile, are finding just as much in common over the community stoves provided by the park authorities, or over impromptu washtubs—no outfit, whether traveling in a Packard or a Ford, but seems to have a certain amount of laundry work to do upon encountering the facilities of running water. Or, the children having been scrubbed at the showers, the mothers, similarly refreshed, sit in groups in hastily but none the less definitely established front-door yards, exchanging neighborly calls. Around the stationary gridirons and ovens the women are exchanging experiences on the most practical methods of providing and preparing foods for their families en route. New York women are marveling over the wonder of having got new-laid eggs at 23 cents a dozen and country butter at 30 cents a pound and tomatoes and green corn for a pittance along the Illinois roads over which they have just come. A woman, the oldest settler, probably, having almost outstayed the allotted six days and confessing that she intended breaking camp for a day and returning for another six days while her husband looks for a job and she looks for a flat, with a view to locating in St. Louis, was preparing a strange concoction which was to contain, in addition to shredded cabbage, boiled until tender, some tomatoes, fried with bacon and onions, and a can of salmon.

"A Filipino woman, married to an American soldier, who was here day before yesterday, gave me the recipe," she explained. Her neighbors were sniffing dubiously, but the old settler declared she had sampled the brew as prepared by her neighbor from overseas and decided to add it to her culinary repertoire.

Half a dozen ears of corn in a damp cloth hung from the limb of a tree over her abode and the old settler said the Filipino woman also had given her this idea as a means of keeping vegetables cool and fresh. "And there was a French woman here early in the week," she added, "who had fresh pork chops half cooked packed down in leaf lard. She said they would keep fresh indefinitely in that way."

The fact that one household, from the vast amount of shabby plunder about them, probably was traveling with all its worldly possessions, and the next-door neighbor's outfit, neat, compact and shipshape, revealed wide disparity of worldly fortune, made no difference in the neighborly spirit between the menages.

A mother of a family whose ramshackle car bore an Arkansas license was putting a telltale washing out on the line; well-worn garments that bespoke four children of stairstep gradations. "We don't know where we're goin' to light," she was volunteering to her neighbor. "B'en down in Arkansas all winter, but he tuk the ague, so we're headed some place else. The boys have picked up some jobs caddying over yonder at the golf links and he's out huntin' a job or tryin' to find out where we better go next."

The neighbor's luggage revealed silver-mounted toilet articles. All the newest fashions and picture magazines were scattered about. She wore an up-to-date sports blouse and knickers. They were army people, making the trip overland from some Eastern post to their new station at Fort Sill, Ok. Possibly with the adoption of this mode of travel, even army officers' wives voluntarily drop the social distinctions usually especially fostered in their circle of society. Possibly they find it expedient to drop them. At any rate, while watching over a sick child, on whose account it had been necessary to rest here for a day or two, the Colonel's lady seemed not to repel the sympathetic advances of her humbler neighbor. So great a leveler of social barriers is the open road and the removal of established environment.

As I was saying in the first place, the only distinction observable was in favor of those caravaners who revealed the greatest degree of ingenuity and resourcefulness in the contriving of their outfits. On the day of the reporter's visit the greatest amount of deference and admiring attention was being accorded to a pair of "show people" traveling in a veritable efficiency apartment on wheels. A path was being beaten to the door of this remarkable van by a stream of visitors paying homage to the ingenuity of the designers and builders, Charles and Helen Polley, acrobats or contortionists, playing in vaudeville wherever an engagement can be picked up. All the year round, with never a hotel bill, they live in their car, having, they said, made the trip from coast to coast eighteen times.

The photograph and diagram of one side of the car reveal to some extent Polley's inventiveness. The body, mounted on a ton truck chassis, is some five feet wide.

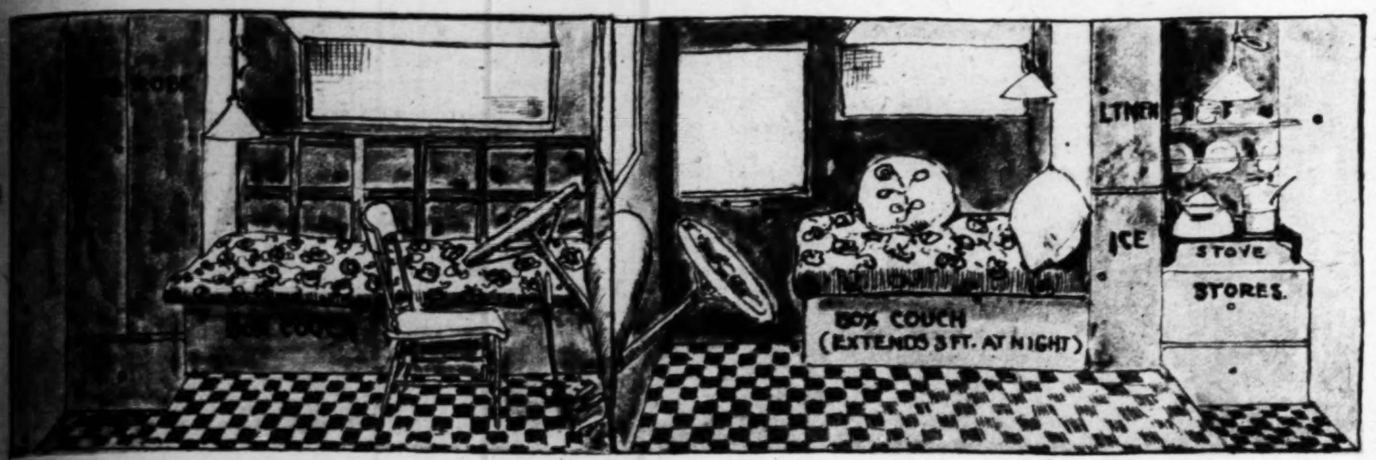
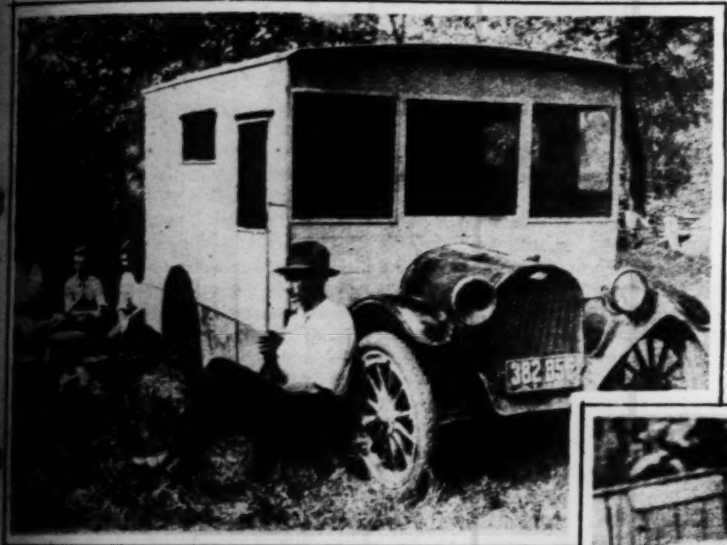
WEST IN FOREST PARK





An all-the-year-round home. Above, interior views.

The two bunks, built crosswise, are perhaps not to be recommended to regular humans, but both the Polleys being small and slight and of a physical adaptability peculiar to their calling, find them comfortable enough. A water reservoir holding some twenty gallons, filled through the roof, provides, by means of pipes running through an ice chest and a boiler heated by a gasoline burner, a complete system of running water, iced and hot. There is a kitchenette with sink, electric grills, and cupboard space on one side, a diningette with folding table, opposite.

Fitted into another space is a dressing table and wardrobe. Moreover, a library, with books and writing materials, occupies shelves overhead. The apartment is lavishly equipped with electric lights and there are many other surprises in the way of modern conveniences. The stage wardrobe and properties of the players are carried in trunks on a platform, with oilcloth cover, at the rear. There are dainty curtains at the windows and the car is painted a cheerful yellow in high enamel. Wherever possible aluminum has been used in the construction and fittings in the interest of lightening the load, which never, the owner declares, approaches the capacity claimed for the chassis and engine.

Another house on wheels, of simpler, more commodious and equally ingenious arrangement was drawing another stream of admirers. The host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Baird and their son, originally from New York State, but having spent the winter in Florida and being now determined to see the rest of the country before settling down again, may be said to be citizens of the open road. Baird is a carpenter and painter by trade and built his itinerant dwelling himself. Its dimensions are six feet by ten. Its bunks are built lengthwise on either side, with a space between for the little boy's pallet. An extension built out at the rear, with its floor eighteen inches lower than the floor of the car proper, provides a space in which Mrs. Baird can stand upright without stooping over her cooking arrangements. Storage places, wardrobes, cupboards and icebox are neatly fitted in. The whole car is covered with canvas and painted gray. Windows are screened against flies and may be closed against the weather.

Several original designs in tents commanded their due attention, too. A party consisting of four grownups and four children, on a return trip from California to New York, were traveling in two cars, one carrying only passengers, the other on a truck chassis, carrying belongings and becoming the foundation of a commodious shelter tent at night. A boxlike arrangement, planned on the lines of a wardrobe trunk, standing upright behind the seat, contained clothes, bedding and provisions. At night its doors are propped up over an extending platform, upon which is space for two cots. A canvas is spread over this roof and pegged out to allow space for three other cots on the ground at either side.

Another ingeniously designed tent belonged to a family of experienced travelers. Originally of Wyoming, they already have photographed every capitol and every state university west of the Mississippi except those of Texas, and entertain the ambition to repeat the same record in the East.

Two slant-roof sections of tent were joined by a flat-roofed section, in which the occupants could stand upright. An extra canvas was spread over the automobile drawn up alongside. The beds were laid on lengthwise slender slats of pliable wood, stitched in canvas, which could be folded or rolled when not in use and which made admirable springs. One of these slatted arrangements was stretched over the backs of the seats of the automobile, making an additional bed. An advantage of this tent was that, though it utilized the car as a sleeping compartment, the car could be quickly detached and used for sightseeing without disturbing the tent. A curtain of mosquito netting hung at the broad open spaces and canvas flaps could be buttoned down when the camp was to be left unwatched.

Mrs. Slane of this menage wore a simply designed black taffeta frock, which she recommended, from her vast experience, as most practical for touring. It is cooler than khaki, she said, and can be easily cleaned with water and sponge.

Nearly all the tourists had discovered the efficacy of boxes made weatherproof and neat by coverings of black oilcloth, carried on the boarded-up running boards. Nearly everyone had some discovery of his own in the way of economy of labor, fuel or space, or something conducive to the comfort of tourists, which he was anxious to recommend and overjoyed to hear commended. Indeed unless you can display some of that ingenuity for which the Yankee was originally distinguished in the world, you are liable to be declasse in the tourists' village.

The auto caravanner is not developing a new manner of life, but he is readjusting one of the oldest manners to new conditions. He is the descendant of the nomads of 50 centuries ago, who lived upon the open road and slept beside it, and the unknown charm of what lay beyond the next range of hills was always upon the ancestor as now it is upon the descendant.

Where Farm Work Cures Insanity

Illinois State Hospital near Upper Alton has no barred windows and no locks on doors — Patients live in farmhouses and do all kinds of agricultural labor—Benefits both body and mind — Five old farmhouses occupied in hospital tract where farm colony test is being made with success as shown by results of five years—Only crop of oats in that region grown this year by insane persons :: ::

THE farm colony system of caring for the insane is achieving remarkable curative results at the Illinois State Hospital near Upper Alton, whose superintendent, Dr. C. E. Trovilion, boasts that this is the only hospital for the insane, so far as he knows, which has no barred windows and no locks on the doors.

This hospital, one of five Illinois asylums supported by the State, was opened in 1917. It has been in operation long enough to show results of its distinctive "back to nature" methods in soothing and restoring disordered minds.

The patients now number 396 men and 360 women, a majority of whom have progressed so far that, under the direction of a few paid employes, they are able to perform all of the manual labor on the hospital farm of 1034 acres.

One advantage of the system, as pointed out by Dr. Trovilion and his assistant, Dr. P. S. Waters, is that the patients are so handled that they feel a minimum of restraint and are kept so occupied that they derive the full benefits of life in the open and of wholesome muscle-building work, which in many cases improves the health tone of their minds as well as their bodies.

When the hospital tract was bought it consisted of five separate farms, each with a commodious farmhouse. It was proposed at first to tear down these buildings and house all of the patients in the conventional "asylum," or central building, with wards, cells, barred windows and the usual "institutional" aspects of such places. But Dr. Trovilion and other far-sighted persons saw that the farmhouses would be the best sort of nucleus for an experiment on an adequate scale to test the value of the farm colony idea and give nature a chance to demonstrate its curative powers.

It was demurred that with patients in all stages of insanity it would be impossible to find a sufficient number of them fitted for farm work, and it also was feared that the patients would be difficult to control if given the freedom necessary to make them efficient farm workers.

Both of these ideas have been exploded. Of course, not all of the patients have been amenable to this sort of treatment. It is still necessary to keep some of them in central buildings under constant guard, though even these buildings have no bars or massive locks to remind the inmates that they are in captivity.

In the early stages of the experiment it was found that men and women among the patients who could not be moved by any other suggestion gave instant response to the opportunity to do farm work. Discussing this unexpected result, Dr. Waters said:

"It would seem that the farm is a symbol of peace to many persons inside as well as outside of asylums. A large number of those who find their way into institutions of this kind are suffering from the effects of the fevered and hurried life of the cities. Probably the last normal impression that remains to them—in many cases the final sane thought before their minds cracked under the strain—is the desire to find rest and contentment out in the country. Thousands of workers in the cities have this dream constantly before them. If it were possible for more of them to realize the dream in time to avert the mental wreck, there would be need for fewer institutions of this kind.

"Now it has been found by doctors in other lines that the same agency which might have acted as a preventive may be efficient also as a cure. Some such idea was in our minds when we decided to try out the farm colony plan in caring for the insane here."

Another phase was suggested by Dr. Trovilion as possibly explaining the success of the plan.

"In any large gathering, whether in or out of a hospital or asylum," he said, "there will always be found a large number of persons who were born or had their early training on the farm. Those early days were their normal days, when their minds were at their best, before they went to the big cities and had their nerves and minds worked to a frazzle. It is reasonable to suppose that if the old environment can be restored there is a chance that the mind may be brought back to its original vigor. In many cases here it seems to have worked out that way. Youthful impressions are the most lasting, and it often has been the case that experiences of patients while working on the farm here have rekindled the smoldering spark of memory and put the mind back on the right track."

The percentage of cures has mounted steadily since the experiment was started less than five years ago. Last year the discharges amounted to more than 20 per cent of the total enrollment of patients; it is expected that this year it will more closely approach 30 per cent.

Not only has the system been good for the patients, but it has been good for the farm. A few days ago the newspaper reading world was amused by a widely circulated news item to the effect that in all the great agricultural district of Madison County, Ill., this farm, operated by the labor of insane patients, was the only one which produced a crop of oats.

Wet weather at the planting time prevented the sowing of oats on most of the Madison County farms, and where it was sown the subsequent downpours of rain prevented it from coming to full growth. The general complaint in the country was that this year's spring was "too wet for oats." Not so at the State Hospital. Of course, the planting of the oats there was done under the direction of an expert, C. O. Peak, the agriculturist of the hospital; but the necessary work, which had to be performed quickly and well, was performed by patients.

Peak recalled that farmers of the old school when handicapped by wet weather did not plow the ground, but sowed the oats broadcast on the surface and then went over it with a harrow. He decided to try this March 10 last, one of the few dry days of the early spring. As he expressed it, the work was done "between showers."

A large number of patients, all working at the same time, went over a 60-acre tract, hurrying to broadcast the oats before it should rain again. They entered into this task as zestfully as if it were a game, vying with each other to see who could get over the most ground in the least time. Then with equal zeal they mounted the seats of disc harrows and went over the field. The discs carried the oats into the ground. That was the full extent of the sowing, but the reward came with the harvest, when these 60 acres yielded 1600 bushels, or nearly 27 bushels to the acre.

The same thing, of course, might have been done elsewhere with the same methods; but the surprising thing was that a sufficiently large number of men could be found at a hospital for the insane to do the work with the necessary speed. The wetting from another rain would have made the soil unfit even for the surface planting.

At each of the old farmhouses is a colony of patients, sometimes as many as 30, who have definite tasks to perform. They sleep in the farmhouses, each of which has one or two attendants to preserve order. One of the colonies looks after the dairy herd of 170 cows. Another raises poultry and another looks after the truck gardens.

One of the patients in the colony devoted to poultry was subject to long spells of melancholy and showed little capacity for any kind of work until he joined the poultry section. Up to the present time he has had no success with chickens, but he has shown a surprising faculty for raising ducks. He is proud of his flock, smiles often, sometimes sings at his work, and the spells of melancholy are becoming more and more infrequent. The doctors believe the farm life and his interest in the ducks have been a mental tonic and that he will be cured.

The opportunity to do farm work and to enjoy the freedom of the great outdoors frequently has awakened dormant faculties and memories which carry the patients back to the mental status of their early days in the country.

One patient who had been sent out to gather firewood returned visibly excited. He repeated the word "sugar" several times and pointed to a clump of trees on a hill. It was plain that he wanted someone to go with him. Attendants accompanied him to the wooded hill, and he pointed out one tree after another, repeating the word "sugar." Investigation showed that there were 125 fine sugar maples on that knoll.

The patient who discovered them became more rational than he had been in a long time when the first excitement of the discovery wore off. Haltingly at first, but more volubly as he proceeded, he explained that he spent his boyhood days in Vermont and that he remembered the sugar camps. What was more to the point, he said he knew how to draw the sap from the trees and make the syrup. He was given a free hand. Helpers, all of them patients, were assigned to him. In a little while he was living over the days of his youth and producing some of the finest maple syrup ever produced outside of the old Green Mountain State. It was so fine that a sample of it was one of the most noted exhibits sent to the Pageant of Progress Exhibition in Chicago. The output of the grove was 30 gallons, but not all the trees were tapped, and it is expected that next winter's output will be still larger.

All of the work on the dairy section of the farm is done by patients. They milk the cows and handle the milk in a cleanly and scientific manner. And they are all visibly happy and show evidence that farm life is helping them to beat back to the mental normal.

Doctor Says Eating Fish Helps to Prevent Goiter

EATING sea food on Friday and spending holidays at the seashore help to prevent goiter, Dr. J. F. McClendon, professor of physiological chemistry in the University of Minnesota Medical School, told the Western Society of Naturalists at a recent meeting.

"The amount of iodine in our diet," he said, "is of considerable importance in preventing goiter; this has been proved by experiments on animals and children. We know definitely that all marine animals and plants contain this element and that when these are taken a supply of iodine is obtained. Iodine has been found in the igneous, sedimentary and metamorphic rocks and coal in traces, but the iodides, being the most soluble salts derived from the disintegration of rocks, have quickly bleached out by rain and washed in the sea."

Most of the land surfaces of the earth have weathered a hundred million years and disintegrated to the depth of one and one-half miles. The store of iodine which this layer contained has been liberated and carried into the sea, which as a result contains 60,000,000,000 metric tons, chiefly as iodate.

As the sea is thrown into spray in storms, water is carried in the air and dried and the salt is blown over the land. This salt is then brought down by rain and is the source of iodine in drinking water and supplies the soil. The amount of salt rapidly decreases as we go inland.

FROM POST-DISPATCH NEWSBOY TO WORLD'S GREATEST JOCKEY

Frankie O'Neill, who has come under wire a winner more often than any other living rider, once sold papers in front of the Post-Dispatch office—Was trained to the saddle from infancy but father's reverses made him the family breadwinner at 11—Won his first race on a St. Louis track — Now wealthy and lives near Paris :: :: ::

By LINCOLN EYRE.

BUREAU OF THE POST-DISPATCH, PARIS, July 21.

ONCE upon a time there was a small boy who sold papers outside the old Post-Dispatch Building in St. Louis. So small was he that those who knew him figured his best chance in life was a job as midget in a circus sideshow.

Today this news-vending hop-o'-my-thumb is a substantial citizen with several hundred thousand francs in the bank, a wife and children who in those roles leave nothing to be desired, a fine big home in the country and the affectionate esteem of that vast multitude which comprises the sport-loving public of England, France and the United States.

The above verbal close-up seeks to project in its broader outlines the personality of Frank O'Neill, foremost jockey in the world today and perhaps the greatest rider in the history of the turf. Not to have heard of Frankie O'Neill argues an ignorance almost as profound as to ask "Who's he?" when Charlie Chaplin's name is mentioned. As a jockey everybody knows Frankie. But it's surprising how little is known of O'Neill the man, the husband and the father, and of the story of his phenomenal success.

Newsboys have become jockeys before. Mighty few jockeys, however, have become steady-going, tax-paying family raisers, beloved of their friends, admired and respected by their associates and loyally adored by the racing folk of two continents.

A rider of race horses, like a prizefighter or a movie star or any other human being who leaps overnight from penurious obscurity to affluent celebrity, has temptations flung at him as fast as baseballs at the carnival dodger's head: That vamping trinity, wine, woman and song, works overtime arranging joyrides for him along the broad road that leadeth to destruction. The siren voices of gambling and fine clothes and profligate living ring always in his ears. Easy money crookedly acquired beckons frantically to him—just a little tugging at the reins, and a fortune from the bookmakers. Somebody is always urging him to be a "regular fellow" or a "good sport."

And almost always, intoxicated by sudden wealth and lacking that poise and judgment which come from education and upbringing, he yields to one or another, or all, of his tempters, gets "in bad" and winds up like Frank O'Neill's erstwhile principal rival, whose fame, too, was worldwide—down and out.

But O'Neill was blessed with a level head, and also, just as the first waves of success began caressing him, with a wife. This latter blessing came to him seventeen years ago in the shape of one Mary McCafferty, daughter of a well-known racing man of the old Sheepshead Bay days. With Mary O'Neill ever at his side, and three youngsters come to carry on the dynasty, Frankie has had no trouble keeping straight.

"I got to look at racing as a regular business that a man shouldn't lose his head over," is the way the king of jockeys puts it.

Frank had pulled himself out of poverty into moderate prosperity just about the time Mary McCafferty entered his life. He was no longer a free lance "Jock," at trainers' and owners' beck and call, but himself half owner of an important racing stable, the famous "B. and O," so named because O'Neill's partner was the veteran trainer, Fred Burlew. Although he was only 20 then, he quit riding—finding the task of managing some sixty horses quite enough work—and for three years never got on a horse. That he should have been able to "come back" and achieve the unprecedented record that has been his since is in itself an extraordinary performance.

Frank likes to tell one that whatever he has accomplished is due mostly to the good Irish-American stock from which he sprang. His grandfather crossed over from Ireland in the early immigrations, and was one of the pioneer settlers of Wisconsin. There Frank's father, John O'Neill, was born. Later he migrated to Kansas, where, thirty-seven years ago, in the town of Newton, the future star of the turf began feebly to shine.

The O'Neills moved to St. Louis in 1890, and joined the Irish colony in Kerry Patch. John O'Neill owned some horses in those days. Occasionally he did a bit of racing, so that Frankie's earliest recollections are mixed up with stables and tracks. He can't remember when he first learned to ride, but tiny as he was he bestrode his father's nags almost as soon as he could toddle. Then came family reverses, and even the smallest of the O'Neill clan had to help keep the wolf away.

O'Neill, his wife and two daughters and their home near Paris.

Frank was 11 when he started in shrieking "Post-Dispatch" in a shrill treble several sizes larger than himself. The paper unfolded was almost as tall as he, but he was on the job twelve and fourteen hours a day, rain or shine. Even the cyclone that wiped out a section of South St. Louis didn't stop him, and it was his cool courage in the midst of that terrifying catastrophe that gave him his real start on the road to success.

Doc Crowley, famous in St. Louis racing annals, noted the diminutive urchin's pluck and was so impressed he took Frankie off the streets and put him to work as a stable boy at his horse farm. Two years later, in 1898, the youngster rode his first race. He was 13 and weighed in at sixty pounds. His first mount was named Aunt Jane and the race was one of those owners' handicaps familiar to old-timers on the provinicial tracks. Frankie failed to get in the money, but he showed his ability as a rider.

Frank O'Neill jr. and his sister, Mary Margaret. Frank is proud of his ability as a fencer.

Before long Louis Lemp, the brewer, gave him a steady job riding on the flat at all the meetings in the St. Louis district. Transferring his allegiance to Tom P. Hayes' stable, Frankie rode 126 winners in three months in 1900. His fame spread, and 1902 saw him in New York serving as principal rider for Newton Bennington. He won the Brooklyn Handicap the following year on Irish Lad, and the Century on Hermes. Thereafter, every big race, with the single exception of the Futurity, fell to his colors. His reputation became nationwide, likewise his popularity.

By 1905 his girth and his purse were inflated to a point where ownership seemed more expedient than riding. So there began the partnership with Fred Burlew that kept Frank out of the saddle for three years, and reduced his bankroll, if not his avoirdupois, almost to the vanishing point.

"It wasn't so much the horses as the Chinaman cook and the forty niggers we had that lost us money," Frank tells one, with a reminiscent chuckle.

The B. and O. outfit was sold after Gov. Hughes temporarily squashed racing in New York, and Frank sailed for France, with the proceeds and his young wife. Soon after his arrival he bought a mare called Wanda, upon which he won the first race he had ridden since becoming an owner. In 1909 he came in first 72 times, as a free lance jockey. The year after he won the French Derby for William K. Vanderbilt, and thenceforth, up to the time of Mr. Vanderbilt's death, he remained the stellar attraction of that distinguished sportsman's establishment.

Mr. Vanderbilt's choice of O'Neill as his chief jockey was the coronation of Frank's career. When the American millionaire started his stable in France his aim was to make it the supreme exemplification of all that is finest in horse racing. He wanted those associated with him to be not only the most able in their calling, but the most representative of clean sportsmanship. That is why he picked William Duke as his trainer and Frank O'Neill as his principal rider.

Frank proceeded to win every classic on the French and English turf, mostly on Vanderbilt horses. For thirteen years he has stood at the top of the jockeys' list. In France he has ridden close upon 1300 winners. Two years ago, on Spion Kop, he came in first in the English Derby, the foremost race in the world. And since he was 20 he has worn the same size hat and given the same size greeting to his friends.

Mrs. O'Neill has seen to it that her Frank changed only for the better as the years went by. Frank Jr., who is 15 now, and his sisters, Ella Frances and Mary Margaret, who are respectively 11 and 7, have helped.

It is their admiring adoration of a father who can do no wrong—because he never has—that sends Frank out on the road every morning to do ten miles in a rubber suit, while his rivals are doing their weight reducing in a Turkish bath. But proud as the young O'Neills are of their dad, he himself is much prouder of his son's fencing prowess—Frank Jr. is challenger for the schoolboy championship of France—of Ella Frances' horsemanship and of Mary Margaret's spelling than they ever could be of him.

The O'Neill's home is in the country, a charming house, furnished al'Americaine, near the Maisons Lafitte race course, on the outskirts of Paris. A few miles away is the enormous establishment, boasting its own mile-and-a-quarter track, built by Mr. Vanderbilt to house his thoroughbreds. Upon his death it was acquired by A. K. Macomber, who retained Frank's services.

TWO INDIANA WOMEN WHO TRIED ON CRO

Miss Marie Moorman says her eyes grew weary looking at $500,000,000 worth of gems shown to her and former Governor and Mrs. James P. Goodrich in Moscow a few weeks ago — Bolshevik official invited them to private inspection of magnificent crown jewels collected through centuries — Treasures brought up in big boxes bound with ropes—Miss Moorman wore for a brief time two tiaras valued at $4,000,000 each—Crown of Peter the Great looked like a derby hat—One diamond weighed 144 karats

PROBABLY the only American women who ever wore crowns of Russian Empresses told a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine writer all about it the other day in the handsome home of former Gov. James P. Goodrich of Indiana, at Winchester, in the Hoosier State. They are Mrs. Goodrich and Miss Marie Moorman, also of Winchester, both natives of Indiana. Just back from a trip to Russia with the former Governor, who went for the third time as emissary for Herbert Hoover and the American Food Administration for the relief of Russian famine sufferers, Mrs. Goodrich and Miss Moorman had not recovered altogether from the bedazzlement of inspecting half a billion dollars' worth of Russian crown jewels.

"In fact," admitted Miss Moorman, who is a beautiful and vivacious girl, "I don't believe I ever again shall feel the same after having tried on two imperial crowns and feasted my eyes on many others, in addition to big packing boxes full of coronets, tiaras, necklaces, pendants, crosses, loose diamonds, pearls, rubies, sapphires, emeralds—they said the collection was worth $500,000,000; and they took those dazzling things from great boxes this long."

Miss Moorman extended her hands at least three feet apart.

"Oh, now, Marie," interrupted the stately Mrs. Goodrich, smilingly, "they really weren't so large as that; they were like big bandboxes for size, the sort one's large hat is delivered in, you know."

"Well, anyhow," insisted Miss Moorman, "they looked big to me; but perhaps I was too busy appraising the beauty of the crowns and crown jewels to estimate the size of the boxes. I simply looked until my eyes ached."

Both the ladies declared that they really got tired of looking at the bewildering opulence of former Russian royal splendors as expressed in precious gems and gold-wrought workmanship. For two hours they saw and handled the marvels, as box after box was brought up and opened and the contents passed around for inspection. Gov. Goodrich also was present, and had he liked he could have placed upon his head the magnificent crown last worn by the unfortunate Nicholas II, first worn by Peter the Great, used since his time at coronations of all the Czars.

"It was too heavy for me," said the Governor. "I handled it—hefted it, as we Hoosiers say—but didn't try it on."

"It looked something like a derby hat, in general shape," said Mrs. Goodrich, "but, of course, was studded with wonderful jewels. There was a great stone for a centerpiece."

Yes, and though the Indiana party had no time to count them, there were no less than 900 diamonds in the imperial crown, including a cross of diamonds rising from a huge, uncut ruby in the center. It will be remembered that when Nicholas II, at his coronation in 1894, placed the crown of Peter the Great upon his head, with great dignity and deliberation, it tilted slightly, being too large for him, and that the incident was seized upon as an augury of evil for his reign.

"But the women tried on a few crowns," said the Governor.

"I tried on one," his wife corrected, "the crown of the Empress Elizabeth, who reigned 200 years ago."

"And I," said Miss Moorman, "tried on two—that of Theodosia and that of Marie, my namesake."

It was just here that the Hoosier belle, replying to a query as to how she felt after wearing for a brief time two coronets of Russian royalty, one after the other in quick succession, representing two reigns, made her happy remark about never feeling the same again.

"The Czar's crown was the biggest of all," said the Governor, "but there were plenty of others, big enough."

"Those I put on felt heavy—too heavy for real comfort," remarked Miss Moorman; "better to see than to wear, I should say."

"And the necklaces," Mrs. Goodrich volunteered; "they were wonderful. One in particular I recall. It was made up of rose diamonds. There was a high collar of diamonds, from which hung several strands of diamonds looped down the neck. This was passed around for us to inspect."

"And did the attendants place any appraisal as to the value of the crown of Empress Elizabeth which you tried on?" was asked.

"They said it was worth about $4,000,000," replied Mrs. Goodrich.

"And they said mine—I mean the two I wore—were worth about $4,000,000 each," Miss Moorman, Queen Marie of Winchester, added.

Now, it may be set forth as a proposition not to be controverted, that no other American woman in all her life, no matter what her wealth, has worn bonnets—counting every one used since infancy—approaching in aggregate value more than a very small fraction of the $8,000,000 worth of royal bonnetry which upon a recent rare day in June graced the head of the Hoosier girl; so to her must be given the championship in that line, with all other American women so far behind in the competition that they really don't count at all. It should be stated here that, although those crowns were heavy, they didn't turn Miss Moorman's head.

If ere now you have come to wonder how it happened that a trio of Hoosier citizens had the privilege of inspecting the jewels sacred to Russian royalty for centuries, be informed hereby—and possibly astounded to boot. One day last June Gov. Goodrich, busy finishing up his great and successful work in Russia, was approached by a high official of the Bolshevist government, one Eyducke, who had been serving as go-between, a diplomatic person of handsome physical aspect and keen mentality.

"Governor," said Eyducke, "how would you and the ladies like to see the crown jewels?"

The Governor thought the ladies might like to see them, and if so he could go along for company. Such things appealed to women. Men, of course—what did men care for $4,000,000 bonnets and such?

The Hoosier executive did a bit of wondering; he wondered just why this invitation had come his way.

"Come right along," said the official. "There will be, perhaps, a few little things the ladies will [illegible] seeing."

They went right along, to a building in Moscow [illegible] to be identified by street and number. They [illegible] taken to a room on the third floor. many of the Russian officials use our tongue when they find it convenient."

After the ladies from Winchester, who expected to see a few little things of interest, were seated, a door was opened. Through the doorway strode two men in [illegible], members of the Red Guard. Between them they lugged a large wooden box bound with ropes. They were puffing when they set the box on a long table, having carried it from a basement, or perhaps a dungeon, up to the third floor.

The large individual in charge of ceremonies had the guards undo the ropes. The lid was lifted. The master reached down and lifted out the dome-shaped crown of Peter the Great and all succeeding Czars. It was shaped like a patriarchal mitre, according to Russian description, like a derby hat according to Indiana methods of comparison. The immense ruby supported by a cross of five very large diamonds, the whole affair blazing with 300 brilliant stones, dazzled the Indiana eyes.

And for good count, the master fished up from the box a few handfuls of such simple things as bediamonded crowns, jeweled scepters, pearl necklaces. He passed them around, along with the splenderiferous [illegible].

Around the room were ranged seven Red Guards, each armed with a revolver and a short sword. They were silent but attentive. The master also was attentive, though not silent. He talked, now in Russian, now in English; and Mr. Volder talked altogether in English, describing for the guests of honor each piece as it was passed along.

Again the door opened. Two more soldiers entered, bearing another big handboxlike package, roped and sealed. This, in its turn, was opened. The master dived into its depths and brought forth the crown of the Empress Catherine II, bedizened by no less than 2356 diamonds and one enormous ruby, producing a rainbow color dazzling in its brilliancy. As before, the master brought forth further handfuls of crown jewels of various patterns, each in itself a fortune.

Again and again the door opened, until nearly a dozen boxes of precious royal heirlooms had been deposited upon the table and opened for inspection of contents. The long table was a-glitter with gold and gems wrought by master workmanship into shapes of marvelous beauty and sheer allurement.

A few little things the ladies might enjoy seeing! Well, there they were, and more still coming up from the subterraneous deeps.

"After we had gazed and gazed for about two hours," said Miss Moorman, "we were so tired that we couldn't stay to see the other little things."

The guards kept their eyes on the jewels and on the guests. It was a polite surveillance, quite permissible under the circumstances; for, you know, even one of the soldiers might covet a loose diamond, and it behooved each man to be alert of eye.

There was one diamond, which the Hoosier group handled, weighing 144 karats. That was the biggest of all. Mrs. Goodrich drew an outline in pencil, indicating that the stone was about the size of an egg. Another big diamond was handed to Gov. Goodrich for inspection, with the remark that it had caused three wars in past generations. An expert jeweler who was in the party mentioned the karat dimensions, but the Governor was wondering about those wars and didn't catch the size of it.

And thus they passed in review—those treasures of the vanished house of Romanoff. For generations they had reposed, when not in active service, in the vaults of the Imperial Treasury, adjoining the palace of the Kremlin in Moscow. They had belonged, in times past, to one or another of the many czardoms of Russia, those of Kazan, Astrakan, Poland, Siberia, Kerson, when those once-separate kingdoms flourished and had monarchs who required crowns, scepters and suchlike things. All had been gathered into the Imperial Treasury, the accumulation of several centuries and of many czardoms—gathered there but to await the downfall of the last Czar of all the Russias and to be plucked forth by the Bolshevik rulers and transferred to another vault for safekeeping.

There was the crown of Crimea, a plain gold circlet. There was the crown of Vladimir Monomarchus, who married a daughter of the English King Harold, succeeding to the throne of Kieff in the year 1113. This was an affair of rare gold filigree work on sable, surmounted by a plain crown set with pearls. There was the crown of Michael Romanoff, founder of the imperial house, surrounded by 190 precious stones and surmounted by a big emerald. There was the coronet of the late Czarina, who perished with Nicholas and their son and daughters at the onset of the revolution. This is remarkable chiefly for the quality of its jewels, being bedecked with 100 of the purest gems ever brought together in a single ornament, and said to be unequaled by any similar headgear of royalty anywhere on earth.

There also was the royal orb, decorated with diamonds set in two bands encircling it at right angles; on the upper surface a large sapphire surmounted by a diamond cross and containing what the Orthodox Russians say is a piece of the true cross of Christ.

There was the imperial scepter, its chief ornament the magnificent gem known as the Orloff (of Orlov) diamond, one of the largest and most valuable extant. There were jeweled collars of the Order of St. Andrew; the sword of state, richly begemmed; the insignia of innumerable orders, blinking in vari-colored lights.

These things, many of them, and others not mentioned specifically, dazzled the eyes of maid and matron from Winchester, Ind., to whom the thousand or more of golden plates and salt cellars, used anciently and modernly for presenting bread and salt to Czars at coronations, made less impression than would have been the case under circumstances less elaborately set with brilliant gems. From Khiva, from Bokhara, from Samarkand, from far-off Yatutsk, for centuries past came envoys offering allegiance in plates of pure gold, usually embossed with the initials of the incoming Czar set in gems.

Also in the collection are the bejeweled dresses of the Russian Empresses, that of Catherine II so heavy with gems that one person hardly is able to support it. Miss Moorman, who prefers the modern styles, had no hankering to try on Catherine's dress.

Had not the ladies from Indiana grown fatigued with seeing so much magnificence, possibly they might have been taken somewhere and shown the choice collection of thrones now in the hands of the Lenine-Trotzky government. There are single, double and even triple thrones. The throne of Alexis is studded with 1223 rubies, 876 diamonds and other precious stones. The throne of Boris, presented to him by the Shah of Persia, is ornamented with more than 1600 large pearls and 88 turquoises. There is also in the grip of the soviet the magnificent ivory throne brought from Constantinople by Sophia upon her marriage to Ivan the Great in 1472, and the double throne of Ivan and Peter, with an opening behind it through which Sophia, their elder sister, could give secret advice to the youthful joint monarchs and thus keep them from making bad breaks. Sister Sophia was the real power behind the throne.

Why did the soviet officials invite the Goodrich party to this extraordinary sightseeing experience?

This question must be answered in a roundabout way. There are very few newspapers in Russia, but there are some press agents. As everybody is aware, the present Russian Government needs money, needs it badly, needs a lot of it, and because of its peculiar notions as to the rights of property, nobody is willing to make a loan. It is known that already certain pieces of Russian crown jewelry have been sold abroad, in Paris, in England, in the United States, to raise money for the Bolshevist regime. But only a few million dollars have been raised in that way.

The big collection of crown jewels viewed by the Indianans is said to be worth approximately half a billion dollars, more than twice as much as was the original estimate for building the Panama Canal. Russian officials told Gov. Goodrich that they were having an expert appraisal of the jewels made and will print a booklet with illustrations and descriptions of the various articles, a copy of which they will send to him.

Reading between the lines, it is to be understood that the Lenine-Trotzky regime simply intends to borrow as much money on the crown jewels as can be had with them as security. In other words, they are going to "put up" the Romanoff regal splendors for cash with which to carry on the government.

Radio Grafters Plucking the Gulls

Stock promoters in wireless telephony using exactly the same methods employed in floating oil, motor, telephone and other swindles of recent years—Their "literature" designed to get the savings of the ignorant and the poor—Impossible promises, false claims to basic patents, the easy-money lure broadcast in "come-on" letters—To escape the hook, refuse to bite, this investigator advises all :: ::

IN THE last three months between 1200 and 1500 new radio companies have been incorporated in the United States, and Alexander Eiseman, president of the National Radio Chamber of Commerce, has issued a warning saying that many are frauds, organized to trim the public. Some of them, he says, are stock flotations and others actual manufacturers, but of inferior goods, by which the radio enthusiast is cheated. He bids both the investor and the fan beware.

In other words, the good and gullible American public is on for another mulcting such as it has endured in connection with every notable invention on the books. As a matter of fact, the skinning of the people by means of radio stocks has already been in progress for some time. There are not fewer than 200 fraudulent stock companies in the field and there are more than five times as many special frauds, tricks and cheats in action against the everyday man and his purse. Already some millions of hard-earned dollars have been taken from the purses of the gulls and a good many millions more will fall to the share of the sharpers before the thing can be checked. This is, of course, in keeping with tradition.

For three-quarters of a century the United States has been a hunting paradise for the inventions and discoveries shark. He has found an abundance of game among us. The reasons are obvious. A good many important inventions have come out of this country, beginning with the steamboat and the cotton gin and ranging down to the phonograph, the motion picture camera and newer marvels, not, however, including the wireless. Consequently every other American considers himself a potential Edison, and the belief is generally and loudly maintained that all great mechanical discoveries were made in this abundant land.

The result of this attitude has been that those of us who haven't the time or bent or gift for mechanical devising have always the desire to share vicariously in some sort of profitable invention. We are forever looking for the chance to "invest" a little money in a company which controls patents or to put up the cash to grubstake an inventor. The crooks and confidence men are actually aware of this national weakness of ours and have not been slow to profit by it.

Every time a genuine invention has come before the country the confidence men and phoney stock salesmen have jumped into the breach and afforded everyone a chance to invest in this new wonder. It happened with the telegraph long ago. The thing was repeated in the case of the telephone, as the many one-horse telephone lines still extant in the country will witness. The wireless was mercilessly exploited in this manner. So have been the automobile, the typewriter, the camera, the adding machine, the airplane, the gas engine—and every other mechanism that has stirred the imagination of men and wrought changes in our manner of doing the practical things of life.

The manner of appealing to the public for its money has remained unchanged for a good many years. Just as the wily oil company promoter dangles before the greedy eyes of his gull the spectacle of Mr. Rockefeller's enormous wealth, so the inventions game swindler holds out before his victims the alleged story of triumphant inventions of the past. Most of us are familiar with the bait. There comes a circular which says, in effect:

A Franklin County farmer tries his outfit.

"Had you bought one share of the original Bell telephone stock you would now be worth $500,000.

"Had you bought one share of Ford motor stock in the beginning you would now be worth $650,000.

"Had you bought one share of Burroughs adding machine stock when the buying was good you would have made $100,000.

"If you will buy one share of our stock you may be worth $1,000,000."

These figures are quoted from memory. But those actually used by the fake promoters are no more reliable. In the case of the older inventions, such as the telephone and telegraph, the claims are utterly grotesque, for they fail to take into account the numerous reorganizations, consolidations, purchases of subsidiaries and the like, all of which either invalidated or sadly reduced the value of the original shares in the first companies. And in the case of Ford motor stock, it would be a rash man who would try to estimate just what sum an original $100 share may have earned and appreciated.

But the promoters of these fake companies are nowise concerned with fact or truth. What they want is something to impress foolish and greedy men, and any kind of figures will serve this purpose, so long as they are sufficiently alluring.

Make it strong! Hit 'em hard! Give 'em the works!

These are the maxims in the bright lexicon of the stock company promoter, and right now he is applying these ancient prescriptions for success to the radio.

Before we go into the matter of the way in which the public is being tempted and trimmed, let us take a glance at the facts concerning radio.

Most of the inventions which have made fortunes for the inventors or for limited groups of backers and manufacturers have hinged upon some basic and exclusive patent which prevented competition. This is not the case with the radio telephone, which rests upon the number of devices, variously owned. Most of these basic inventions are controlled in this country by the Radio Corporation of America, which is a company of standing and whose shares are listed and traded in regularly on the exchanges. There is just one way to buy them, and that is through a Wall street broker at the market price.

Every company which manufactures the essential equipment for the radio must be licensed and pay royalties to this corporation or to the various inventors. There is thus no monopoly and there are no valuable patent rights in the hands of these innumerable manufacturers. Some of them have minor patents covering accessories, but it will be seen at a glance that these patents are relatively worthless. They are in no sense assets upon which any large capitalization might be honestly based.

In spite of these commonly known and apparent facts, the fake radio promoters are swarming into the field and gulling the people right and left. Their first act is to adopt names similar to that of the Radio Corporation of America, with the result that we have scores of concerns which call themselves by every variant of the radio name which may look or sound even approximately like that of the substantial original company—a most antiquated dodge that ought to fool no one but still does catch the human gudgeons by the thousand.

The principal plea of these fraudulent stock selling concerns, aside from the claim that radio will make such profits as did the other inventions above referred to, is based upon the sudden radio fever and the immense popularity of the wireless telephone. This popularity has reached such proportions that newspapers carry regular daily departments and sometimes special pages or sections devoted to radio topics and broadcasting news. The promoter points to these facts and cries that millions and billions will be made from the manufacture of equipment. The fact is, of course, that millions will be lost by the people foolish enough to buy these stocks.

A few of the other fraudulent claims made in this sample of literature are:

"Radio phones are already installed in 15,000,000 homes and reach 75,000,000 people." Exaggeration about 1000 per cent.

"The profit in radio devices ranges from 100 to 1000 per cent." Exaggeration tenfold.

"Gross sales of radio equipment for 1922 are $50,000,000." Exaggeration tenfold.

"The investing public is bound to make millions out of the radio business." Misstatement millionfold. The public is bound to lose millions.

An examination of the literature sent broadcast by more than a score of these self-styled radio manufacturing concerns fails to reveal a single truthful statement except that radio has a great future. It is apparent from the way in which this literature is written and from the methods employed by the salesmen, as investigated by this writer, that the campaign being waged is aimed at the inexperienced, the ignorant and the poor—the lowest kind of swindle. The promoters intend to get their millions from the small-salaried man, the mechanic and workman, the servant and the widow. The method of luring and trimming these people is antique but interesting. The only novelty is the radio itself.

What these promoters are doing may be best seen from certain choice bits of propaganda literature.

One circular claims: "We expect shortly to have this stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange." This in spite of the fact that the company admits it was incorporated in May and probably could not, under the most favorable conditions, achieve a dividend record in ten years sufficiently good to get it listed on the Stock Exchange.

Another reads: "Radio equipment is being ordered at the rate of $10,000,000 a month and the manufacturers have $80,000,000 in bona fide orders on their books." It stands to reason, of course, that $80,000,000 worth of orders from reputable dealers are bankable and that corporations having any part of such orders may borrow from any bank and need not appeal to the humble investor.

A third says: "We own many basic patents." Yet there are at least 200 manufacturers of radio machines, real or fraudulent.

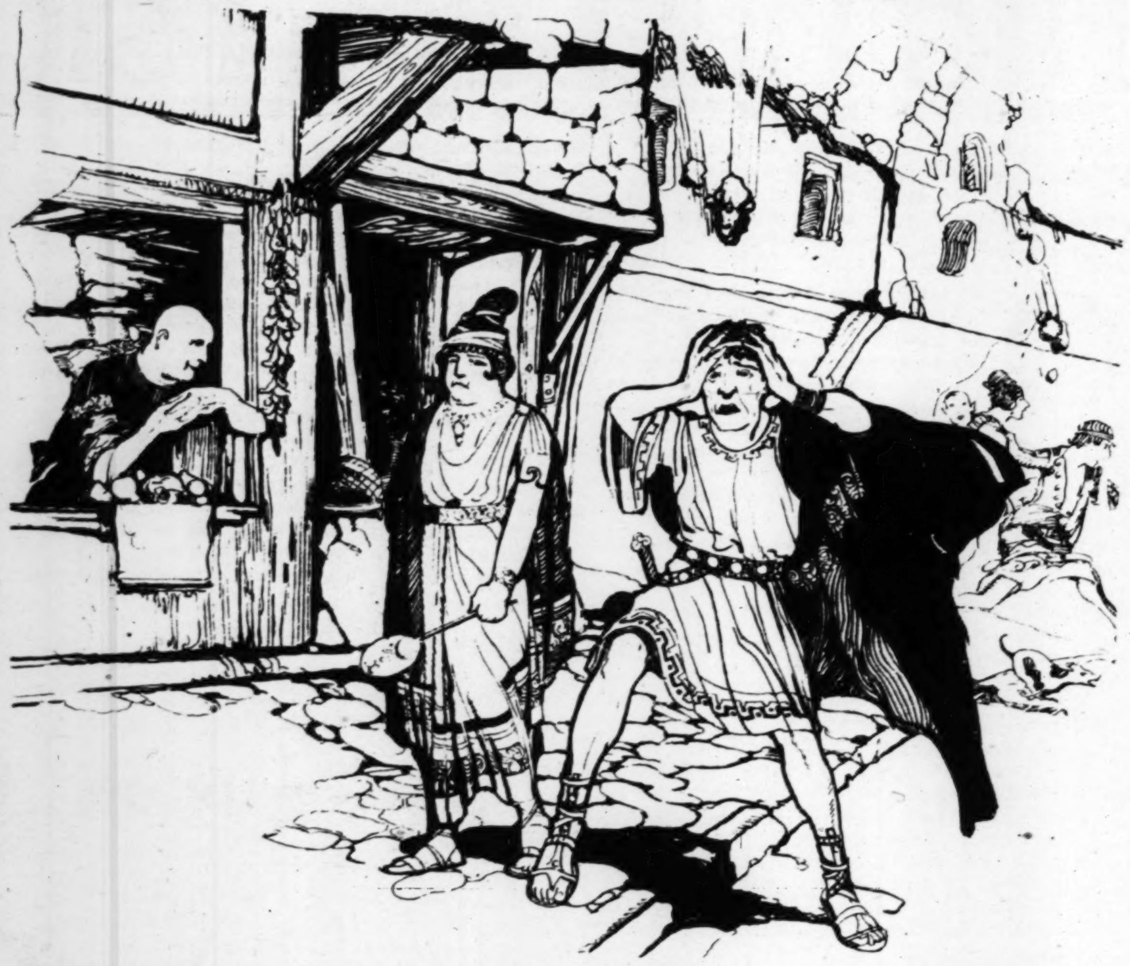
The point is, of course, that the class of investors or speculators to whom these appeals are being sent are babes in the financial jungle, and all that actuates them is cupidity and the hope of making money without effort. In trimming these people the old and tried device of come-on letters is being utilized.

There are a thousand minor variations to this scheme, but in essentials it is always the same. The come-on letters used are even bought ready written. They are the same letters as were used in the notorious wireless telegraph frauds of twelve or fifteen years ago, with a few phrases and figures changed. They are also the same letters, with proper modifications, that have been used in mining and oil swindles for a whole generation.

To escape the hook of the radio-fraud fisher, simply refuse to bite.

Old Rome Laughs at Our Etiquette

Safety-first for self, not chivalry at all, originated custom of man walking next to curb when escorting woman, so the college graduate tells the girl on King's highway as he switches over to conform to modern demand —In ancient Roman times houses overhung pavements, women were not valued so highly by men as now, so they were made to walk next to the wall to catch falling bricks or stones :: :: :: ::



THEY were walking along King's highway, as were many other persons, and the woman of the pair held the curb side of the street.

"What's wrong with this picture we are making?" he queried. "That's just where the book of etiquette makes its mistake. Do you know why a man walks on the outside of the street?"

He accompanied his question by a deft movement, gliding her before him while he adroitly back sidestepped to the curb.

"Not that it's important," he continued, "but let me tell you the beginnings of the custom. I looked the thing up, I remember, while I was at college; I did this, I suppose, chiefly because I had been assigned to dig up something else. Anyway, I found out, by going back to the 'glory that was Rome,' that there is no association between the practice of the man holding to the curb side of the street and chivalry.

"I confess I found it somewhat difficult to conjure up the picture of a Roman man and lady—togaed, draped, sandaled and, as the Greek idiom would have it, bare as to the head—out for a walk. Perhaps you can imagine it more easily. At any rate, there you have them, he on the outside, walking down a Roman street.

"The dwellings were, for the most part, clumsily built affairs. The mansions of patrician circles were works of art and safely constructed and quite different from the more numerous homes of the plebeians. These latter were built with projecting upper stories. Like overhanging rocks their fall on the head of the passerby seemed imminent.

"It was, then, somewhat precarious for a Roman to take a walk. To lessen the danger the Roman man always walked on the outside of the road—a less likely target for any falling building material.

"Not a bit chivalrous, no. But the Romans did not esteem their women highly. Women were not idealized, loved and respected because they were women. Whether cause or effect, women were considered inferior to men in mental and moral stature.

"Marriages, for the most part, were loveless. Nor did the women share the companionship or the higher intimacies of mind and spirit with men. The craving for friendship, the desire for personal affection, was satisfied by the men by an ardent attachment to one of their own sex. Indeed, many of the best of them held the love of man for man above that of man for woman, as the story of the much-lauded friendship of Damon and Pythias evidences.

"We have the myths of the loves of gods and goddesses, but there is no widely current story extolling the ideal love of Roman man and woman.

"It mattered little, then, whether a woman was killed or injured. Accordingly, they were shoved to the inside of the street, not for their protection, but to safeguard men. Or was it a milder form of drowning she babies in the Ganges?"

He asked the question and paused, but not to gain breath himself, rather that she might have time to absorb the full fruit of his erudition. She might have ventured a word of comment, but he was already saying:

"If we do not go back so far for the origin of the custom the legend will bear out the chivalrous inception for it.

"When the common means of conveyance was the buggy, horse drawn—and that not as long ago as the victorious invasion of the automobile would have us believe—the outsides of the streets were lined with hitching posts. Ropes were generally swung from post to post on which the idle swayed and chewed as the idle today drape themselves on weathered park benches or the uneven lawn. To protect their women from the importunities and contact with this rabble the men—the story runs—walked on the outer side of the street.

"Then, too," he continued, meticulously and effortlessly, "men might have begun the practice to ward off from their women the mud of unimproved roads splashed up by passing drays.

"Oh, yes, there are various pretty inventions for the original motive which suit our romantic sense better, but Roman history gives the earliest, the utilitarian beginning.

"All of which, if one wanted to make it, is score number one against the etiquette books. Oddly enough, though, the frowns and injunctions of that silly, serious book on the subject of the impropriety of a man walking between two women are borne out by the Talmud, which countenances the superstition that it is unlucky for a man to be between two dogs, two palms or two women."

AGITATION AGAINST THE GUILLOTINE

SINCE the execution of Landru, the Bluebeard of Paris, a powerful section of the French nation has been demanding the abolition of capital punishment, or alternatively that guillotinings should take place in the privacy of prison. In reality the public is not admitted to executions, except when there is laxity on the part of the local officials, the publicity being due to the presence of press representatives. It is urged that reporters should not be required to attend such functions, as the public would accept as accurate any prison governor's announcement that the man had been guillotined, without assurance by newspaper men. In a few weeks the guillotine will have operated for 130 years in France. Before the Revolution condemned persons were put to death in various ways. In some cases bones were broken by blows from an iron bar. Others were made to die in agony on the wheel. Many nobles were decapitated with the sword. The majority, however, were hanged. In 1790, a humanitarian, Dr. Guillotin, procured the issuing of a decree that a criminal should be decapitated by a simple machine with a knife, "which should fall like the thunder." Actually, Guillotin, who was a professor of anatomy in the Paris School of Medicine, had nothing to do with the construction of the sinister machine, and he died of chagrin because his name was given to it.

A German harpsichord maker named Schmitt built the first guillotine, under the direction of Dr. Louis, secretary of the Academy of Surgery. Louis XVI, who prided himself on his skill as a locksmith and his knowledge of mechanics, is stated to have advised the adoption of the triangular form of knife instead of the scythe shape of the original design. This story of the King, who was subsequently to lose his head on the guillotine, is discredited in many quarters, although it appears in the "Memoirs" of Samson, one of the great hangmen. To the first guillotining, which took place in 1792, on the Place de Greve, the people of Paris thronged in crowds.

At the swift end of Nicholas Pelletier, a footpad who had robbed and stabbed to death a traveler, they clapped their hands with satisfaction. After that the guillotine was kept busy. From August, 1792, to July, 1794, 2633 persons were beheaded, including 334 women. In recent years the amount of guillotining has largely depended on the personal views of the President of the moment. Thirty years ago President Carnot executed everybody who had been sentenced to death. Then President Fallieres went to the other extreme, being opposed to guillotining anybody. This led to an outcry, because criminals guilty of particularly brutal murders escaped the penalty.

From 1912 the death machine has worked with regularity. But there has always been a latent hostility, and the Landru case has brought it to the surface. In addition to the cry for abolition of capital punishment, there is a demand for certitude that a man is guilty before being beheaded, and in Landru's case certitude, it is declared, was not established.

HOW TO SOUNDPROOF YOUR RADIO ROOM

WITH the advent of the widespread use of radio we are gradually approaching the state of living by ours ears instead of our eyes. We want quiet when we listen over our radio sets. Prof. F. R. Watson of the Engineering Experiment Station of the University of Illinois has made an extensive study of soundproofing and is able to give advice on the best methods of sound insulation that can be applied to the rooms in which the receiving set is placed.

"The ventilation system and other air passages such as doors and windows are most important in the transmission of sound," says Prof. Watson. "Cases of efficient sound insulations either omit the ventilation entirely or else guard it in special ways.

Next in importance come the walls, floors and ceilings. These should be as rigid as possible, with pipes and conduits placed in outside or corridor walls where a leakage of sound will not be so objectionable."

Absorption of sound is an essential feature in soundproofing. This absorption is accomplished by the introduction of compressible, porous materials like carpets, heavy curtains and hairfelt, which convert the sound energy into heat by friction in the porous channels. Reflecting sound and scattering it still leaves it with noise-producing energy.

When soundproofing a building, all details should be considered with respect to the likelihood of transmission of sound. Each room, as far as possible, should be made an insulated unit by means of air spaces or air-filled materials that separate it from surrounding walls.

Sound may be transmitted from one side of a partition to the other in three ways. It may progress through continuous air passages, it may pass as an elastic wave through the solid structure of the partition, or, by setting the partition in vibration, it may originate sound waves on the further side.

People outside of music studios and other rooms where disturbing sounds are produced, and those in hospitals, hotels and office buildings, as well as radio fans, will benefit by Prof. Watson's investigations. Architects and engineers are furnished information which they have lacked in the past.

THE BULL BAITERS

by GERALD BEAUMONT

Bull was the monarch of all he surveyed,
Tough as they make 'em—Chief Unafraid!
King of the Umps, and crowned as such,
Twice by the Irish and once by the Dutch.
—Ballads of Brick McGovern.

"ONE false move!" implored Peewee. "One false move—that's all I ask! One false move and I crown you!"

Feet kicking up the dust, fists closed, and jaws working overtime, Umpire Bull Feeney and Third Baseman Peewee Patterson were breasting each other pigeon fashion and backing around in a wary circle.

They each let go a right at the same moment, and Peewee, who had once seen service in the ring, beat his opponent to the punch, following it up with a left that reached the same target.

Bull staggered back, recovered himself and returned to the attack head down. In the interests of peace and dignity, Manager Brick McGovern and some of the more responsible players interfered.

Usually pugilistic encounters on the ball field have little significance and are forgotten in a day or two. But this fracas was different.

From the viewpoint of the ball player there is no such thing as a good umpire. They are all bad, and some are a little worse than others. Clubhouse opinion was unanimous in asserting that Bull Feeney was the most terrible crime ever perpetrated in organized baseball. Not that Bull didn't know his business; that was the awful part of it! Bull had been in the majors, and had even worked three times in a world's series. He was game, cool-headed, quick on his feet, and he had a voice like a fog horn.

But, of all the self-satisfied, truculent, sarcastic, limelight-loving and murder-inspiring umpires that ever bellowed through a muzzle, Bull Feeney was the thrice-crowned king! Proudly he admitted the charge, and dared the world to make him otherwise. Therein lay the perpetual casus belli.

The crowd rode him, of course, but this was a mistake; it only encouraged the man. Bull got as much joy out of irritating the audience behind the wire netting as a small boy does in poking sticks through the bars of the circus cages.

Oh, Bull was really an awful thing, and he pursued the even tenor of his way until Peewee Patterson, in sheer defense, convoked a board of strategy in the clubhouse one afternoon.

"Now, get me right," said Patterson. "I'm naturally peaceful. I ain't lookin' for trouble, but when any big bimbo sticks his nose between my teeth, he's going to lose it; that's all!"

This declaration of principles was approved by the strategists.

"But we got to use the old head on this guy," warned Rube Ferguson, outfielder. "We got to work on him. Fifty dollars a punch is too much dough. My idea is to get something on him"——

"Ye-ah, I'll get my spikes on him some day," promised Lefty Carroll; "that's what I'll get on him."

Peewee protested. "Let's get down to business. Now, here's something they tried on a guy down South once, and I'll tell the world it was rich."

Patterson's voice trailed off into the dramatic tenseness of a born conspirator. The others listened eagerly. The plot unfolded, and presently all could appreciate that the midget third sacker had indeed unearthed a slender sword calculated to penetrate even the thick hide of Bull Feeney, and leave him writhing miserably at their feet.

A week later the King of Umps seated himself one evening in the lobby of his hotel to indite two letters. The first was in the nature of a report to the president of the league, and presented no difficulty. It read:

"Dear Mr. Powell: I put Manager McGovern out of the game yesterday for abusive language. He is a dog. Yours truly, JAMES P. FEENEY."

The second letter represented the first step into an unfamiliar world. He frowned thoughtfully at the hotel letterheads, chewed the tip of the penholder, laid it down, looked about him, and surreptitiously produced from an inside pocket a small pink envelope that had come in the morning mail. For the twentieth time he read the contents, and for the twentieth time a wave of turkey red began at his gills and spread to the back of his neck. His heavy features struggled unsuccessfully against a sheepish grin. And small wonder! The age of miracles was here again! Bull Feeney had received a mash note! Cupid was burning incense at the shrine of an ump! Let unbelievers read:

"Dear Mr. Feeney:. I have often wanted to write to you, but this is the first time I have been able to get up the courage, and I hope you will not take offense, or think I am too bold.

"I go to all the games, and I think you are the very best umpire in the league. It must be wonderful to be so big and strong and fearless, and I would just love to know you, but I suppose you would not pay any attention to a mere girl—though my friends say I am not bad looking.

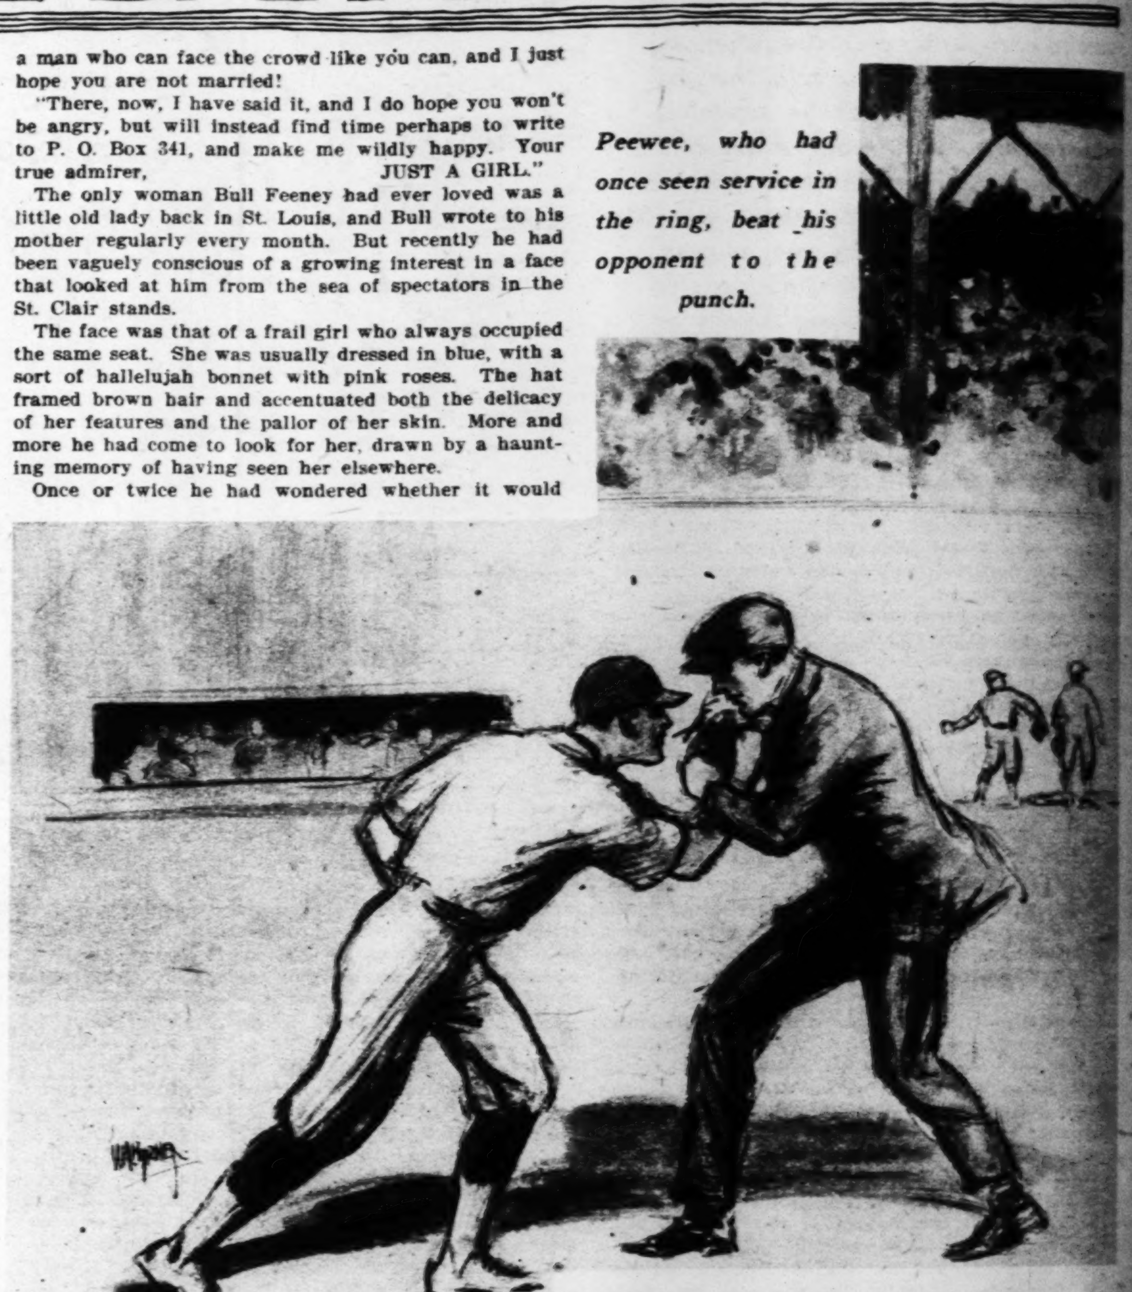
"Anyway, I can't resist confessing my admiration for a man who can face the crowd like you can, and I just hope you are not married!

"There, now, I have said it, and I do hope you won't be angry, but will instead find time perhaps to write to P. O. Box 341, and make me wildly happy. Your true admirer, JUST A GIRL."

The only woman Bull Feeney had ever loved was a little old lady back in St. Louis, and Bull wrote to his mother regularly every month. But recently he had been vaguely conscious of a growing interest in a face that looked at him from the sea of spectators in the St. Clair stands.

The face was that of a frail girl who always occupied the same seat. She was usually dressed in blue, with a sort of hallelujah bonnet with pink roses. The hat framed brown hair and accentuated both the delicacy of her features and the pallor of her skin. More and more he had come to look for her, drawn by a haunting memory of having seen her elsewhere.

Once or twice he had wondered whether it would be safe to wait outside the gate, and kind of tip his hat a little as she passed out. But umpires find it a bit risky to encounter the crowd after a ball game—at least umpires like Bull Feeney. He was perplexed until—lo and behold, here had come the letter! Oh, wonder of wonders!



Peewee, who had once seen service in the ring, beat his opponent to the punch.

He dipped his pen in ink and undertook the reply with painful earnestness.

"My Dear Young Lady: Your valued letter received and contents noted."

He studied over that for a moment, tore it up, and tried again.

"Dear Sweetie:"

That was awful. He scratched it out hurriedly, his face the color of a beet. Someone sat down at the desk opposite him. He frowned, gathered up paper, pen and ink and retired to the seclusion of his room. By midnight the floor was littered with rumpled paper, but he had managed to break through the formidable barrier of an opening paragraph. Once started, he wrote at length, telling her all about his mother in St. Louis, and the timber claim in the California Sierras, where the railroad would one day build a branch line, and where the stars were the swellest you ever saw. There was a trick squirrel that lived in a big pine right at the door of the cabin he was building—funny little cuss—which would get awful mad if you didn't notice it.

Of course, an umpire wasn't no saint, or nothing like that, but he didn't go in for booze, and he knew how to be a square shooter with a nice girl, as she would find out, and would she please tell him——

Bull paused and wiped his ink-stained fingers on his trousers. His face took on a blank expression. Maybe the girl he was thinking about and the one who had written the letter were not the same person. He considered this possibility with dismay, laid aside everything he had penned and wrote this:

"Dear Miss Admirer: Your letter is O K with me. Whereabouts do you sit? Yours truly,

"JAMES P. (BULL) FEENEY."

Then he went to bed.

Two days later, Peewee Patterson, wild with joy, showed up at morning practice and waved a letter in the faces of the board of strategy.

"Hooked him!" he crowed. "The big fish fell for it! 'Dear Miss Admirer—where do you sit?' Oh, ho!"

They snatched at the letter, feasted their eyes on it, passed it around, and banged each other on the back, whooping triumphantly:

"Ain't that a pip!" "Well, the big bull fathead!" "What d'ye know? I guess that ain't spearin' him, huh?"

Rube Ferguson, first to calm down, looked up from the letter, a little puzzled.

"Well," he demanded, "where does she sit?"

The others looked at Peewee. Patterson met the question promptly:

"She sits anywhere we want her to; I got it all doped out. First we dope up another letter; make it strong this time, see? Then we dress Lefty up as a Jane, and plant him"——

Lefty interrupted, hastily: "Say, how d'ye get that way?"

"Shut up," admonished Peewee. "Somebody's got to do it, and you're the best lookin'. If you work Saturday, you're off the next afternoon, ain't you? My sister's been on the stage, and she'll rig you up, and go with you."

"If I get pinched," warned Lefty, "I'll knock you for a mile of tombstones! I'll bust you all right on the jaw! I'll"——

He was howled down.

"We do this thing right," continued Peewee, complacently. "Lefty is going to be Miss Admirer, and from a distance she will be a pip. She tells him in the next letter where to look, and Sunday afternoon she keeps waving a handkerchief at him. Then she tells him to call on her."

"We hit the road Sunday night," objected Ferguson. "Bull goes north, too. No tellin' where he'll be workin' when we come back."

"That's all the better," Peewee pointed out. "It gives us time to smoke up a lot of letters. Bull will write his fool head off as soon as he gets a look at this Jane. When we're all together again, we slip him an address, and when he calls we'll have the whole gang planted in the house, and at the right moment we come out and give him the grand razz. Will that baby quit riding us? I ask you a simple question."

The ayes had it without dissenting voice.

"The reporters will eat them letters up," mused Ferguson. "The yarn will go all over the country. Can you imagine what the bleachers will do with that — A Hard-Boiled King of Umpires and a Girl in Blue

'Miss Admirer' stuff? Peewee, I got to hand it out; you're there, kid; you're there!"

So it came to pass that Bull Feeney received a second letter, intended to fasten securely in his crimson gills a poisoned barb from Cupid's quiver. It ran:

"Dearie: I was just tickled to death to get your letter, and to know that you are not offended.

"I shall be sitting in the grandstand next Sunday afternoon, just to the right of the plate, where I can see you best, and I will have on a blue dress.

"I do hope you will like me, and will write and tell me so, because I am just crazy about you. I suppose you'll think I'm awful bold to say that, but it's the truth, and I don't care who knows it.

"If you will just tip your cap when you see me, I will know that everything is all right, and I will be the proudest and happiest girl in the world, and when you come back I will ask you to call.

"Good-by, dearie, until I hear from you again.

"YOUR DEVOTED ADMIRER."

Alas, poor Bull! That letter sawed off all four legs of the royal throne, and brought him down, overnight, to the level of mere mortals. In the grandstand, just to the right of the home plate, she had said, and that was where she always sat—the pale, wistful girl with the pink roses on the hallelujah bonnet. Who was she? Where had he seen her before? No matter! The miracle was that she loved him, and she was young and beautiful and unbelievably frail.

It was a humanized Bull Feeney who brushed off the plate and called for the batting order the following Sunday afternoon. The board of strategy could hardly contain itself for joy.

"Look at his hair!" whispered Peewee. "He's got it all slicked down, and a fresh shave. New uniform, too, ain't it?"

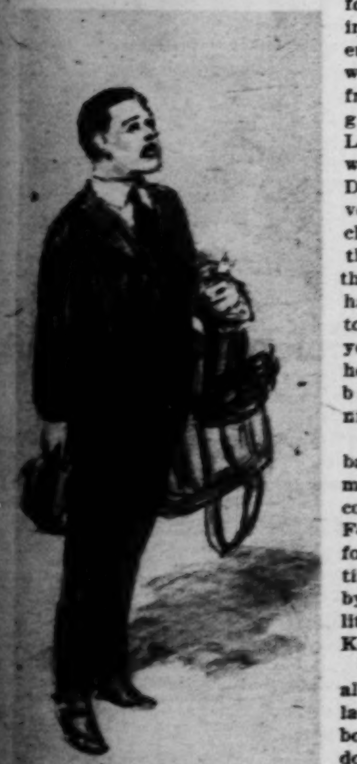
"Naw," said Catcher Darrow, "it's just the old one cleaned up and pressed. Has Lefty showed up yet?"

"He come in a little while ago, and I'll say he's a knockout. Don't anybody look up there, or you'll queer it. Wait a minute; Bull's going to announce the batteries; watch him!"

The King of Umps faced the grandstand. For the first time in the memory of those who watched him eagerly, there was nothing belligerent in his manner. His voice was as gentle as he could make it, his demeanor respectful, his broad shoulders drawn back heroically, and his face directed at someone in the audience sitting to the right of the home plate.

"Lefty's handkerchief must be going," warbled Peewee. "Bull's tipping his cap! I ask you a simple question: ain't this the richest you ever seen?"

How were they to know that Bull Feeney had eyes for only one person in the whole audience, and that she was at least fifty feet from where the gorgeously arrayed Lefty Carroll was waving one of Miss Dorothy Patterson's very best handkerchiefs? How were they to know that the King of the Umps had bribed a bat boy to trail a certain young lady to her home and report back that evening?



Leave the bull baiters to their abysmal ignorance, and consider only Bull Feeney, one hour before train time, chatting in the hotel lobby with bright-eyed little Toolie-woolie Kerrigan.

"So you trailed her all right, did you, lad? You're a grand boy! And where does she live?"

"Boarding house on Sixty-fourth street," said Toolie-woolie. "I got her name from the grocer on the corner. I asked him who the girl was on crutches"——

"Crutches?"

"Sure. She's a cripple—didn't you know that? She can't walk no better than I could before I went to the hospital. I guess that's the reason she comes early, and waits till the crowd is out of the park before she gets up. Her name is O'Donnell; didn't get the first name—say, what's the matter?"

Bull Feeney's jaws were opening and closing spasmodically. His mind was trying to adjust itself to the flood waters of memory. He sank into a chair.

"If that wouldn't knock you kickin'," he breathed. "It's Jim's daughter, sure enough—the little Doris grown up. That explains everything. I remember now: she was hurt in the same train wreck that killed him; and now here she is on crutches and confessin' herself to be me own sweetie. Come here, Toolie."

The King of Umps fished in his vest pocket and produced a $5 bill.

"I've got to be headin' for the train," he explained, "but there's a flower shop on the corner. Get something swell in the line of roses—pink ones—and take 'em out to her."

Feeney looked at his watch. "Just tell her that Bull says he's wise," he instructed, "and that he'll write from Portland; she'll get the rest."

"Fair enough," said Toolie-woolie. "Half a dollar plus car fare."

The fee was paid promptly, and they separated, Feeney to race madly for a train that would carry him 700 miles away from the boarding house where a frail girl on crutches feasted her eyes that night on the most wonderful bouquet she had ever seen, and listened to the absurd message delivered dutifully by the son of Big Bill Kerrigan. But was it so absurd, after all? Why should Miss Doris O'Donnell, in the seclusion of her shabby room, crush pink roses to her breast? Why should she, kimono-clad, sit so long that night repeating over and over again:

"He's just seen me sitting there. . . He doesn't know about the crutches. . . . He doesn't! He doesn't! And I don't want to live—I don't!"

* * * * * * * *

Ah, if Bull had only had sense enough to ask Toolie-woolie for the exact address! Instead his next letter went to Box 341, where it was extracted by Miss Dorothy Patterson and forwarded to Brother Peewee in Portland, according to instructions. Patterson summoned the board of strategy, and its members went into session in his hotel room. Peewee read the missive aloud:

"'Dear Doris: I was an awful boob all right, not to have recognized you before this, but everything is o. k. now. As soon as you told me where you sit, I knew it was the same little sweetie that I had been lamping all along, only I couldn't remember just then where I had seen you before. I got a kid to trail you home, and he got your name off the corner grocer, so I sent some flowers, and I will sure call when I get back.

"'The last time I met you, me and your father was working in the world's series at Chicago. Jim was one swell umpire and it sure busted me all up when I heard about him getting killed. He was always talkin' about you, and showing me your letters. You look a lot like him, only of course a lot prettier. I mean it; I ain't never seen anyone who could come up to you for class. The boys all have noticed you and they will be wild to think that I have copped you off, though of course, like me, they didn't know about the crutches, or about you being so bad hurt.

"'Now, Sweetie, I want you to know that them crutches don't mean nothing to me at all, only I hate to see you looking so pale and weak. You leave it to old Bull to fix things all jake, honey. I got one of the grandest mothers in the world, and I'll send for her right away. Then I got a cabin up in the mountains on a timber claim, and it's the prettiest and healthiest spot in the world. Me and mother will take care of you, Sweetie, and we'll make your cheeks just like them pink roses on your hat.

"'Babe, your letter sure has made the world look a lot different. I don't get no more fun out of riding the players or the crowd, or handing out the fines, because I realize now that most all the boys are married and have wives or kids, or else they got some little sweetie, only they'll never have none as nice as the one that I got.

"'So, honey, just you take good care of yourself—and wait for old Bull to make things come out all right. You ain't no more crazy about me than I am about you.

"'I guess I will close now. Sweetie, you won't have to use them crutches much when I'm around, because I'll carry you. That's the kind of a guy I am. Yours truly,

BULL FEENEY.'"

Peewee Patterson slowly folded up the letter. For a full minute the silence was golden. Finally Rube Ferguson tilted back in his chair and sighed profoundly.

"There it goes!" he commented. "There goes your old ball game! I'll tell the world that's gumming it up the prettiest I ever seen. Say, who started this thing?"

"Don't look at me," protested Peewee. "We was all in on it. What I want to know is: how come Bull to get switched off on to little Sweetie. You fellows know who he's talking about. It's that little Jane that sits over by first base. The one we call Sweetie."

"She ain't on crutches!" protested Rube.

"Yes, she is; I seen her on the street the other day, and she's a mighty nice little girl. Lefty, where did you sit that day?"

"Don't try to start nothin' with me," growled Lefty. "I sat just where you nuts told me—to the right of the plate. I come down the aisle and swung over toward third base"——

"First base!" shrieked Peewee. "That's the right-hand side."

"No, it ain't," snarled Lefty. "Not the way pitchers look at it, it ain't! And don't an umpire face the stands the same way? I doped it out, and I'll bust you one right on the"——

"Oh!" moaned Patterson. "That letter was supposed to be from a girl, not an umpire or a pitcher! I ask you a simple question: did you ever see a left-hander that wasn't cuckoo? I'm offa you for life—I'm through!"

Truck Darrow banged a heavy fist on the table. "Oh, no, you ain't. You ain't through by a long ways. You go to Bull Feeney"——

"Me!"

"Yeah, you! Wasn't it your bright idea to sink the hooks into him? Well, you got 'em in; now let's see you get 'em out!"

Rube Ferguson chimed in:

"If Bull ain't put wise that it's a frame-up, he'll send for his mother, and go call on Sweetie. That will gum things up prettier than ever. We'll be shown up for a lot of yaller dogs, won't we? Say, read that letter again, will you? Read that part about him laying off us, and about carrying her around."

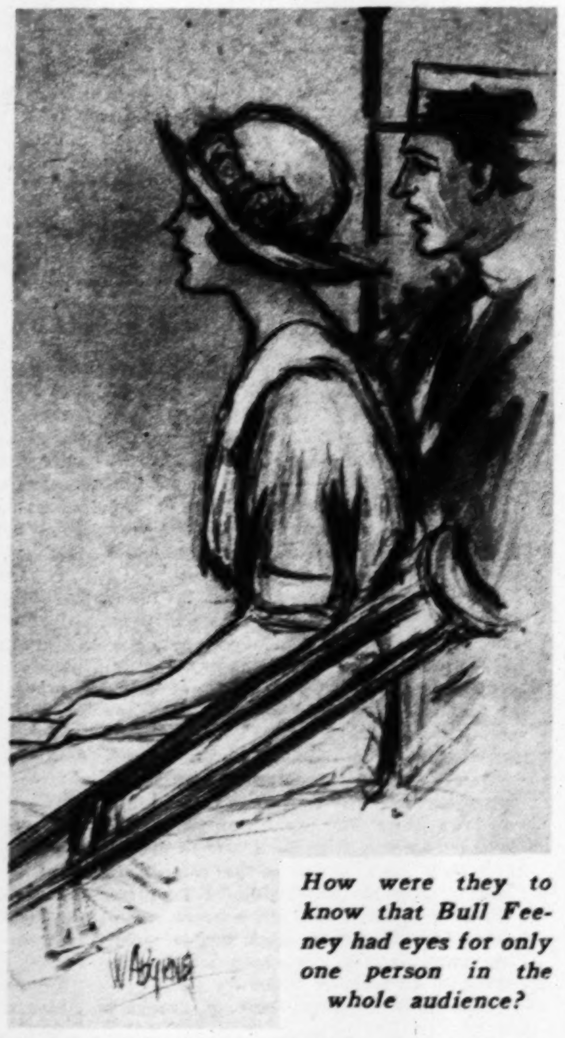
Peewee complied, and there was another aftermath of sober silence.

Rube broke it:

"I'll tell the world I'm for that guy! Looks like we done him a lot of dirt. Umpirin' is a tough job."

Truck Darrow nodded emphatically. "I'll say it is. I was an umpire once in the Texas League. Bull's got my sympathy. Peewee, you gotta tell the old boy that we crossed him. He won't feel no worse than I do."

Peewee Patterson's face paled under the tan. "Look's like I'm stuck for it," he admitted, "but I'd rather be shot; honest I would! Let's make it a committee. I'll do the talkin', but some of you fellows oughta come along, or he won't believe me.



How were they to know that Bull Feeney had eyes for only one person in the whole audience?

Rube Ferguson grunted dismally:

"I'll see you through."

"Well, I'll be the other goat," said Lefty. "He's stopping down at the St. Regis. Let's get it over with."

After that interview between the King of Umps and three representatives of the board of strategy, the three ball players sat down to think it over.

"If he'd only opened up on us," Peewee groaned, "instead of just sitting there lookin'. I'm going to drop a line to my sister, and tell her to get acquainted with this Jane, and sound her out. Dolly's a good scout. Maybe Sweetie can be induced to fall for this guy and then everything's jake."

"Now you're talkin'!" said Lefty. "Your sister can introduce the whole gang and then we can all smoke it up about what a grand fellow Bull is. Now you're getting the old eye on the ball! This game ain't lost yet!"

"No," Rube admitted, "it ain't lost, but there's two out in the ninth, and I'll tell the world it's going to take a swell little battin' rally to save the beans!"

"I'll lead off, then," said Peewee.

And he did—wrote home that night and implored his sister to come to their rescue. In Miss Patterson's behalf, it should be stated that she did her very best. Nothing could please a young girl more than a romantic commission like that. A week passed, and then another. Peewee and his teammates were in Salt Lake; Bull Feeney was still in Portland. The following letter came from Miss Patterson:

"Dearest Bud: I can't find any trace of her. No one seems to know her address. The ushers say they haven't seen her since the Sunday afternoon when we did that foolish thing. Did you know she was the daughter of a very famous umpire? No wonder she took so much interest in the game. It seems perfectly dreadful to think of a girl on crutches sitting there day after day watching you boys so full of life and health!

"You don't suppose anything could have happened to her? Someone told me she looked terribly frail. If there's anything further I can do, telegraph at once.

"DOLLY."

That letter left its recipients panic-stricken.

"Didn't Bull say he got her address off a kid, and sent her some flowers?" asked Rube Ferguson. "The thing to do now is to get the address off Bull."

Peewee shook his head. "How you going to do that? Bull's in Portland, and anyway, you couldn't get the address out of him in a million years. He's all broke up; he's through! If we let on that she don't go to the games no more that will hurt him worse than ever."

"Peewee's right," said Lefty. "Next week we play at home, and Bull will be there, too. We can look him over and see whether he's got the old pep back, and if he ain't—why we'll have to go out and do a little gum-shoe work. Some of these club officials ought to know her."

* * * * * * * *

The days passed uneventfully. The teams returned to the St. Clair grounds. Bull Feeney's assignment sent him to the same place. They were very much shocked when they beheld him.

"He ought to lay off," opined Ferguson. "The old boy ain't there—no life, no pep. Seems like he was ten years older. I seen him lookin' up at the stands a little while ago. He sees she ain't in the old seat."

"Maybe she's sittin' somewhere's else," Peewee suggested. "All of us oughta give the crowd the once-over."

They tried to follow out this idea, but all they succeeded in doing was to lose the game, and Brick McGovern was driven to vigorous protests. Their efforts at sleuthing were just as unproductive. Then, one Sunday afternoon, in the last game of the series, the drama climaxed swiftly.

Bull Feeney was umpiring on the bases and all through the game certain players were aware that his condition was very bad.

"What do you figure that guy is doing?" asked Ferguson. "Wednesday, he was lookin' pretty good.' I thought everything was jake again. He was kiddin' with me, and seemed to have all his pep back. Yesterday he looked bad, but this afternoon he's white as a ghost. Brick was tellin' me that Bull tried to beg off workin', but on account of his partner being new, they wouldn't stand for it. I tell you, he's weak as a cat."

"It's the heat," said Peewee. "All them fleshy guys suffer in the heat."

"Ye-ah, but this one ain't even sweatin'. You watch Bull tryin' to cut across the diamond on a play at third. He runs like he was drunk. I wonder if he's hittin' the old bottle?"

"He's callin' the plays too good for that," Lefty remonstrated. "No, that bird is just in; that's all. I don't think he's going to last the game."

Lefty came very near calling the turn. Bull Feeney just managed to finish on his feet—and that was all.

Then, the game over, the King of Umps took a few uncertain steps toward his dressing room, swayed a moment, and pitched face forward on the grass. When they got to his side, he was in a cold faint.

Ferguson, Peewee, Lefty and Brick McGovern helped to carry him into the seclusion of the little room under the stands. They shooed the other players away.

"We know what's wrong," mumbled Peewee. "We'll take care of him. Get away!"

By dint of vigorous massage, and liberal applications of cold water, they restored Bull to consciousness.

"Bull," besought Peewee, kneeling by his side, "you got me scared cuckoo. Don't take it so hard, man! We been lookin' for her to try and fix things all jake. Just you tell us where she lives, and we'll square it all up—you won't have to do nothin'."

Bull Feeney's lips curved in an odd smile. "She's in the hospital," he whispered. "That's the trouble; that's how I come to blow out like that."

"In the hospital?" cried Lefty. "Gee, what's the trouble, Bull? She ain't bad off, is she?"

Feeney propped himself into a sitting posture with their help. He spoke slowly:

"No, she ain't bad off now. She's going to come out all right, and she's going to get married—to a big bum."

"Gee!" said Peewee. "Ain't that always the way? I ask you a simple question: did you ever see a girl yet that didn't fall for a fathead?"

"'Tis a queer story," Feeney explained. "This little girl, you mind, was a cripple. Same trouble as Bill Kerrigan's kid. She was interested in the big bum, but not a bit would she encourage him, till she finds out whether an operation will help her to walk. So she goes to a hospital and falls for one of the bone guys. Operation is successful, but when she is comin' out from under the chloroform, she calls this big bum by name until Doc decides to send for him, and asks him what's the big idea. The fellow's explanation makes everything o. k., but the little girl is so weak that they see she ain't going to pull through"——

"I thought you said she was going to be married?" Peewee protested.

The King of Umpires grinned up at them. The color was coming back to his gills.

"So I did," he assented. "I was but callin' the play the way it looked to me. She ain't going to die. Better still, she's going to walk—that is, she'll be able to walk with the aid of the fathead. You see, he didn't have much to offer her, but he had always lived clean, and he was built husky. There was one thing he could give her, and the doctor said 'twould save her"——

"What was that?" they demanded.

"Blood," he answered, "a quart of it, and every drop of it straight from the heart. Lift me up, you [illegible], and mind the bandages on me left arm; I promised her I'd be back right after the game!"

Touch Sensations Strongest in the Dreams of the Blind

SINCE Freud's studies on dreams, the interest shown in this psychological phenomena has grown considerably. We recognize the state of unconsciousness with its limitless possibilities of association as the source of dream fantasies and we know that the state of consciousness narrows the range of our view and just confines us to a world which is perceptible to our senses.

In our waking hours, in every intercourse with our fellow men, we criticise our every thought, continually ask ourselves whether we will be blamed for doing something that we ought not to do or for neglecting to do something that we should; we seem to depend greatly on the good will and opinion of our neighbors.

In the dream state everything is permissible. We kill those we hate, others we crown; we play the millionaire or the beggar; we step from the tower to ground and then back again to the tower; the most impossible is possible in countless variations, deeds are much more variegated and filled with much deeper meaning than in our conscious state. The artist in us wakens when we sleep.

The most primitive sort of dream is the dream found in the optical pictures that roll before us in kinematographic fashion, pictures of rare phenomena of no reality, the thoughts of each normal person experienced in hallucinatory acts. In dreams we are paranoiacs with abnormal imaginative powers; we multiply everything by 1000 and place ourselves, our own ego, in the center of the world.

The most primitive sort of dream is the one in which a wish is realized. The child obtains the toy most longed for in its dream. As it grows older and disillusions and disappointments crowd one another in life, the dream takes another form; it becomes the dream of anxiety and later all the passions become sources of dreams. The play of the passions takes plastic form in pictures, less often in sounds and only very seldom in hallucinations of taste and odor. The fact that sensations of touch are so rarely of any significance in dreams while in our waking state we are constantly making use of this sense must appear very remarkable to us. Our fantasies are stimulated mostly by optical and acoustic sensations.

Consequently, it was at first very astonishing to hear blind people tell of dreams in which the sensation of touch was preeminent. They are difficult to describe, because we are unfortunately accustomed to perceive almost everything optically and dislike exceedingly to abandon this agent of interpretation of experience. In this manner the blind person dreams of a fictitious battle in which he plays the principal role. This is the same sort of a dream that is experienced by a normal person, but with the difference that no element in the dream is sensed optically but only through touch.

Only those born blind dream exclusively dreams of touch sensations. Those who become blind in after life, who are forced to exchange their optical conception of world's panorama for one in which the sensation of touch plays the dominant part, experience dreams of a corresponding nature. That is, the optical dreams gradually cease to occur; at first they are mixed with dreams in which the touch sensation prevails, but finally they are entirely displaced by the latter. The dreams of the blind have been found to be full of life, a fact which cannot be made to jibe with experimental psychological investigations. A paradoxical condition exists here in the fact that the semblance to reality of the fantasmagorical pictures in the dreams of people who have suffered the loss of one or more senses is increased in comparison with persons who are in possession of all their senses.—From the Scientific American.

Here Is a Real Giant

KAZANLOFF, a Siberian giant recently exhibited in Hungary, is said to be the largest man in the world. This human marvel is thus described in a recent issue of American Medicine:

"He is 34 years of age, his height is 9 feet 3 inches, and he is built in proportion to his height. Thus, his hand is 1 foot 1 inch from finger tip to wrist; his foot 1 foot 9 inches long; his chest measurement is 56 inches; the circumference of his head is 25 inches and his weight is 458 pounds. To support this huge frame he eats an amount that would satisfy four others of good appetite. In four meals in the course of the day he consumes 4 or 5 pints of milk, 15 to 20 eggs, 3 or 4 pounds of meat, five or six loaves of bread, large quantities of potatoes, beans and other vegetables, 4 to 6 pints of wine and 5 or 6 quarts of beer. These quantities appear to be well attested, as do the measurements of his proportions; but the fact that arrests attention particularly in the accounts of the giant's habits is the enormous amount of sleep that he needs.

"Normally, he passes a large portion of the day in slumber, and he has been known to sleep for 24 hours on end. Even when awake, his movements are slow and deliberate, and he is inclined to doze off when left alone, the only stimulus to exertion being the cravings of hunger, which are said to be acute. It is impossible in the light of recent researches on giantism to regard this prodigious specimen of humanity as a mere 'freak.' He must be the subject of pathologic change, probably in the pituitary body. The condition of general symmetrical giantism gradually developing is not in all points like true acromegaly, but is closely allied to it. The prognosis with regard to longevity cannot be said to be bright. Kazanloff has now left for his fatherland, Siberia, where he intends to help his parents in farm work."

Scientist Discovers Skin Laxative

WOMEN, give thanks to Mr. McGowan—an English scientist, scarce out of his twenties. His discovery means that a beautiful skin is now a mere matter of personal cleanliness made beautiful while you wait!

The element he has found physics one's skin. Its action is gentle, but positive. Its use is delightful, for it is applied outside. Impurities clogging your facial pores are instantly banished, even the pores themselves are contracted and rendered invisible. The new bloom of color and velvety texture of skin are simply marvelous.

The Oldest Living Thing on This Planet

"Old Tule," the great tree of Santa Maria del Tule in Southern Mexico, reported "beginning to show signs of wear and tear," is believed to be between 5000 and 6000 years old — Dr. Hermann von Schrenk of St. Louis hopes it will last until he has another chance to visit it and make it tell its age.

WHEN Dr. Hermann von Schrenk of St. Louis read a recent Associated Press dispatch from Mexico to the effect that the correspondent had noticed "the wrinkles of age beginning to show" on the great tree of Tule, he remarked, with a semi-scientific smile:

"I should think so! That tree certainly was between 5000 and 6000 years old when I visited it in 1903, and now, of course, it must be nearly twenty years older. It undoubtedly is the oldest of living things on this planet."

The dispatch stated that the correspondent recently had visited the tiny village of Santa Maria del Tule, in the State of Oaxaca, hundreds of miles south of Mexico City, where, "still clothed in living green," the great tree stands, and that the venerable giant was "showing signs of wear and tear."

"But there is no immediate cause for worry over the probability that Tule, as the local Indians affectionately call the tree, will wither away before the present generation has disappeared," continued the correspondent. "Even if it should do so, Tule has a son about fifty yards from the parental branches which is showing healthy signs of maintaining the family honor in the matter of robustness and longevity. The Indians have named this infant cypress of about 200 years Hijo, which means son."

Dr. von Schrenk, who is pathologist for the Missouri Botanical Garden and practices the profession of timber engineer, smiled again. He is an invincible optimist.

"And even if Hijo, the son, should for any reason suffer early decline and fail to grow up," he said, "we have right here in St. Louis what we may be entitled to call a great-grandson of Tule. It is a little cypress of the identical species of Tule, and it stands in the Missouri Botanical Garden, where anybody interested in tree-ancestor worship may take a look."

Von Schrenk's name and that of Alexander von Humboldt, whose statue stands in Tower Grove Park, are linked in the scientific history of the towering tree of Tule, though a century divides their respective visits to the veteran cypress. Von Humboldt, in 1803, discovered to the world of science this oldest of living things. Von Schrenk, in 1903, rediscovered it. Von Humboldt had nailed to the tree a board inscribed with his name and other data.

"I found Von Humboldt's board still there," said the younger scientist, "and even more securely fixed than when he left it in 1803. The bark and substance of the tree had grown over the board, concealing about half of its surface."

Dr. von Schrenk takes, quite naturally, a peculiar interest in the fortunes and fate of the tree.

"It has been one of the ambitions of my life," said Dr. von Schrenk, "to make old Tule give up the secret of his age. That was my ambition nearly twenty years ago, when I visited Oaxaca for that express purpose; and I still hope some day to discover the secret—at least to approximate, within a few years, the actual age of the tree."

"But how could you do that?" was asked.

He went into another room at his laboratory and returned, carrying a block of wood and an odd-looking auger.

Placing the block on the floor, he bored into it about half a foot, the job requiring perhaps a minute. Inserting in the hollow auger a small wire hook, he pulled out a clean-cut core a quarter of an inch in diameter and exactly as long as the depth he had bored. "You see," he said, "by counting the growth rings on the core I could tell the number of years that piece of wood had been growing; that is, from the depth of my bore to the surface. If I could have bored to the center of the tree from which this block was cut I could have told you the age of the tree, one ring for each year."

"Well, then, why didn't you take an auger to old Tule, and"——

"Aha! but that's just what I did—or rather tried to do; but insuperable difficulties presented. The Jefe Politico objected."

"The—what?"

"The Mayor of Santa Maria del Tule, the little village where old Tule stands, in the midst of an ancient graveyard. That official, backed, no doubt, by his entire constituency, stood between science and sanctitude, defending the latter. In other words, old Tule is a sacred object to those simple Mexicans."

It was, nevertheless, a great adventure, that of the youthful timber expert and his companion, the late Dr. William Trelease, who was director of the Missouri Botanical Garden when the two made the long trip to Oaxaca. At that time Dr. von Schrenk was connected with the United States Forestry Service. He had his little auger along.

And in the small hollow of his little auger Dr. von Schrenk held, or thought he held, the highly interesting secret. Just a few minutes of exercising his supple wrist, say five minutes of boring into the solid wood of old Tule—and then, in a twinkling, the secret of the ages revealed! Out of the centuried silences at last the dumb lips of life's oldest survivor speaking! Whispering across the desert sands of the Egypt that was and is not, over the buried dust of Babylon and the forgotten tombs of Tyre—whispering into the ear of the rapt young researcher from St. Louis what had been withheld from the world-famed Von Humboldt and from all others:

"Dr. von Schrenk, if you must know, I am 5976 years old, but please keep it to yourself. A tree is only as old as it feels, Doc."

"But I must tell, O Ancientest of the Ancients, for the world is most curious to know."

"Alas—same old world! Human nature never changes! Curiosity still kills its cats!"

Most unfortunately, such a delightful colloquy between Age and Science was not to be. Let us hear Dr. von Schrenk himself tell the sad tale:

"Dr. Trelease introduced me as an official of the United States Government. The Jefe Politico bowed low, with true Castilian courtesy. We stated our desire to visit and inspect the ancient tree. The Mayor was quite willing. Accompanied by his official staff and most of the population of the village, he escorted us to the graveyard, in the midst of which stood the object of our quest.

"I produced my auger. The Mayor surveyed it suspiciously. 'I wish,' I said, 'to bore a little hole with this, to get some year rings and thus estimate the age of this tree, Mr. Mayor.' But Mr. Mayor held up both hands in protest. It never would do. The tree was a sacred thing. The people venerated it, wellnigh worshiped it, would defend it with their lives if need be. An auger boring into its trunk—not so. No, senor!

"In vain did we explain that a tiny bore could not injure the gigantic trunk. The long rope we carried? Oh, that was all right—we might measure the distance around the trunk, but we might not bore into it—not an inch. Not even an official of the United States Government could bore in the tree. So we run our rope around the trunk four feet from the ground, and found the circumference to be 126 feet. Then we retreated.

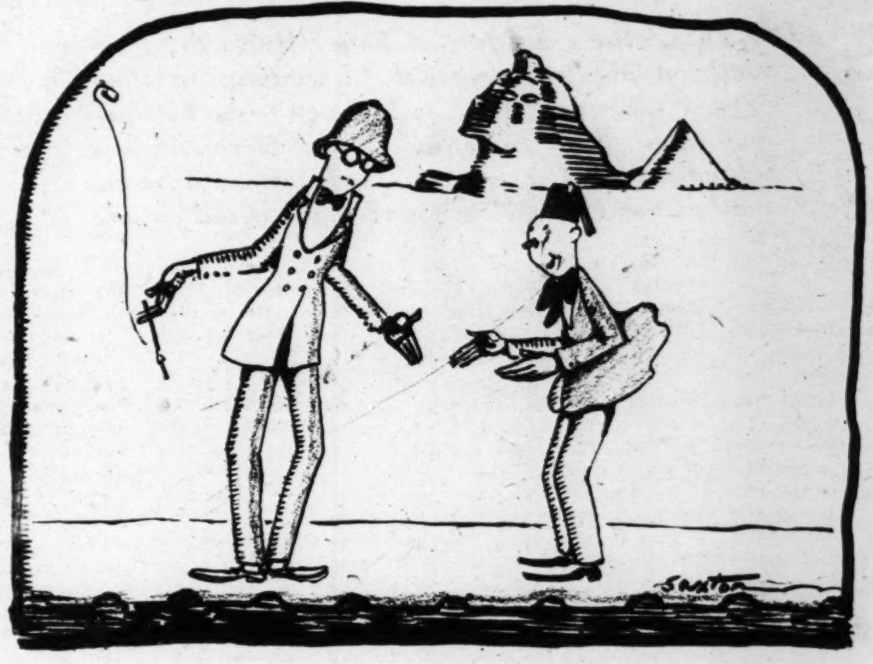
Another Tragedy of a Successful Song

The writer of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" received $50 for it, while the purchasers are now getting $1500 a week in the "Follies," and several hundred more as royalties from the sale of records—The author is a son of Eddie Foy. :: :: ::



By KARL K. KITCHEN.

IT IS an axiom among Broadway song writers and composers that whenever they hear a good verse or a good tune, they go home and write it. For it is a fact that almost every big "song hit" can be traced to some earlier original. Many successful composers have "niggers"—as ghosts are called in the tin-pan alley—and every now and then, especially when there is a law suit, a popular song is shown to have had a very humble origin.

Newspaper readers will recall the story behind "Dardanella"—that amazingly popular tune of a few seasons back, which was bought by Fred Fischer for $100. It made thousands of dollars for the publisher and resulted in litigation that lasted for many months. Another song which was bought for $50 has earned thousands for its lucky purchasers. And if it does not result in a series of law suits it will be a novelty for Broadway. One suit, in fact, has already been filed.

Some months ago Bryan Foy, a son of Eddie Foy, the comedian, wrote a song called "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" for Ed Gallagher and Al Shean, two well known vaudeville performers. The song set forth several old jokes in rhyme, part of each verse being recited by "Mr. Gallagher," part by "Mr. Shean."

It had a familiar but ingratiating little melody, and the two performers willingly parted with $50 of their hard-earned money for it. At that time they received less than $500 a week for their "talking act," and $50 seemed like a considerable sum to them. And to Bryan Foy, who had dashed off the song at odd moments, it seemed fair if not exactly excessive compensation. At least, he accepted the fifty berries and thought no more about it.

Shortly afterwards Messrs. Gallagher and Shean tried out the song as part of their vaudeville act. In the language of the "two-a-day" it was a "riot." Audiences, seemingly, could not get enough of it, with the result that the two performers wrote several additional verses and made their entire act "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

In short, the song became their entire act. And their popularity grew so fast that they soon became "headliners," and their salary was advanced to $600, later to $750, and finally to $1000 a week. On numerous occasions they played in two Keith theaters the same week—filling both to capacity. Audiences of all classes "ate it up."

So it did not come as a surprise when Flo Ziegfeld announced their appearance in his new Follies. He had to give them a contract calling for $1500 a week to obtain their services, and their "act" in the Follies is simply a repetition of the "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" song.

All this wouldn't have been so unusual—for many performers have been made by a single song—but Messrs. Gallagher and Shean placed their song (theirs in the sense that they had bought it) with a Broadway music publisher.

Just what advance he gave them is not known, but he evidently didn't think very much of the song from a selling standpoint, for the reason that he agreed that Messrs. Gallagher and Shean would receive any and all of the mechanical royalties resulting from it, in addition to the usual author's royalties. Having written new verses, the two performers automatically became "authors" as well.

But as luck would have it, the song became a sensational mechanical hit. That is, instead of selling as sheet music it became a dance hit. And the various "canned music" companies which put out discs of it soon found themselves unable to supply the demand. With the result that weekly royalties running into the hundreds of dollars have been piling up for "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean." The music publisher accepted the situation philosophically and like a good sport has made the best of a bad bargain.

But Bryan Foy, who is out in Hollywood, is not of the same philosophical turn of mind. He claims that he only sold the "performing rights" of the song for $50 and that he has a just claim to at least a share of the royalties from the sale of the canned song. And he has retained a well known firm of New York theatrical lawyers to look after his interests. So in due time the whole story may be told in the courts.

In the meanwhile, even if the royalties from the canned music are tied up by injunction, Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean will continue to draw $1500 weekly as a result of their lucky purchase. All of which shows that there was a lot of sound business sense in the statement of the man who said: "I don't care who makes the country's laws if I can only write its songs."

There was an echo of "Dardanella" some weeks ago, when Fred Fischer, its publisher, who had bought it for $100, sued Jerome D. Kern, the composer, and Harms Inc., the publisher, of "Ka-lu-a," claiming that the psuedo Hawaiian melody has the same bass as "Dardanella." Mr. Fischer wants $10,000 because of the alleged similarity. Mr. Kern asserts that the same bass movement was used by Brahms and Beethoven long before "Dardanella" was dreamed of, and that it is the originality of the melody that counts. But, of course, the court will have to decide this question when the case comes up for trial.

The tragedy of both songs is the fact that the original authors and composers received but a few dollars for the biggest money makers in recent years. But the song-writing game is one of the biggest gambles on Broadway, and as in many games of chance, one sometimes loses, even when one wins.

More Chance of World Ending Under Einstein Theory

Irish scientist finds that this theory explains apparent collisions in space due to sudden changes in the orbits of heavenly bodies—Present velocity of the earth prevents it from falling into the sun, but such a catastrophe might occur if some orbit disturbance deflected its path and greatly reduced its velocity ::

IF EINSTEIN'S law of relativity is correct, there are more chances of the world coming to an end than under the old theories. Prof. W. B. Morton of Queen's University, Belfast, Ireland, has worked out astronomical consequences of the famous scientifically revolutionary Einstein theory and he suspects that the tremendous occurrences sometimes observed at distant regions of the heavens may be the result of collisions which take place in accordance with the new theory.

Ever since it became known that the earth is round, and revolved about the sun, the human mind has asked the anxious question, "Will the earth ever fall into the sun?" There has always been, also, the apprehension that some visitor would come plunging in from space and rearrange the present solar system in a fashion which will eliminate man and all of his works. Mathematical studies in the past have been reassuring, but the perennial millennialists now are more justified in predicting doom than they were in the past. Prof. Morton's analysis of the effects of the Einstein theory increases the scientific interest in the tests that British and American astronomers are going to make of the theory at the total solar eclipse in September.

According to the new theory, if two bodies, a large and a small one, were present in space, instead of always moving in ellipses and never coming in contact they would, under certain conditions, collide, and this would take place even if the sizes of the bodies were reduced until they were mere points. Likewise, similar changes must be considered where more than two bodies are concerned, as, for instance, our own group of the sun and planets, and collisions may take place. The paths along which such collisions occur are called captured orbits.

In the case of the earth the velocity is too great for a captured orbit. If its present velocity were reduced to about 12 meters or 13 meters a second, the earth would move along a path passing through the center of the sun. This is 1-25000 of the present velocity.

This theory, showing that collisions may occur, has an important bearing on the subject of new stars, or nova, as they generally are called, which now and then blaze forth in the sky. Their cause always has been a mystery; they occur far too frequently to be explained on the theory of random collisions, to which they would be limited by the older theories. However, they appear in the region of the milky way, a portion of the heavens characterized by stars possessing low velocities which, according to the new theory, would be particularly favorable for producing captured orbits and collisions, and these great explosions of light observed by astronomers as new stars may be the result of such collisions.

It also appears that the velocity required to carry a body entirely out of the solar system never to come back is not quite as great as for the old theory. According to the old theory an object falling from a very remote distance in space would travel in a parabola, a form of curve which never crosses itself, while according to the new theory, one of the possible paths could cross itself and form a looped-shape figure.

Another peculiar orbit possible, according to the new theory, is a spiral which winds inward like a clock spring and approaches as the final form of its path a circle of definite radius.

Whether or not the Einstein theory of relativity is disproved in course of time remains to be seen. It may be confessed that many astronomers would greet with sincere relief positive evidence that it was all untrue. However, the theory has gained a formidable place in present scientific thought, and is being used to reconcile at the same time features respecting the movements of heavenly bodies and the vibrations of the electrons which go to make up the tiny atoms of matter; and the peculiar and weird conceptions of motion, time and space may actually represent the universe in which we live.

Mortgage 2352 Years Old Dug Up by Archeologists

THERE is no news in the fact that a first mortgage on a farm was given 2352 years ago as surety for a loan of thirty bushels of dates, but there is news in the fact that the identical "mortgage" has been dug up recently. The mortgage is recorded on a clay brick found in the ruins of Nippur, Mesopotamia, by an archeological expedition from the University of Pennsylvania. This is said to be the earliest loan safeguarded according to modern investment standards of which we have any record. The date loan is "dated" 430 B. C. Translated, the inscription reads:

"Thirty bushels of dates are due to Bel Nadin Shun, son of Marashu, by Bel Bullitsu and Sha Nabu Shu, sons of Kirebti, and their tenants. In the month of Tashri (month of harvest) of the thirty-fourth year of King Artaxerxes I, they shall pay the dates, thirty bushels according to the measure of Bel Nadin Shun, in the town of Bit Balatsu. Their field, cultivated and uncultivated, their fief estate is held as a pledge for the dates, namely, thirty bushels, by Bel Nadin Shun. Another creditor shall not have power over it."

Note how carefully the loan is recorded and how the time and place of payment are named. The creditor is, in fact, given a first mortgage on the land of his debtors, for the document declares "another creditor shall not have power over it (the land)."

The brick was found with 730 other similar clay tablets in the remains of a room that had been part of the business establishment of a wealthy firm which, according to the parlance of today, would have been known as Marashu Sons, Nippur, Mesopotamia. The fact that the first loan of this kind was of dates testifies to the antiquity of dates as a food and to their lasting popularity through the centuries.

The Joy of the Open Road

MUCH has been written upon this topic, and the artist here has been at great pains to depict the trials incident to motoring. This applies to the periodical picnicker, whose touring faith triumphs each recurring Sunday over the experience of last Sunday. It takes him and the family again to the Wild Horse Road or some place on the river bank. Sweethearts have grown far too wise to expect solitude within range of the surfaced roads, what with boy scouts prying into the woody dells in search of wild things, or the tired chauffeur of the family Ford looking for a cool place where he can take a little nap. Americans take their pleasures seriously, it has been said, but surely none is more serious than Father trying to make a long hill in high while he is torn between the hope that the left hind tire is not going to give way, and the fear that the new mysterious rattle indicates that he is short of oil in the crank case.

Fashionable Women Are Asking "Have You 'Clayed' Today?"

IT'S the new password to beauty, the new watchword of charm. It means a clear, smooth, attractive skin where blemishes were before. It means a fine, attractive complexion where dull sallowness was before. It means unmasking a hidden beauty—a wholesome, radiant beauty that enhances one's whole appearance.

Thousands of women are today 'claying' regularly. They are amazing their friends and acquaintances——amazing even themselves—by the change in their complexion. It takes but 30 minutes to 'clay'—yet in that one short half-hour it seems as though the complexion has actually been remade—although it's only the true beauty of your own complexion being brought to the surface.

It is very easy to pick out from a crowd of women those who have 'clayed' and those who have not. The difference in the skin is surprising. 'Claying' the skin makes it soft, smooth, firm, delicately colored. Those who do not 'clay' do not realize it, but their facial pores are clogged with bits of dust and dead skin, stifled by poisons and accumulations buried beneath the surface.

Why YOU Should 'Clay' Your Complexion

Water cannot reach the tiny mass of accumulations hidden away in each pore—the accumulations that are causing all the trouble. Eruptions, blackheads and pimpleheads, unsightly blemishes make their appearance. But 'claying' with the marvelous new magnetic clay draws every bit of dust, dirt and dead skin from the pores, lifts them to the surface, absorbs them. Every inch of the face is forced to respond. Not a pore can escape, not a tiny bit of dust can remain. It is like lifting the coarse, blemished complexion away and revealing a new one of clear, charming beauty underneath!

That is why fashionable women, and well-groomed women everywhere, are asking one another, "Have you 'clayed' today?" They know what it means to have a skin as soft and sweet as a child's, a complexion so radiantly beautiful that people turn to admire it. And they know that in Domino Complexion Clay, the remarkable new magnetic clay, Science has at last found the quick, sure, inexpensive way to beauty.

Domino Complexion Clay is not a cosmetic. It does not cover up the blemishes, does not cover up the stifled pores. It works like millions of tiny magnets on the face, forms contact with the pores, instantly draws the mass of accumulations to the surface, absorbs them—and before your very eyes is revealed a complexion of fresh, radiant beauty! It is as though some fairy had touched each clogged up pore with her magic wand, released the stifling poisons and unmasked hidden beauty! The 'clay' habit is a habit that will make you look your best at all times, give your complexion the appearance of fine, wholesome attractiveness.

What Is This New Kind of Clay?

'Claying' for beauty is not a new idea. Indeed, many beauty parlors have used ordinary clays for years, and have given expensive treatments with nothing but the clay to substantiate them. It is only now, after extensive research and experiment, that the just-right elements have been found which, when combined in certain exact proportions, form a magnetic clay. This is an entirely new kind of clay—a clay that alway works no matter how blemished the skin may be, no matter how coarse or how fine the texture of your skin is.

This new Domino Complexion Clay, powerful, magnetic, is as simple to use as powder—and just as pleasant. Anyone can use it right at home, each treatment costing but a few cents instead of the few dollars that beauty parlors charge for ordinary treatments. It is a fine, perfumed clay, cream-like, and is applied with the finger tips. It dries and hardens on the face, and as it hardens you feel the pore-poisons being drawn to the surface, feel the bits of dust and dirt being lifted away, feel the relieved pores breathing, relaxing.

In 30 minutes, the clay-mask is removed. With it every pimplehead and blackhead is removed and a smooth, fresh, clear complexion is revealed underneath. Your skin will seem transformed. It will glow with the warm, fresh tinge of health. It will be exquisitely clear and smooth. Not a blemish, not a tired line or bit of sallowness will mar its new, clear beauty.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

A Powder with a French Fame!

BOURJOIS' [pronounced Bourge-wah] Java* is not merely a powder with a French name—it is a fine Face Powder with a French fame—a century-old fame that American women have endorsed.

Measure its value by the surprisingly new beauty it gives you—not by the astonishingly low price it costs you!

ASHES OF ROSES* ROUGE

the famous Bourjois hand-made French rouge, as Parisian as Java, and almost as important a complement to your complexion. Both are included in the twelve leading preparations found in the Bourjois Cabinet Assortment at progressive dealers. For the woman who prefers a lighter rouge, we suggest Rouge Mandarine.*

No. 1 Autographic KODAK Special

Picture Size 2¼x3¼ Price $50

EXPOSURES as fast as 1-200 of a second and six other adjustable speeds down to 1-2 second, all timed with scientific accuracy, give the No. 1 Special a picture range hitherto associated with large cameras only.

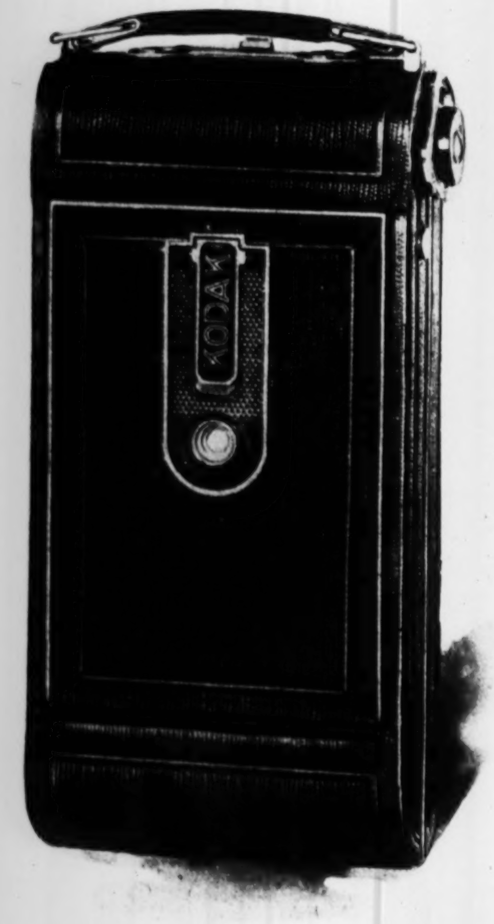
Since the introduction of the Kodak thirty-four years ago there has been no more signal achievement in hand camera construction.

The lens: The high-speed, high-quality Kodak Anastigmat lens f.6.3, Eastman-made from formula to finish, produces sharp, brilliant, clean-cut pictures—the kind you will be glad to keep and proud to show.

The shutter: Kodamatic shutter has seven adjustable speeds, 1-200, 1-100, 1-50, 1-25, 1-10, 1-5 and 1-2 second as well as time and bulb action, and each speed is absolutely accurate.

An important feature of the Kodamatic is a sliding scale attached to the "stop" indicator, which automatically shows the speed to use for each stop opening under four different light conditions—dull, gray, clear or brilliant.

The finish: The aluminum body is covered with finest quality genuine sealskin, while metal parts are finished in nickel and black enamel. The significance of the word "Special" is apparent at first glance. The camera looks the part.



The No. 1 Special is smart in appearance whether open or closed.
